MP Suggests Businessmen 'Frightened'

Where Are Critics of B.C.?

By BILL THOMAS

B.C. businessmen are frightened of criticizing provincial government tax policies, a member of the Commons committee hearing briefs on the Benson taxation white paper charged Wednesday.

The issue was raised by Robert Kaplan (L-Don Valley) after he had heard comments on a B.C. Forest Products brief presented by company president Ian Barclay.

● "We're not God," MP tells executive. Page 22.

After listening to Barclay complain that the B.C. Forest industry faces a tax rate of 56 per cent which puts it at a competitive disadvantage with other countries, the Toronto member told the 11-member committee, "This is a peculiar phenomenon in B.C. that hasn't happened elsewhere. There has been no reluctance to criticize the federal tax system by pulp and paper or mining witnesses, but they (B.C. businessmen) have been unwilling to comment on provincial taxes.

"It makes one wonder what kind of a democratic society exists here in B.C. Businessmen here are afraid to comment and I haven't found this in other provinces."

Neither Barclay or K. P. Benson, financial vice-president of the company, commented.

In an aside, Ray Perrault (L-Burnaby-Seymour) said, "As a British Columbian I hope that at some point in the near future the taxation and finance committee of the provincial legislature will be empowered to hold hearings in all parts of our province with respect to provincial taxation and the need for reform.

"I feel sure that many British Columbians, including many businessmen, would be pleased to suggest the kinds of tax changes needed at the provincial level."

In another exchange, when the Council of B.C. Forest

Bonner 'Cools Crisis'

Tahsis Dispute Settled

By DON COLLINS

Robert Bonner, former B.C. attorney-general and now one of the top men in the forest industry, is reported to have taken action Wednesday to remove the threat of an immediate industry lockout throughout the sprawling Coast region.

There was no official confirmation of this. But sources said Bonner was brought into the picture to "cool" a dangerous situation that could have ended special hearings into the industry's major labor dispute.

In a separate action later in the day, the International Woodworkers of America removed one of the obstacles blocking the way to possible settlement. The union said its members at Tahsis on Vancouver Island had agreed to return to work, putting an end to a walkout that began 10 days ago.

* * *

Walter Allen, president of the IWA's Port Alberni local, said the Tahsis Co. sawmill would not be able to return to full operation immediately but that the company had promised to take back striking employees without delay.

The developments came as Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz continued hearings aimed at finding settlement for 30,000 Coast region forest workers and 114 companies represented by Forest Industrial Relations.

Nemetz, appointed by the province, said he hopes to begin writing a report by the middle or end of next week. He has the power to bring down recommendations for a new contract.

* * *

The last contract for the Coast region expired June 15 and the IWA and FIR have traded strike and lockout notices. It had been understood that no major action would be taken while the hearings were being conducted.

However, Nemetz had to

Taku on rocks, nose among trees

From Rocky Isle Off Rupert

Try Today to Free Ferry

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An attempt was scheduled early today to pull the Alaska ferry Taku from the rocky foreshore of West Kinahan Island where she piled up Wednesday with 342 persons aboard.

Meanwhile Canadian department of transport and other officials were studying means of dealing with the problem of cleaning up hundreds of gallons of oil spilling from the 352-foot vessel's ruptured tanks and threatening to pollute the harbor of this northern British Columbia deep-sea port of 16,000 persons.

* * *

Disaster struck the Taku almost at the end of a southbound run to Prince Rupert from Juneau, Alaska. Steaming at a brisk 17 knots, she apparently missed the turn into the harbor and slammed into West Kinahan, one of a group of four islands near the harbor entrance and about eight miles west of the city. The midnight watch was taking over from the night watch at the time.

She hit with "an awful jar" and ended "right up in the trees," one member of the crew recounted.

No one was seriously injured. Within minutes an oil tanker, a pilot boat and fishing boats were on the scene. Passengers were taken off the stricken ferry by lifeboat to the waiting boats, then on to Prince Rupert where emergency quarters were set up in the Moose Hall.

* * *

Throughout Wednesday the Taku remained high and dry on the beach, almost half her length tightly jammed on rock and her bow nudging the trees covering the island.

An oil slick more than three miles wide spread slowly outward from the stranded vessel. A spokesman for the harbor master's office said the slick appeared to be moving seaward and posed no immediate threat to the harbor.

The Taku had taken on fuel at Ketchikan, Alaska, less than 100 miles northwest of Prince Rupert only hours before. With her tanks carrying a near capacity 137,096 gallons of oil, port officials feared they might be facing a major oil pollution problem.

But Wednesday afternoon, the huge oil slick was observed to move away from the vessel, indicating that probably only one tank containing some 19,000-gallons of medium-weight bunker fuel

Iraqis in Jordan Back Guerrillas

● Israeli jets strike on two fronts. Page 12.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Iraq placed its estimated 10,000 troops in Jordan Wednesday under the over-all command of the central committee of the Palestinian guerrilla organizations, Baghdad radio reported.

An announcer, describing what he termed "a massive" protest demonstration in the Iraqi capital, said the move was designed to help guerrillas cope with the situation arising from the acceptance by Jordan and Egypt of the United States proposals for an Arab-Israeli peaceful settlement.

Severe Quake In Iran

TEHRAN (UPI) — A major earthquake struck northeastern Iran early today near the Iran-Soviet border, a Red Cross spokesman said. He said officials feared a heavy loss of life.

* * *

Reports reaching Tehran were sketchy but the tremor appeared centred near the village of Sharabad, 430 miles northeast of the capital.

"We expect a heavy loss of life because most of the villagers live in adobe and stone houses," the spokesman said.

The national earthquake information centre in Rickville, Md., near Washington, D.C., recorded the shock.

* * *

The shock registered a magnitude of 6.9 on the Richter scale of measurement. Scientists at the centre said it was of nearly comparable magnitude to an earthquake in Iran Aug. 31, 1968, that killed 11,000 persons. The quake registered 7.3 on the Richter scale.

Smog Nearing Hudson's Bay

● New York smog emergency deepens. Page 3.

From UPI

The air pollution and smog affecting cities the world around in this July heat wave reaches northward into Eastern Canada, over miles of forest wilderness, almost to the shores of Hudson's Bay.

In Montreal, a pollution investigator quarrelled sharply with the city's official stand that there was no unusual air pollution Wednesday, calling the city's method of measuring it "absolute nonsense," and "a con game."

In Toronto, the pollution problem eased a bit Wednesday after a rainfall.

"The nearest place with clear air is up at Moosonee on Hudson's Bay," said a forecaster at the weather office in Ottawa Wednesday. "The low visibility starts just south of there."

Legal Aid Not for 'Guilty'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A magistrate has criticized lawyers who recommend free legal aid for indigent persons when some are "obviously guilty" of the charges against them.

Magistrate Mike Baryluk said in an interview that "free legal aid should be provided only for person who have a reasonable defence ... who can profit honestly by a lawyer's advice."

Baryluk made the remarks Tuesday after he denied bail to a man charged with possession of stolen credit cards and false pretences, and placed another man on one year's probation and gave him a $50 fine for false pretences. Both men had been advised by their lawyer to plead not guilty and ask for a court-appointed lawyer to handle their case. Bail had also been asked in both cases.

After questioning the first man to determine if he qualified for release until his trial, the magistrate concluded he was guilty and criticized the lawyer's decision.

"The lawyer's duty is not to ask for free legal aid when the accused is obviously guilty." He said the only purpose the procedure serves is "to stall the case for a month" and provide added revenue for lawyers.

"In too many cases it just wastes time and the taxpayers' money," he said.

2,000,000 Sign For U.S. Pullout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sponsors of legislation that would require complete U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam in one year said Wednesday they have collected the signatures of 2,178,687 Americans on petitions supporting their move.

Pilot Soars Into Ocean

When brakes failed on his U.S. Navy A4E Skyhawk and craft veered off deck of aircraft carrier USS Shangri-la "somewhere in western Pacific," Lieut. Bill Belden ejected promptly (left). had been ruptured and that the oil flow had stopped.

The spokesman said the transport department had dispatched a helicopter to spray the slick with an emulsifying agent known as sea-clean.

An oil tanker began pumping out the remaining fuel at 1 p.m.

For a time, the Taku listed heavily to port, but a rising tide shortly after noon Wednesday allowed the vessel to right itself partly.

★ ★ ★

Wednesday afternoon the B.C. ferry, Queen of Prince Rupert, backed up to the stranded vessel, tied up stern to stern and quickly began taking aboard the 73 vehicles and baggage aboard the Taku.

The attempt to refloat the ferry was scheduled shortly after midnight Wednesday, when a 19.3-foot tide was forecast.

The department of public works in Juneau said it had received a report from Captain James Sande, skipper of the Taku, that a preliminary investigation indicated damage was limited to punctured fuel tanks, but some observers reported that the vesel's bottom bow plates appeared damaged.

★ ★ ★

There was no word from Captain Sande about the cause of the accident but harbor pilots said the ferry appeared to have missed a buoy marking the turn into the harbor by about half a mile.

Most of the passengers were in the ship's lounges preparing for disembarkation when the vessel hit.

P. G. Gamertsfelder of Napierville, Ill., said he and his wife were in the middle lounge when the Taku grounded.

"The luggage was beside me on the floor and it kept going but nothing happened. Some little kids were sleeping on the floor and they didn't even wake up.

"There wasn't the least bit of panic. One or two folks got excited but most were very calm."

Passengers were instructed to move to lower decks where they were given life jackets and put in lifeboats for transfer to waiting rescue vessels. Some were taken aboard a large oil tanker by a gangplank.

★ ★ ★

Bill Krasikow, captain of the oil tanker Imperial Nanaimo, first vessel on the scene, said the passengers were rescued without panic.

"We were right behind the ferry when she hit the island," he said later in an interview. "We could see she was headed straight for it. She hit it about the middle.

"I don't know how it happened, but it was pitch black out there."

"We waited for the mayday signal and as soon as we heard it we went alongside and threw up a gangplank. Then the passengers started to come off. There was no panic."

He said the ferry opened the gates from which she usually disembarks cars and many passengers filed out that way.

"We must have taken about 200 passengers aboard and then ran them into Prince Rupert.

"The captain and crew of the ferry had everything under control."

★ ★ ★

In Prince Rupert, passengers were taken to the Moose Hall for coffee, then sent to hotels and rooming houses for the night. Some spent the night in the hall.

Four persons were taken to hospital for treatment of minor injuries or shock, then released.

Those treated included Dorothy Thompson, 52, of Gary, Ind., an injured hand; Nellie Bentley, 56, identified only as from Alabama, shock, and Margaret Powers, 7, from Wyoming, nosebleed.

Many of the passengers were to continue their southbound trip Wednesday night aboard the Queen of Prince Rupert when it departed on a scheduled run to Kelsey Bay on Vancouver Island.

Peace Tower Open Again

OTTAWA (CP) — The Peace Tower on Parliament Hill was reopened to visitors Wednesday following a shutdown caused by a fatal fall.

Prior to the reopening, a public works spokesman said the tower would probably be closed to visitors until Saturday while work to make it more fall-proof was carried out.

Business Silent

Industries was presenting its brief, the question of provincial and federal co-operation in establishing tax levels came up.

Premier Bennett's indication that he would direct his views not to the committee, but to federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson, prompted a retort by Marcel Lambert (PC - Edmonton West). "I suppose after the God-to-God dialogue, we'll hear something about that."

In addition to the forest industry representations the committee chaired by Alastair Gillespie (L-Etobicoke) heard briefs from B.C. Sugar Refining Company Ltd., and three University of British Columbia professors.

Breathing by Mouth Perhaps Not 'Habit'

Your Good Health

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My little girl breathes through her mouth instead of her nose, and there is no reason for this except a habit. This causes her to have a bad breath all the time. Please tell me how to stop this habit.—Mrs. B.E.S.

I grant that the "habit" should be stopped, but before jumping to the conclusion that it is "just a habit," have your pediatrician or a nose-throat specialist examine her, because there could be a cause — enlarged adenoids and tonsils, for one. These, if infected, could also cause the bad breath.

Or is there any other obstruction interfering with easy passage of air through the nose?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 42 and a mouth-breather at night. Could it be possible that my adenoids, at this age, would still be the cause? I've had this problem since an early age. I have tried to correct it but am unable to. I'm very self-conscious about it.—Mrs. M.B.

I strongly suggest examination by a nose and throat specialist to look for polyps in the nose, bent septum between the nostrils, chronic infection or other interference.

□

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will iodine, either regular or white, make moles go away? I have several moles and after several weeks they seem to be drying up, but my legs have ached all the time — I have taken into consideration that I have varicose veins and am on my feet eight hours a day. But it seems worse.—Mrs. J.S.

No kind of iodine will remove moles. If yours indeed "seem to be drying up," then they aren't moles, but are something else.

I can't see why the iodine would have any effect on your aching legs, but since that trouble grows gradually worse with varicose veins, I'd suspect the veins are the trouble.

Change of hand dominance is not recommended. By all means let the little fellow use whichever hand is natural. "Breaking" him makes no more sense than trying to make your husband eat with his left hand.

Lost Hope Behind Bombings

Seattle Mayor Cites Social Problems

By JACK NELSON
Colonist-Los Angeles Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Mayor Wesley Uhlman of Seattle, Wash., linked urban bombings to social problems Wednesday, touching off a lively exchange with chairman John McClellan (D-Ark.) of the Senate investigations subcommittee.

Uhlman told the subcommittee that many bombings "spring directly from the well of hopelessness — the American dream may be unattainable for many members of our society."

McClellan suggested this would mean "anyone who aspired to be president and doesn't realize his dream, would be equally warranted in resorting to such tactics — I don't think we can tolerate that . . . We've got to take a harder line than that."

★ ★ ★

Uhlman said he was not suggesting that bombings were justified, but that frustration and hopelessness lead to violence. For example, he said, the Seattle Opportunities Industrialization Centre is training 400 youths but there is no hope of jobs for them when the training is completed.

When McClellan ridiculed the idea of linking unemployment and other social problems with bombings, Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) interjected that such problems were a factor to be considered, but that it was known that bombings had been carried out by "extremes from the left to the right."

Uhlman said there have been 115 bombings in Seattle since January, 1968. But he said there had been none since a man attempting a bombing was slain by police a month ago.

McClellan, noting the death of the bomber and the fact that firebombing has decreased an estimated 50 per cent since the state of Washington enacted a law last year calling for mandatory sentences in firebombing cases, declared, "That shows that swift and certain punishment is a deterrent."

McClellan, who blamed some bombings on "professional troublemakers going around the country," said one of the persons charged with bombing in Seattle also had been involved in a violent student take-over at Cornell University and that another had been involved in Chicago riots and was a fugitive from a charge of assaulting a policeman.

Maj. N. W. Moloney of the Seattle police department testified that many bombings in the city have been politically motivated. He said persons responsible have been participants in "radical groups such as the Black Panthers, the Students for a Democratic Society and the Seattle Liberation Front."

★ ★ ★

The most common targets of bombings, he said, have been "businesses which have refused the extortion attempts of the Black Panthers; schools such as the University of Washington which has an extensive ROTC program; and construction firms engaged in federal contracts which do not employ Negroes."

★ ★ ★

Police Captain Jose Enrique Sanchez of Puerto Rico testified that the "overwhelming majority" of 59 bombings in Puerto Rico since January, 1969, "have been caused by organized terrorist groups operating with the aid and assistance of the Cuban government."

Army Gets Go-Ahead To Sink Nerve Gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The army has received clearance to ship 418 sealed concrete vaults containing surplus nerve gas by rail to Wilmington, N.C., where they will be taken to sea and sunk beyond the Continental Shelf, Pentagon sources said Wednesday.

The vaults, each about the size of four office desks, will be loaded aboard railroad cars at the Blue Grass, Ky., and Anniston, Ala., army depots.

Each of the canisters contains old M55 rockets armed with deadly gas. The rockets have been surrounded by concrete and then sealed inside heavy steel.

Experts from the army and the National Academy of Science determined last year it was "probably impractical to demilitarize the encased rockets." An independent, scientific group spent a year studying ways to dispose of the gas weapons, and concluded dumping them in the Atlantic Ocean would be the best means.

The operation is to begin this summer, the sources said, after state governors and mayors of cities along the train route are notified.

The army plans to brief members of Congress today on the operation.

Police Stop Victorian's Expo Skate

TOKYO (AP) — A 28-year-old Victoria steelworker left downtown Tokyo Wednesday, trying to roller skate to Expo '70 in Osaka, but police overtook and stopped him, successfully dissuading the man from the attempt.

Tokyo police saw Clint Shaw roller skating in bumper-to-bumper traffic on a downtown street. They chased him in a patrol car and asked him to give up the idea for his own good. It took police five hours to change his mind.

Shaw now plans to travel by train to Osaka, about 320 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Smog Puts New York On Emergency Basis

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twin perils of air pollution and power shortage forced a sweltering New York City to declare the first stage of an emergency alert Wednesday and to cut electric voltage by 5 per cent for the second day.

Mayor John Lindsay warned New Yorkers to "prepare for the banning of all private vehicles from certain areas of the city" if the pollution crisis worsened. The warning came after the air resources department reported that oxidants in the air had reached "unsatisfactory to unhealthy" levels.

It was the 57th day in 1970 during which pollutants have posed an official health hazard. Conditions improved late in the afternoon when a rainstorm accompanied by gusts of wind washed away some of the pollution and major users of electricity were notified that conservation of power was no longer necessary.

★ ★ ★

The blanket of pollution which stretched from New York to Georgia for three days also lifted Wednesday in Washington and Atlanta. But when it was at its worst, the sun was nearly invisible. Tourists atop the 1,472-foot Empire State Building in New York could see only two miles through the yellow-gray smog Wednesday morning.

Chief Flays School System:

Indians and Aliens

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public schools must start letting Indian children retain their identity and take pride in it, a British Columbia Indian leader said Tuesday.

If they don't said Chief Philip Paul, an officer of the B.C. Union of Indian Chiefs, the Indian education program will continue to fail, Paul is chief of the Tsartlip Indian reserve.

"From the cradle until he graduates from high school, an Indian is asked to identify with an alien culture — a middle-class, European culture," Chief Paul told teachers taking a summer course on Indian education at the University of B.C.

"The school system as it is presently set up has a lot to do with the confusion in Indian communities today. There's very little in it that young people can hang onto."

He said an Indian child's upbringing is in no way similar to that of a middle-class non-Indian child.

"Indian people in general encourage the creativity of young people. But when they get into school, they're banged into compartments and forced to fit in.

"The school system is saying, in essence, 'Unless you conform and become like us, we're not going to accept you.' "

Dockers' Strike Halted

LONDON (UPI) — Union delegates Wednesday called off the nationwide longshoremen's strike that has paralysed ~~Britain's ports~~ for two weeks and cost more than $1.17 billion in lost trade. But militant strikers charged a "sellout" and threatened continued wildcat walkouts.

The 82 delegates representing Britain's 47,000 striking longshoremen voted 51-31 to accept a peace package proposed Monday by a government-appointed court of inquiry.

Then they voted unanimously for a return to work Monday.

The settlement gave the strikers an additional $13,200,000 a year in extra pay, overtime, holiday pay and bonuses, but not the 81 per cent hike in the basic pay rate they had demanded.

A Breach of Contract

FOR THE PAST THREE MONTHS Canada's mail service has been so seriously disrupted through rotating walk-outs staged by post office employees at the behest of their union leaders that deliveries in the nation's metropolitan areas are now running up to ten days late.

Nor is it any better in the country's less populated centres. Letters posted in Ottawa have taken as much as 30 days to reach Victoria.

Such an intolerable situation as this cannot and should not be accepted any longer by the Canadian public. In the first place Canadians are entitled—as are nationals of every other civilized country in the world—to use the mails as their major means of communication. Secondly, they are entitled to expect the service, for which they pay cash in advance whenever they use it, to be dependable and reasonably speedy.

If the post office cannot or will not provide this service then it constitutes nothing less than a breach of contract by the government.

The onus for such failure must in the first instance fall upon the postmaster-general, unless he is incapable of operating his department so that it meets its obligations to the public. In this event the prime minister should then accept the full responsibility and take immediate steps to rectify the conditions which have resulted in his government's failure to fulfil its duty to the citizens of this country.

The steps Prime Minister Trudeau must take to bring about a satisfactory conclusion to the present mail holdup are simple:

1. He must fire Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, who over a period of three months or more has proved his inability to cope with the problem;

2. He must issue a directive to all post office employees advising them that if they do not report to work regularly their employment by the post office will be terminated;

3. He must be prepared to utilize Canadian armed forces personnel to make up any shortfall in manpower brought about by initiating the above action;

4. He must introduce legislation to remove the right of postal employees to strike by defining and categorizing the postal department as an essential service; and

5. Having done this and brought about some semblance of a reliable postal service for the country, he should then personally intervene to break up the wage and conditions discussion deadlock now reached between the treasury board and the postal union even if it means cutting through established policies to bring about a just agreement.

If any other course than this is followed, any settlement reached could only at best be one of a temporary nature carrying with it the danger of similar breakdowns in mail deliveries at any time in the future.

Canadians should not be satisfied with anything less than a good, dependable, efficient and economic postal service. It is up to the Trudeau government to see than they get it. And fast.

Could Christ Smile?

IN THE PAST QUARTER CENTURY five nations have independently achieved a nuclear capability. The United States, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union, France and China, in that period, have depeloped weapons even more terrible, a hundred times more devastating than those which destroyed Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945 and put an end to Japan's resistance in the Second World War.

In the next 25 years membership in the exclusive nuclear armaments club could very well be doubled.

Indeed there are many more than five powers that possess nuclear industries and technologies which are quite as broadly based as those in countries whose detonating capacity already has been demonstrated.

A cautiously worded prediction in London's Times says the most likely outcome of this capability within the years of the next generation will be a rapid nuclear weapons proliferation. This is something with which the world will have to come to terms.

It could be assumed that the wider possession of such offensive devices would make the risk of their use that much greater. The danger of an accidental nuclear war would certainly be increased. But The Times rather deviously concludes such a wider ownership would not lead "automatically to a general spasm of destruction between the world's two greatest nuclear powers."

The Times seems to assume that in 25 years there will be no change in the arms status in the world; but it is not improbable that China in that time will have matched the nuclear power of both the United States and the Soviet Union, and even that some other nation—or group of nations such as the United States of Europe—will be among the contenders for honors.

It is also conceivable, says The Times, 'that one of the unexplained by-products of proliferation could be a diminution in the number of so-called conventional battles which have raged unabated in the world since 1945 except where nuclear powers have found themselves face-to-face."

The argument here seems to be that the terror of the potential suicidal overkill of any such collision would put war of such a character beyond acceptance of any but a madman. Unhappily there are too often some of them about.

No representation of a smiling Christ comes to mind. There is nothing in the record available to the average reader to indicate He ever laughed or even chuckled. Jesus wept. Oh, yes. He would find little reason to do otherwise in the world of today nearly 20 centuries later, one dares say.

Asia's Most Dangerous Game — By FREDERICK NOSSAL

Politicians Use Assassins as Their Tools In Relentless Quest for Power and Wealth

ASIANS are great gamblers. They will put money on anything from a fight between two specially bred crickets to the spin of a roulette wheel.

But the riskiest gamble of all is to win political success in Asia. Those who have climbed the long and dangerous paths leading to the rickety thrones of power often find they can not stay there for as long as they might wish.

Most Asian leaders have been, and are today, rulers with dictatorial powers. Parliamentary democracy as practised in the West is still a relatively alien concept in most Asian lands.

The notable exceptions are India and Japan, where political leaders have made genuine attempts to solidify democratic institutions, and have been surprisingly successful at it, too.

But in most Asian lands, including the three Communist countries of China, North Vietnam and North Korea, politicians take power with the idea of staying on top for the rest of their lives.

★ ★ ★

This concept has proved extremely risky down the centuries, and the same is true today. The latest victim is Norodom Sihanouk, once the King of Cambodia.

Sihanouk was king under the French, then abdicated in 1955 following independence in favor of his father, Norodom Suramarit, so he could take up politics. He was prime minister until his father's death in 1960, and then took the title head of state.

The army overthrew Prince Sihanouk on March 18, and the military regome of General Lon Nol has just sentenced him to death on charges of treason, murder and corruption.

But Sihanouk is lucky. He is in exile in Peking, and is alive. The one-time dictator of neighboring South Vietnam, President Ngo Dinh Diem, was not as fortunate.

Diem became president of South Vietnam after the French puppet-emperor Bao Dai was deposed in October, 1955. Diem considered he was the best man to run the Saigon regime, for the next few decades at least.

Others disagreed, including members of the Saigon General Corps. The method of removal, however, was rather drastic. President Diem and his powerful brother Ngo Dinh Nhu were ousted from their palace in Saigon in a coup in Nov. 1, 1963, and were murdered by extremist officers the following morning.

★ ★ ★

The coup had the approval of the late President John Kennedy. The murder evidently did not. Diem was to have been flown out of the country. By a strange twist of fate, Kennedy himself was assassinated less than three weeks later.

One Asian leader who escaped several assassination attempts was former Indonesian president Sukarno, who died of natural causes last month.

Still another victim of an army takeover was Mohammed Ayub Khan, president of Pakistan for more than a decade.

Some Asian dictators, of course, manage to hang on until their death. Marshal Sarit Thanarat seized power in Thailand in 1958, and obviously had six great years as the country's absolute ruler. When he died in December, 1963, a vicious quarrel erupted among members of his family and various mistresses as to how the loot he had accumulated should be divided.

Through public pillage, corruption, wheeling and dealing, and selling jobs in the armed forces and the civil service, Marshal Sarit had built up a personal fortune estimated at between $40 million and $100 million.

Nobody is quite sure just how much Sarit stole. The figure hardly matters. It merely proves that occasionally the unscrupulous political gambler in Asia does hit the jackpot.

President Liu Shan-chi of China gambled in a different fashion. He felt that his boss, Mao Tse-tung was pushing the country towards an economic abyss, and thought he and his cronies in the Communist Party would take over the day-to-day running of national affairs.

★ ★ ★

Liu underestimated Mao's support among the masses and the young people of China. His bid for power in 1965 and 1966 failed. Mao launched the Cultural Revolution, and Liu Shao-chi was buried by the political earthquake that followed.

Liu was stripped of all his posts by Mao and the Cultural Revolution group in October, 1968, and since then seems to have vanished into thin air. Diplomats believe he is still alive, but he has become the typical symbol of a Communist non-person.

Another dictator who never really made the grade was Chiang Kai-shek. Supported by mighty Western allies during the war against Japan and then defeated by the Chinese communists in the civil war, the 82-year-old generalissimo is living out his last years in exile as the ruler of Formosa.

He has been repudiated by most of China's 750,000,000 people, and as such his particular gamble in the grim Asian power game must be considered a failure.

Asia's leaders tend to ensure that elections go their way by using either military or political pressure.

And if the voters let them down, it is usually a relatively simple thing to dissolve parliament. Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew, of Singapore, without doubt one of the most dynamic politicians of Southeast Asia, also resorts to dictatorial measures at times to "maintain stability."

In running the smallest independent nation of Southeast Asia, Lee has a relatively simple task compared to the problems most other Asian politicians face.

Yet he knows that anyone in politics in Asia is playing with fire, and he makes sure that those politicians considered dangerous to the welfare of Singapore (in Lee's view, that is) are either politely told to leave the island or are safely behind bars.

★ ★ ★

Lee Kuan Yew's People's Action Party invariably does well at the polls because it is popular. This is not true of Malaysia's Alliance Party led by Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman. When the ruling coalition did very poorly during elections in May last year, Malay factions engineered riots in which more than 200 persons were killed, most of them Chinese.

This gave the Malays the excuse to dissolve parliament, suspend democratic rule and pass emergency laws. For all intents and purposes, Malaysia has been run as a dictatorship ever since last year's disturbances.

Asian politicians who tend to rely on honor and justice without resorting to the occasional use of force to prove that they have the army behind them, run the obvious risk of being overthrown. One of these is U Nu of Burma.

U Nu's anti-fascist People's Freedom League governed Burma for the first 10 years after independence in 1948. Then there was a split in the party, and U Nu asked the army leader, General Ne Win, to form a caretaker government in 1958.

Elections in 1960 brought U Nu back as prime minister. But having tasted power, Ne Win could not stay out of the limelight.

On March 2, 1962, the army staged a coup, abolished parliament (where U Nu's party had 161 of 250 seats), suspended the constitution and imprisoned most of the cabinet.

A so-called revolutionary council of senior army officers under General Ne Win today runs Burma. U Nu, who was subsequently freed from jail and sent into exile, is now seeking support abroad in an attempt to overthrow Ne Win and restore democratic rule in Burma.

General Ne Win, General Suharto of Indonesia, General Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam, General Lon Nol of Cambodia, General Park Chung Hee of South Korea, General Yahya Khan of Pakistan, and Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn of Thailand are military leaders who for the moment seem to be holding the winning cards in the eternal Asian poker game.

They are all gamblers. They know the rules of the political power play in Asia and its many dangers. One or two false moves, a run of bad luck, even more daring gamblers who are prepared to stab them in the back at the risk of their own lives — and the thrones they hold so dear crumble beneath them.

Ottawa Offbeat — By RICHARD JACKSON

Federal Government May Have the Message Over-Burdened Taxpayer Ready to Rebel

PERHAPS Prime Minister Trudeau's participatory democracy works, or maybe it's just that the taxpayers are getting smarter, and definitely more concerned.

Whatever it is, they're beginning to get through to the federal decision-makers.

Those who pay the bulk of the taxes — the big majority in the middle $7,500 to $15,000 income bracket — seem to be smartening up because they're beginning to show increasing evidence of understanding what's going on with government collecting and spending of those taxes.

★ ★ ★

Listening very carefully in the hushed air of the summer quiet here on Parliament Hill, you hear a whispering playback of growing awareness in the cabinet that the taxpayers have had enough.

The prime minister and his men have been working on the long-promised White Paper on Welfare.

In the works is some form of built-in minimum income, pension and general welfare increases costing something approaching $2 billion — repeat billion — more than the current bill already topping a substantial $3 billion.

While to Health and Welfare Minister John Munro $5 billion may be not a nickel too much, there are other and stronger voices in the cabinet warning that the taxpayers won't stand still for it.

And among those voices, murmur the whisperers carrying tales out of cabinet, is the prime minister's.

And that would seem to take care of it.

There likely will be nothing approaching that proposed $2 billion increase.

But the bill will go up — in the name of social justice, and rightly — to carry the cost of desperately needed increases in pensions.

The grossly over-taxed middle income group already was in danger of having it socked to them — and still is — with the heavier tax load in prospect with the White Paper on Taxation, and the coming compulsion for everyone to pay, need it or not, unemployment insurance.

It has been the middle income backlash against the White Paper on Taxation that opened a lot of Ottawa eyes — and minds — to the new fact of political life: that people are a lot smarter than some of the politicians and almost all of the senior bureaucracy thought they were.

When Finance Minister Edgar Benson's resident intellectuals initially produced his White Paper, it was assumed that the document was simply too complicated for the taxpayers to even begin to understand.

The finance minister's departmental academics — many of them committed to the proposition that income is earned only to be "redistributed," as their phrase goes for sharing the rewards of other people's work — contend that only such "experts" as themselves are qualified to discuss the White Paper.

From long conviction in their own infallibility they argued that only "specialists" who studied the White Paper "in depth" from an established working background in taxation could have anything meaningful to say.

Like so many senior civil servants, the telling alike of taxpayers and governments — and making it stick — was an established way of working life.

So seldom have the deputies, the mandarins, been doubted, much less seriously questioned, theirs has been the wisdom almost automatically accepted by a succession of governments since the days of Mackenzie King. After all, governments come and go, but the bureaucracy is self-perpetuating.

And for a time that's the way it was with the White Paper. Submissively it was accepted by business groups and individual taxpayers that they should say nothing without being led by the hand through the jungle of the White Paper by tax experts in consultation with lawyers and accountants.

Then suddenly it dawned on people that it wasn't necessary to be professionally knowledgeable in all the fine print of the White Paper to be able to ask good, searching questions and challenge some of the basic thinking of Benson's brainstormers in the White Paper.

And then did the flack go up and the fallout come down!

On proposals for capital gains taxes on private homes, taxes at big corporation rates on small business, on tax evaluation of anything and everything in the home!

It turned out, to the horror of the resident socialists around Benson, that the paying public wasn't so dumb, even if a bit numb, that it didn't instinctively sense that the White Paper was a working paper on how to over-tax the over-taxed.

So now the backoff is quietly under way, not because the government, encouraged by the bureaucrats, still doesn't simply love over-spending, but because it knows that over-taxing can lose it the next election.

And it knows, because the MPs, and especially the cabinet ministers, have got it straight from the taxpayers.

I Beg to Differ . . . — By FRANK LOWE

Where's Grandmother Gone?

THE other day, as I watched a flock of kids romp out of a school to signify that school was over for another year and summer was officially here, I began to wonder if there were any old-fashioned grandmothers around today to help make summer the memorable experience it should be.

I mean, today grandmothers seem hard to find. I am sure they exist, but they are not easily recognizable.

They are stylishly slim, they never have grey hair and not one of them looks as though she lived in the country — and knew how to cook for a grandson.

Perhaps I am maligning grandmothers. But in my day all good grandmothers lived in the country on lovely old farms which were a delight to visit, if one was young, that is.

And a grandmother's sole role in life, as far as I could see, was to make sure that her grandson, after suffering from malnutrition in the nasty town or city all through the school year, should be properly fed during the summer months.

I was exceptionally fortunate. I had two grandmothers when I was growing up. One lived in a small village, which in the days of sail had been a bustling little port.

All day I could play around the crumbling wharfs, crawl through some of the old ships that still were there, beached in the mud and disintegrating a little more each year, or listen to some of the old men tell me what it was like to ride the trade winds down the curve of the world.

But, best of all, there was my grandmother. And her kitchen.

That kitchen was a big, sunny place perpetually filled with wonderful smells. On the top and in the oven of the huge, iron wood-and-coal stove there were always several things baking, boiling, stewing, roasting or steaming.

★ ★ ★

A fellow got more nourishment out of taking a couple of deep breaths in that kitchen than he can now from eating an entire, modern meal.

This particular grandmother was convinced that all growing boys were perpetually on the verge of starvation and that pie was the answer to all problems.

She was, in fact, one of the most sensible women I have ever met. And when she baked a lemon pie, well, the only polite thing a grandson could do to show his appreciation was to ask for seconds, and even thirds.

My other grandmother lived on a small farm. Out front was an orchard and in the early morning, when the rising sun was burning off the mist, you could sit quietly on the front porch and watch the deer come out of the nearby forest to breakfast on apples.

Nobody ever bothered the deer. Heck, there were enough apples for them, and for us, too.

Then, after the mist had completely cleared, my grandmother and I would go out and pick the mushrooms that had popped up overnight. So our breakfast would be mushrooms, fried in home-made butter, on toast, made from home-made bread.

If you can think of a better way to start the day, from an eating standpoint, I would like to hear about it.

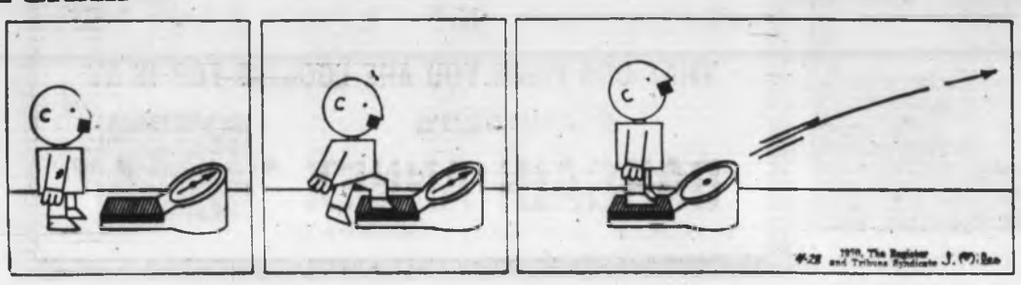

Naturally, every old-fashioned grandmother realized that a growing grandson needed a snack prior to going to bed.

So in the cool of the evening, in the proper season, we would go out and pick a pail of blueberries. Then, back in the kitchen, I would fill a big porridge bowl with the fresh-picked berries and then drown them in thick Jersey cream, supplied that very evening by our very own Jersey cow.

That's the way it used to be. Perhaps, in some places, it still is. But I have a hunch, now that we have become mainly an urban nation, that for the most part today's grandmothers live in city apartments and, to compound the horror, are just as careful about calories and balanced diets and the rules of nutrition as an ordinary mother.

More's the pity.

Realistic Reasons Again Paraded to Justify Naval Aid from Britain

South Africa West's Southern Bastion

By STEPHEN SCOTT, from United Nations

As a hullabaloo erupts over possible British sale of arms to the South African navy, the John Vorster regime is giving the same answer it has been giving for years:

South Africa is the anti-communist bastion of the West south of the equator — the only dependable and stable ally of NATO between South America and Australia.

In effect, it is saying: Put aside feelings about our racial policies and remember that the Soviet Union and China are making inroads in the new African countries and the Soviet navy is building its strength in the Indian Ocean.

* * *

It says that the Cape of Good Hope sealanes are as vital to Europe as they are to South Africa; in fact, South Africa could withstand their loss better than others.

South Africa took upon itself the role of defence of the southern hemisphere against communism in the last decade. But it had been largely a voice in the wilderness as it cried its warnings about the Soviet naval build-up.

* * *

The warnings were largely discounted in London and Washington. Some Americans considered Pretoria downright hysterical. Experts said the Soviet lines of support were too long to be a danger in the area.

* * *

The Labor government of Britain went along with UN resolutions banning arms to South Africa. It declined even to give equipment to keep naval vessels in top shape as provided under the Simonstown agreement.

The great ally of South Africa was the British Conservative party while in opposition.

Vorster

Calls for a reversal of Labor government policy were frequently made by Sir Alec Douglas-Home, now foreign minister in the new Conservative government and the man who recently started a new storm by announcing that Britain is considering sale of arms to the South African navy.

* * *

His reasoning was that the sealanes are essential to Britain, particularly as Middle East oil comes around the Cape.

South Africans have been amazed that the non-communist world has not seen the danger.

Vorster said last year that his country was prepared to fight alone to defend the sea route on her own behalf and on behalf of the rest of the world. He said the Communists realized the importance of South Africa in relation to the sea route.

* * *

North America and Europe would suffer even more than South Africa if the route was closed by Soviet submarines, he said.

"We should suffer, but our economy is so far advanced that we should be able to keep going for a very long time."

Pretoria says Western Europe would lose the 40 per cent of its oil needs that is shipped around the Cape, mostly in supertankers, now that the Suez Canal is closed. It would also lose food.

* * *

Even if the Suez was opened, the presence of a large Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean would make the Cape route safer.

Putting together several statements from South African officials and newspapers this Red peril emerges:

- The Soviet fleet can use harbor facilities in Somalia and Aden, where there is a Russian harbor master.
- The island of Zanzibar, part of Tanzania, is a "communist stronghold." The Chinese are building a naval base at Dar es Salaam on the Tanzanian mainland.
- The Soviet Union and China are attempting to gain influence among new African states, hoping to cut Africa from east to west and isolate largely white-controlled southern Africa. In this regard Congo Brazzaville has a Marxist government and there is fear of Chinese influence in Tanzania, with only the Congo-Kinshasa dividing the two coastal states.
- Soviet trawlers, "spy boats" to some, patrol the African coast. Other vessels are stationed in mid-Indian Ocean.
- The Cape sea routes are "teeming" with Soviet submarines.

South Africa failed last year in efforts to interest Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay in a south Atlantic defence alliance.

It seeks South African involvement in NATO.

* * *

Commandant Gen. Rudolph Himestra said recently that it is "stunning" that the NATO powers do not realize the extent of the threat of Soviet hopes for world domination.

"The fact that Russia has began to overflow its walls necessitates a review of Atlantic alliance strategy.

"In the whole area from Australia to South America, South Africa is the only fixed point offering naval base facilities and a stable industry and government."

The Financial Gazette of South Africa said recently that the Cape sea route is a vital lifeline of NATO.

* * *

"How long will it be before they (Soviet submarines) cut this lifeline which is defenceless — except for South Africa's awareness of the danger."

Defence Minister P. W. Botha put it another way:

"We are the guardians of the gateway to the East — from Europe around the Cape — and we hold this in trust for the free world."

Indian Ocean Russian Sphere

By ALAN TRENGOVE
From Melbourne

One of Australia's leading defence experts believes that the United States and Britain may be prepared to accept tacitly that much of the Indian Ocean is a Russian sphere of influence.

His theory follows the sharp left turn of Ceylon, with the possiblity of Russia establishing a naval base there, and the new agreements between Mauritius and the Soviet Union.

* * *

Dr. T. B. Millar, professor-relations at he Australian National University, and an adviser to the Australian government, expressed his point of view in an paper on strategy and defence.

"No one would wish to see a continuing, competitive escalation of Soviet and American naval forces in the Indian Ocean with the possibility of confrontation," he said.

* * *

"One could perhaps interpret American statements and actions, however, as implying an acknowledgment that they are prepared to concede in some parts of the area a superior Soviet interest or even sphere of influence; in other parts, they may seek to coexist.

"Although in the eastern Mediterranean, the United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) allies have greater strength, they do not extend that strength to the south and southwest. In the northeast of Africa, and in the Persian Gulf area, there is no indication that the United States will contest Soviet initiatives.

* * *

"In India and Pakistan, the United States is the most important supplier of non-military aid, the Soviet Union of military aid: it is hard to say which affords greater influence although one can for a period fight a war without money whereas one cannot fight it without arms.

"The United States has interests in the Malaysia-Singapore-Indonesia area, but will presumably not dispute gradually increased Soviet interest or influence there.

* * *

"The Soviet Union may well prefer to see the United States bearing much of the burden of containing China, but will have to consider the alternative if American disengagement becomes more nearly total.

"The Soviet Union no doubt wants to establish a firm claim to be considered an Asian power, as a means of gainig access to Afro-Asian councils, and as well to convince the Asian countries that it can be a valuable ally in opening up new policy options for them."

* * *

Whether the countries in the region wish any of these alternatives to occur or not, "there may not be very much they can do about them," Millar says.

There was very little reaction in the United States or in Britain and France to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 — largely because the spheres of influence theory was largely accepted with regard to Europe.

Now, Millar implies, a similar course of strategic evolution may be taking place in the Indian Ocean and Southern Asia.

"Spheres of influence are highly convenient arrangements for the major powers concerned. They may contribute to over-all stability. They can be less congeniant, perhaps, to the small states so disposed of," he said.

Belgium Split May Lead To Bloodshed

By HAROLD KING, from Brussels

The linguistic quarrel between Dutch-speaking Flemings and French-speaking Walloons in Belgium is coming to a new and dangerous climax in which — for the first time — the authorities are not sure that bloodshed will be avoided.

A few months ago, the government had found what it thought was an all-round acceptable solution — with autonomy in education and the disposal of government revenue for economic projects in Flemish hands in Flanders, in Walloon hands in Wallony, and jointly-shared responsibility in Brussels.

But the plan was torpedoed in the last minutes of parliament by the French-speaking wing of the socialist group of Brussels. The reason is simple: Brussels is 85 per cent French-speaking, and wishes to stay that way — if not go the full hog and become a 100 per cent Francophone.

Flemish agitators say that in Brussels "French is spoken in the shops and Flemish in the kitchen," hinting at a down-trodden Flemish proletariat. But nothing could be further from the truth, as my frequent visits to Brussels bear out.

Flemish is a language which on the continent of Europe has no future. French is a gateway to a career. This is the choice parents have who wish their children to get on in life.

Since the compromise plan for a joint administration of Brussels failed to get the two-thirds parliamentary majority required for a constitutional change, the Brussels' French langauge papers, which are naturally the big majority, have been lashing out at two things:

Giving the Flemish a 50 per cent voice in deciding the political and economic fate of an 80-per-cent French-speaking majority, and refusing to include in the Brussels area the new suburbs in which, like in the capital itself, the French-speaking element is constantly growing.

True but Irrelevant

The Flemish reply with intense passion that not only these suburbs but Brussels itself is inside the Flemish language area. This is true, but singularly irrelevant to the realities of the situation.

The presence in Brussels of most of the Western and European international bodies, including NATO and the Common Market, make the case for pushing French as the dominating language all the stronger.

The common-sense line is all too clear, but common sense is a lady of reason with little voice in this quarrel.

"The Battles of Brussels has started," one editorialist writes without hesitation and, as far as I could ascertain in numerous talks and interviews on the spot, without any exaggeration.

"You are assassins and abortionists, you have stangled at birth an acceptable plan for a settlement," Jan Van Eynde, vice-chairman of the Belgian Flemish Socialist Party, shouted at Lucien Outers, a leader of Francophones of Brussels.

The Flemings are organizing a big protest march on Brussels, which some say will bring 100,000 excited Flemings into a city already charged with high-voltage political and linguistic electricity.

"Fine," retorted Walloon leader Outers, "we shall be there to give you a suitable welcome."

Behind this passionate hostility lies a long history in which the centuries-old domination of the French language plays a part, but the real root of the quarrel is that the Flemings have become a numerical majority and also the prosperous part of Belgium since the Second World War.

Monarchy in Peril

Add to this that during that war the Germans released all Felmish prisoners of war but kept the Walloons behind barbed wire, that a number of Flemings played the German game, and you have an explosive situation.

It may end up by sending King Leopold and his queen into exile, and ruin the flourishing capital of Brussels — which outwardly shows no sign of trouble and is one of the centres of growing prosperity and international liveliness in Europe.

One of the wisest men in Belgian politics is Paul Van Den Boeynants, prime minister of the preceding government and member of parliament for a Brussels constituency.

He summed up the issue to me as follows: "The Flemings want cultural autonomy and an equal share in the government of Brussels to prevent the progressive disappearance there of the Flemish language.

"For Brussels, the issue is to remain the real capital of Belgium, to transform its 19 administrative units into a single big-city administration, to obtain the freedom of every head of a family to send his children to any school (French of Flemish) he thinks suitable and to preserve all the economic chances of Brussels."

In Brussels, the Flemish extremists are fighting the incoming tide. Flemish families coming into Brussels find their children 10 years later more at home in French than in their mother tongue, whereas French families moving into the neighboring Flemish suburbs stick to their French.

Maddening for the pro-Flemish enthusiasts, but true. The question now is: Can the quarrel be settled without bloodshed?

Salazar

Portugal Gambles Poverty For Riches

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI News Analyst

Flags fluttering at half mast in memory of former premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar marked the end of an era which had covered nearly 40 years.

It is a tribute to Salazar's tenacity that Portugal remains one of the great colonial powers controlling lands 20 times the size of metropolitan Portugal.

* * *

The Portuguese don't call them colonies — in Africa Mozambique, Angola and Portuguese Guinea. They call them provinces, as much a part of Portugal as any province.

Portugal whose annual per capita income of around $400 makes it the poorest country in western Europe.

Each year defence of the African provinces consumes 45 per cent of the Portuguese budget, or around $400,000,000. But if Portugal can hold out the payoff could be enormous.

* * *

Despite skimpy or no relations at all with such African nations as Zambia or the Congo, both continue to ship their copper via Angola's Benguela railroad.

Both give short shrift to any guerrillas who interfere with this railroad commerce. A leader of one such guerrilla band who dared to break the unwritten rules, was shot.

* * *

Angola has oil in enormous quantities, enough to erase completely the fears of white-controlled Rhodesia and South Africa that some day they might be cut off from oil.

American Gulf has invested $125,000,000 in Angolan oil and other American interests are investing in a vast cattle raising program.

In Mozambique and Angola hydroelectric projects costing nearly $1 billion either are in the building or planning stage. They will be the biggest in Africa.

Festival Facing Police Cleanout

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — The state's attorney said Wednesday night police will be ordered into a ski resort of clear out about 4,000 young persons gathered for the Powder Ridge Rock Festival.

The festival, scheduled to begin Friday, has been banned by court order, but rock fans began streaming into the festival grounds anyway.

Vincent Scamporino, the state's attorney, said he has ordered the owner of the ski resort, Louis Zemel, to cut off all power, water and electricity.

"By tomorrow, he wants everybody off the property, and us to cease all services," Zemel said.

Festival promoters, who are appealing the court order, said Tuesday night that the gates of the concert would be open and people began to arrive Wednesday without interference from authorities.

Earlier in the day, Zemel ciriticized the festival promoters for inviting rock fans to come to the affair despite the order.

"The gates are not theirs to throw open," Zemel said.

Manson Murder Trial

'Bones Were in Way When She Stabbed'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With actress Sharon Tate and four others dead less than 24 hours, Charles Manson led a band of followers on an erratic, utterly random foray, Linda Kasabian testified Wednesday. The state claims it ended with the murders of market owner Leno LaBianca and his wife.

Mrs. Kasabian testified that it was not until she saw television program the following day that she knew the victims were Miss Tate, 26, who was pregnant, and the so-called "beautiful people" in her coterie.

★ ★ ★

After leaving the Tate house, Mrs. Kasabian said she and her group drove off and 'Katie complained that her hand hurt."

"She said when she stabbed, there were bones in the way and she couldn't get the knife through." "He said we are going out again tonight, that last night was too messy and that he was going to show us how to do it," Mrs. Kasabian said.

After driving at random, Mrs. Kasabian said, she stopped the car in the Pasadena area in front of a one-storey residence.

She said she let Manson out of the car to case the place, then returned and picked him up.

She continued: "Charlie told us that when he walked up to the house and looked in the window he saw pictures of children on the wall and he couldn't go in, he couldn't do it."

The course eventually led, Mrs. Kasabian said, to the home of an acquaintance of hers and she told Manson: "Charlie, you're not going to that house, are you?"

★ ★ ★

"He said no, I'm going next door," Mrs. Kasabian testified. She said he left the car after putting some sort of object in his trousers. The witness said he returned within a few minutes and added:

"I heard him say there were a man and a woman up at the house and that he had told them not to be afraid, that he wasn't going to hurt them."

The state contends that on his visit to the house Manson tied up LaBiance, 44, and his wife Rosemary, 38, and that they were slain later Aug. 10, 1969, the night after the massacre at the Tate mansion.

Mrs. Kasabian said Manson ordered two girl disciples and a male lieutenant, Charles Watson, 24, out of the car, instructing them to go to the house and then hitchike home.

"Did he say anything to them about the killing:" asked Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi.

"I'm not positive, but it keeps ringing on my head that he said don't let them know you're going to kill them," Mrs. Kasabian replied.

Two defence lawyers were ordered jailed Wednesday for contempt of court.

Irving Kanarek, 51, who objected to virtually every prosecution question, was cited for interrupting a witness. Ronald Hughes, 35, was cited for using an obscenity during a conference at the bench.

Superior Court Judge Charles Older ordered both lawyers to jail, saying they would have an opportunity to confer with clients at night and in the morning.

Killings Lead To Suit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A $2,000,000 suit was filed in federal court Wednesday against hippie cult leader Charles Manson and four of his followers charging the wrongful death of Voityck Frykowski.

Frykowski was one of five persons murdered in the secluded Benedict Canyon home of actress Sharon Tate.

The suit was filed on behalf of Frykowski's 11-year-old son, Bartyk. The youngster, who is not an American citizen, lives in Poland. The suit charged that the death of Frykowski deprived the youngster of support, love, guidance and inheritance.

The federal court suit defendants included Manson, Charles Watson, Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Linda Kasabian.

Nude Scene Spurs Suit

BOSTON (AP) — Motion picture director Otto Preminger has been served a court summons involving the alleged filming of actress Liza Minnelli in the nude in a cemetery. The summons, charging desecration of a burial ground, requires Preminger to appear in court Aug. 26. The incident was said to have occurred last summer at Blue Hills Cemetery in Braintree, where Preminger and Miss Minnelli were making Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon.

Pollution Charged

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Suits were filed by the U.S. government Wednesday against two pulp firms accused of discharging mercury into the Columbia River and Puget Sound.

Weyerhaeuser Co., operator of a mill in Longview, and the Georgia-Pacific Corp., which operates a mill at Bellingham were sued under the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899 which prohibits the dumping of refuse into navigable waters.

Russians 'Fishing, Fishing'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three large Russian draggers were spotted Tuesday hauling in a massive catch of fish from international waters 40 miles off Pachena Point on the southwest coast of Vancouver Island.

The draggers were located and observed by a Vancouver Sun reporter-photographer team which flew over the vessels in a chartered aircraft the same day the Canadian government was lodging a protest with Russia following a weekend collision between one of the Russian ships and a small Canadian troller.

"There they were — well out in international waters but fishing, fishing, fishing.

"Their paint was salt-streaked and chipped and they plowed through the sea on their continuous harvest — the determined foray along Canada's continental shelf that has led to repeated brushes with the Canadian salmon trolling fleet.

"One labored with drag lines taut as it towed its immense net.

"Another was in the act of bringing its net in — the folds packed with fish as the net was winched up a ramp that led to the waterline through a deep-well cleavage in the ship's stern.

★ ★ ★

"The third worked nearby, presumably processing a recent catch because there was no net in evidence and the sorting cribs on deck were clear.

"There was nothing legally wrong with what we saw them doing, well out past Canada's 12-mile limit."

Detailed Report Sent In

MONTREAL (CP) — D. C. Connor, president of Kerr Steamships Ltd., said Wednesday his company has sent a detailed report to Moscow on Canadian reaction to the latest Russian-Canadian, fishing-boat scrape off the B.C. coast.

Kerr is the North American agent for Soberflot, the state fishing corporation of the Soviet Union.

From Bea Wright

"What causes a cake to fall?" . . . "When I opened a jar, it hissed at me. Why?" . . . "How long can I keep canned foods?" These are just some of the questions we are asked by homemakers. Here are our answers.

WHAT CAUSES A CAKE TO FALL? Usually if too much sugar, fat, baking powder or liquid is used. Undermixing or insufficient baking, too low an oven temperature, or moving a cake during baking before it has "set" also may be the reason.

WHAT CAUSES A CAN OR JAR TO HISS WHEN IT IS OPENED? Simply that because there is a vacuum in the container, when the air rushes in it fills the vacuum and makes the hissing sound.

HOW LONG WILL CANNED FOODS KEEP? Indefinitely, if nothing happened to the cans to cause leaks.

IS IT SAFE TO LEAVE UNUSED CANNED FOODS IN THEIR CANS AFTER THE CANS HAVE BEEN OPENED? Yes, it is safe if you cover and refrigerate the can, just as you would store any other cooked food for future use.

WHAT IS THE BEST WAY TO KEEP DRIED HERBS AND SPICES? In jars with tops which can be screwed on tightly and stored in a dry cupboard away from steam from cooking.

Recipe

APRICOT PIE

Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry dough. Mix sliced apricots (2½ to 4 cups) with 1½ cups sugar (to taste), 1½ tbles quick cooking tapioca, little lemon juice and rind. Allow to stand for ½ hour. Brush pastry dough with slightly beaten egg white, place mixture in pie shell, heaping fruit toward the centre. Moisten edge of pastry with cold water and adjust the top crust, crimping edges and cutting several vents for steam to escape. Bake at 425F for about 20 minutes, reduce temperature to 350F and bake 25-30 minutes or until fruit is tender and the crust is done.

delay the hearing for two hours Wednesday while he met privately with union and company representatives.

This was to deal with the industry's claim that isolated strike action at Tahsis and in the Vancouver local would end any possibility of progress at the hearings.

★ ★ ★

Arriving suddenly for the private session at the University of B.C. was Bonner, who is now chairman of FIR and vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

After the private meeting, Nemetz resumed the hearing and announced that FIR president John Billings and IWA regional president Jack Moore had agreed to try and resolve the separate strikes.

Highly-placed union sources who were not at the private meeting, said Billings had threatened to initiate a lockout and that Bonner had been called to the scene as a result.

"What they did was call Billings' bluff and something had to be done about it," one union official said.

★ ★ ★

No one offered an outright denial of this view.

"I really have nothing to say about that," Nemetz told the Colonist.

He did say that Bonner had been called in to discuss "a number of problems."

Anyone saying Bonner was there specifically to help prevent a lockout would be "jumping to conclusions," Nemtz said.

"You can't really pin it down to any one issue."

When the question was put to him, Bonner referred to Billings' earlier statements that the industry would not tolerate harassment of individual firms.

"This has been a long-standing principle," he said.

He added that developments in recent days had raised the possibility of "industrial reaction," but said:

"Because the hearings have resumed and because both parties have addressed themselves to the problems that exist, the situation calls for no public statement on my part."

Another 200 men walked off the job at Weldwood of Canada Ltd. in Vancouver Wednesday. Others had left another company plant earlier.

Union sources said the second walkout was in support of those involved in the first.

★ ★ ★

Further complicating matters, according to union officials, is the fact that the industry has launched two damage suits against the IWA Vancouver local as the result of work stoppages.

Such actions are a threat to peaceful settlement and the union will take any action it deems necessary in "protection of our interests," Vancouver local president Syd Thompson said.

He added: "As far as we're concerned we want a settlement without striking and we're prepared to wait till Mr. Justice Nemetz hands down his report. But these court cases are posing a threat."

Billings has told the hearings that union demands of $1 an hour in increases on a base rate of $4.12, plus other benefits, would cost the industry an estimated $98,000,000.

In connection with the Tahsis dispute, Walter Allen said the union's local committee would meet with management today to make arrangements to "get the mill started."

The membership had agreed at a meeting Wednesday to return to the job.

He said many of the workers were holidaying in other parts of B.C. and that "they should be making arrangements to get back immediately."

"Management has said people will be taken back on the job as they report for work — maybe not in their own particular jobs to start with, but they'll be taken back on just so that no one will be left sitting around with nothing to do," Allen said.

★ ★ ★

The workers walked out July 20 saying they were supporting tradesmen involved in the province-wide construction dispute.

However, they were in a position to do so legally because the IWA had long since served 72-hour strike notices to all operations.

Another 500 to 600 loggers were laid off because of the mill shutdown.

The company's operations were halted completely when 500 men struck at the Gold River pulp mill. They are not IWA members, but belong to the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada — a union that took strike action against seven pulp and paper mills last Friday.

★ ★ ★

An attempt to resume talks failed and fear has been expressed that this will be a long strike, the rest of the pulp and paper mills in the province could be in for a similar fate. Two international unions — Pulp-Sulphite and the United Papermakers — had called a strike for last Wednesday at 10 mills, but this was postponed for at least 10 days when the province appointed a mediator.

Carpenters will begin voting today on recommendations brought down by Deputy Labor Minister William Sands in the construction dispute.

Hillarys Surmount Fuji Jam

FUJIYOSHIDA, Japan (UPI) — Sir Edmund Hillary, the first conqueror of Mount Everest, climbed Japan's sacred Mount Fuji Wednesday, but said the pedestrian traffic was too heavy.

Hillary and his wife, on her first mountain-climbing expedition, walked to the 12,389-foot top of Japan's highest and most famous peak.

"The actual climbing itself was not hard," the New Zealander said.

Mercenaries, Cambodians Drive for Captured Plateau

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — More than 3,000 Cambodian troops spearheaded by U.S.-trained mercenary shock troops launched a massive drive Wednesday to retake the Kirirom Plateau southwest of Phnom Penh in mountains dividing the capital from its vital seaport of Kompong Som, military officials said.

A 1,700-man South Vietnamese regiment occupied a cement plant complex 50 miles south of the plateau and apparently was poised to join the fighting if necessary, officials in Saigon reported.

Cambodia also asked for U.S. air support in the battle but there was no immediate response, officials said.

Only light ground action was reported in South Vietnam. American B-52s hammered suspected enemy positions along the Laotian and Cambodian borders in the South Vietnamese central highlands.

On the political front, President Nguyen Van Thieu said Tuesday there would never be a coalition government in South Vietnam as long as he was in office.

In Paris, the Viet Cong renewed a bid to open private talks with the United States, apparently as part of their effort launched last week to promote a coalition government as the only solution to the war.

The fog-shrouded Kirirom Plateau fell to the reds Tuesday after two battalions of government troops who occupied it began running out of food. An estimated regiment — 2,000 men — earlier seized the only helicopter landing zone on the plateau, cutting off supplies.

Banker, Police Away, Two Nab $40,000

ECKVILLE, Alta. (CP) — Two armed men with stockings over their faces held up the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Wednesday and escaped with cash estimated by bank officials at $40,000.

Police established roadblocks around the town, 30 miles west of Red Deer.

They said employees of the bank were accosted by two men who were inside the building when they arrived for work. One of the pair carried a revolver and the other had a sawed-off rifle.

The bank manger, who lives in quarters at the rear of the building, and the town's constable, were both on holidays.

Contract Signed

PENTICTON (CP) — An eight-week strike by civic workers in this Okanagan city ended Wednesday with signing of a new two-year contract providing a spread-out 18½ per cent wage increase.

There was an immediate announcement that work would resume today, with double shifts going to work on a backlog of jobs on streets and in city parks. Lifeguards were to appear at city beaches.

MacMillan Keeps Advance Going

Brenda Mines Moves Ahead at Vancouver

VANCOUVER — British Columbia copper stocks made the big moves in a day of moderate trading.

Brenda at 10⅝ was up 1.60, while Valley Copper advanced .30 to 9.40. Also higher among mines was Giant Mascot up .15 at 3.00. Speculative issues made small gains.

Oils were mainly higher with Bison advancing .15 to 2.60 but United Bata was off .05 at 3.00.

Industrials were mixed with Kaiser and PWA among the losers. MacMillan rose .75.

Relapse for Oils

TORONTO (CP) — Except for oils prices were mixed to higher in active trading.

Volume was 2,480,000 shares, compared with 2,685,000 Tuesday.

Analysts said a weakness in western oils was caused by profit-taking from recent sessions of advance. In the previous two days, the western oil index jumped a total of more than 15 points.

Largest gains were in industrial mining, merchandising, paper and forest and pipeline sectors.

Losing sectors included banks and oil refining.

Among gaining stocks, Noranda was up 1½ to 28¾, Nabors 1⅛ to 11⅞, Dome Pete 1 to 53. MacMillan Bloedel 1 to 25¾, Chrysler 1 to 22, Inco 1 to 40¼, Alberta Gas Trunk ⅞ to 44 and Occidental Pete ¾ to 16⅞.

Gunnar Mining was down 15 cents to $1.35.

Papers Fare Best

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices closed sharply higher except banking issues which slumped at the close of busy trading.

Led by papers, up 2.50 on index, the market posted its highest levels of the month. Industrials rose more than one point while utilities and papers were up nearly a point. Banks fell more than one-and-a-half points.

The bullish close by papers was highlighted by MacMillan-Bloedel, up 1⅛ at 25⅝, and was accomplished despite analysts' predictions that the pulp and paper industry would be hurt by the unpegging of the Canadian dollar last June.

Senior mines and oils also were strong. Dominion Petroleum jumped 2⅝ to 53, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines 2⅛ to 56, Inco 1 to 40⅝, Rio Algom ⅞ to 19⅝, Asbestos ½ to 28 and Aquitaine ¼ to 21¼. Denison slipped 1½ to 26 while Pacific Petroleum was off ⅝ to 25⅝.

Noranda moved up to 28¾, a gain of 1⅝.

Highlighting other gains were Dominion Textile, up ⅞ to 12, Bombardier Ltd. ½ to 14½, DuPont ⅜ to 17, CPR ⅝ to 54, Dofasco ⅝ to 21 and Bell Canada ¼ to 43¼.

Bank of Nova Scotia rose ¼ to 18 and Royal Bank slipped ⅝ to 22.

Modest Gain Posted

NEW YORK (AP) — The market posted a modest gain despite some price erosion that occurred in the afternoon session.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished ahead 4.11 points at 735.56.

Analysts generally attributed the upsurge to internal market factors.

Gains were posted by mail-order and retail, electronics, metals and chemicals.

Prices on the big board included General Cable, up 1⅝ at 18⅞; American Electric Power, off 1⅛ at 25; and Telex, off 1⅛ at 12⅛.

Appliance Sales Hit By Belt-Tightening

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians held back on purchases of major household appliances during the first half of 1970, causing a decline in sales of 7.8 per cent to 904,000 units from 981,000 in the corresponding period of 1969.

Figures released by the Canadian Appliance Manufacturers' Association show the sales slide was led by built-in electric ranges, with 5,300 purchased in the first six months of this year, down 44.7 per cent from 9,600 in the same period last year.

Sales of wringer washing machines totalled 87,900 during the first half of this year down 29.9 per cent from 125,400 during the first six months last year.

Chairman F. R. Johnson of the CAMA says June statistics indicate some improvement from the declining market which began last September.

He predicts a significant improvement in sales "when the consumer becomes less reluctant to purchase big ticket items . . . because of the current economic uncertainty."

Major household appliances include refrigerators, freezers, kitchen ranges, dishwashers, washing machines and clothes dryers.

For CP Air Executive Jet Passengers CP Hotels

Baggage Service.

With this new service you don't have to wait for, worry about, or even carry your baggage.

As a CP Air Executive Jet passenger you can check your baggage right through to the Royal York Hotel in Toronto or the Palliser in Calgary.

Here's all you do:

1. Check in at the CP Air counter in the airport you depart from.
2. Say you're staying at the Royal York or the Palliser.
3. When you arrive in Toronto or Calgary, you can go directly to the hotel and we'll look after your baggage for you, or,
4. You can actually register into the hotel from the airport by giving the girl at the special CP Hotels Airport counter your All-The-Way baggage ticket. When you arrive at the hotel later, your baggage will be in your room.

How's that for service!

For room reservations check any CP Air ticket office, travel agent, or your telephone directory under CP Hotels.

Canadian Companies Make Good Showing

Business Topics

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

"The Thing that impresses and surprises me most at the present time is the good showing that has been made by leading Canadian companies in the so-called depressed first half and second quarter of 1970," said one local investment dealer Wednesday.

He believed it was these better-than-expected reports which was acting as a tonic to the Canadian stock market.

In many cases profits as well as sales were higher than a year ago. With some other companies where sales had grown there had been a squeeze in profits, but "that was only expected."

In some industries, such as those engulfed in labor strife, and those hurt by the drop in home construction, there had been more severe erosion in sales and profits, but generally these results had been discounted in advance by the stock markets.

"In the past few days we have seen some very genuine new investment buying", he added. "Investors are clearly cheered up by the half-year reports, and among the heavily depressed stocks — such as MacMillan Bloedel, International Utilities and some of the oils — the recovery has been spectacular in the extreme."

He singled out the Bell report with its increase of more than 20 per cent in net earnings in the second quarter as being "a cheering statement for the investor."

The steel and mining companies were others that had stood up to the belt-tightening of the economy remarkably well, he added.

●

CIF BUYS ENERGY

Even the conservative Canadian Investment Fund was in a buying mood during the second quarter when stock prices were moving lower.

CIF in its quarterly report to shareholders said it had invested nearly $2,500,000 in common stocks during the period, and had moved into energy stocks in place of more defensive investments.

"We bought stocks which we think represented usual value, particularly at the depressed levels that prevailed in the last half of May", said CIF.

Some of the bigger purchases in the period by CIF were 44,000 shares of Rio Algom Mines; 26,000 shares of Union Gas; 20,000 shares of Trans Canada Pipe; 13,000 shares of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas; 50,000 shares of Consolidated Bathurst, and 15,000 shares of Bank of Montreal.

□

STORM STILL BREWING?

"We are in for more rough weather," says the Bank of Montreal in its July Business Review.

But, it adds, if the fight against inflation continues to make significant progress, "the downturn should be neither deep nor prolonged."

So mebbe we should put on a safety jacket, just in case.

PANARCTIC'S NEW CHIEF

The first full-time president of Panarctic Oils Ltd. is Charles Hetherington, assistant to the president of Westcoast Transmission.

His appointment to the huge consortium of oils, mining and exploration companies in which the Canadian government owns 45 per cent, was made out of 100 applicants for the post.

Hetherington will guide the activity of Panarctic, whose main objective is to explore the mineralization of Canada's Arctic Islands.

Hetherington came to Canada from Oklahoma City about the time of the Leduc discovery that put the Canadian oil industry on its feet. He is 50.

□

BELL PULLS AHEAD

Although it recently sought a 6 per cent increase in local service rates, Bell Telephone of Canada reported increased net income for the second quarter ended June 30.

The net earnings of $34,538,000 (92 cents a share) compared with $26,842,000 (76 cents) in the corresponding period of 1969.

The company said it would be able to manage for the rest of the year under its current rate schedule because it had restricted investment in new service facilities.

It added, however, that if by next year it is not able to offset the recent rise in costs, it would have to make further substantial cuts in planned construction expenditures of an essential service nature.

□

SALES WERE RECORD

Record sales and a slightly higher net profit were announced by Union Carbide Canada for the six months to June 30.

Net earnings at $5,969,000 (60 cents a share) compared with $5,875,000 (59 cents) in the corresponding period a year ago.

Sales of $98,021,000 were a record and exports increased by 71 per cent to $11,044,000.

Ottawa Grain Drain

Prices Same Despite Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will absorb a $60,000,000 loss on sales of 1968-69 Prairie grain but pay farmers the same initial prices for their wheat, oats and barley in the crop year beginning Aug. 1, it was announced Wednesday.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, said that about 480,000,000 bushels of grain, including 350,000,000 bushels of wheat, will have been exported in the crop year now drawing to a close. This is an increase of more than 100,000,000 bushels of grain over the previous crop year and about 45,000,000 more bushels of what, including flour.

Free Dollar Clouts Pulp, Paper Giant

LONDON (CP) — Don Ryder, chairman of Reed Group Ltd., said Wednesday the freeing of the Canadian dollar's exchange rate and its subsequent rise in value have dealt the London-based company "a totally unexpected blow."

The Canadian dollar's present rate would mean an annual loss of $4,000,000 in sales revenue to Reed's pulp and paper interests in Canada, Ryder told the firm's annual general meeting.

B.C. INCLUDED

The mills in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia "rely greatly on sales into the United States, while in other areas prices are nearly always based on the U.S. dollar," said the Reed chairman.

"Thus the May 31 freeing of the Canadian dollar and its subsequent rise in value against the U.S. dollar means considerably lower Canadian dollar sales receipts," he explained.

Ryder said that every one-cent variation between the Canadian and U.S. dollar represents $500,000 a year in sales revenue to Anglo-Canadian pulp and paper mills "and a like amount to our British Columbia interests."

SALES REVENUE DIPS

"At present the variation is four cents up on the previous fixed rate, representing an annual rate of loss in sales revenue of $2,000,000 to Anglo-Canadian pulp and paper mills and $2,000,000 to Prince George Pulp and Paper and Intercontinental Pulp together," he said.

"Any strengthening in the position of the U.S. dollar would quickly resolve or eliminate these losses, but in the meantime there is the risk that the Canadian government might peg the exchange rate which at this moment is still floating."

PROFIT FIRM

Excluding International Publishing Corp., acquired April 2, Reed's pre-tax profits have been maintained at the same amount for both Britain and overseas in the quarter ended June 30, Ryder said.

He noted, however, that "the freeing of the Canadian dollar exchange rate did not occur until towards the end of the quarter."

After deduction of long-term loan interest and depreciation, Reed's profit before taxation during the quarter was £5,300,000 ($13,250,000) compared with £4,400,000 ($11,000,000) in the same period of 1969.

Ex-Tycoon Jailed

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S. federal judge Wednesday imposed a two-year prison term on Lowell Birrell, ruler of a one-time financial empire.

The 64-year-old Birrell could have received four years but Judge Frederick Van Pelt Bryan gave him credit for two years he spent behind bars in lieu of bail on his return from Brazil in 1964.

The defendant was convicted on charges of conspiracy and wire fraud in using fraudulent stock certificates of a drug products firm as collateral for a $5,000 loan from the First National Bank of Cincinnati.

Israelis Strike Twice

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli warplanes struck Wednesday across the Egyptian and Jordanian fronts while the government of Premier Golda Meir faced the threat of a government walkout by hawkish Gahal party members if Israel accepted the U.S. Middle East peace proposals. Ground fighting was also reported on the two fronts.

The Arab world was also sharply divided over the plan submitted by State Secretary William Rogers to "stop the shooting and start the talking."

★ ★ ★

Elsewhere:

● In Paris, the French government formally endorsed U.S. efforts to achieve a negotiated settlement at a cabinet meeting in the Elsyee palace.

● Diplomatic sources in London said UN mediator Gunnar Jarring planned to begin new peace soundings early next month if Israel joined Egypt and Jordan in accepting the U.S. proposals.

● The London Daily Express said Soviet jets flown by Russian pilots shot down an Israeli Skyhawk in a dogfight over the Suez Canal last Saturday. An Israeli military spokesman said "we have no information on this subject."

★ ★ ★

Israel reported its planes attacked Egyptian positions along the Suez Canal for the 69th day in a row. It also said one Israli soldier was wounded in exchanges of gunfire across the waterway.

Israeli planes also swept across the Jordan River to blast three Arab guerrilla bases in northern Jordan in retaliation for guerrilla attacks on Israeli settlements, a spokesman said. He said all planes returned safely.

Touchy Shamrocks Lose Tempers, Two Points

Victoria Shamrocks compounded a sloppy display with a rash of misconduct penalties Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

When the tedious evening was over, Vancouver Burrards had a 15-7 victory for their second win over the Victorians in two nights and left Shamrocks needing New Westminster help if they are to have a playoff chance.

This was a match they had to win. Their slump has left them four points behind the vastly improved Coquitlam Adanacs in the battle for the last playoff spot with only seven games remaining.

Three of the remaining games are with New Westminster next week and if Adanacs can continue their play against Salmonbellies this week and Vancouver next, Victoria's season could well be over before the last 14 days of the schedule.

Ranjit Dillon, Shamrocks' leading goalscorer, missed his second straight game with an internal disorder. Goalkeeper George Grover, who has moved to Nanaimo, had work commitments and hard-checking Tom Black is out for the season with knee problems.

Burrards never left the issue in doubt in handing Victoria its fifth straight loss since an upset win over New Westminster two weeks ago.

Next game: Tonight — Coquitlam at Vancouver.

It was 5-0 before Charn Dhillon finally beat Don Hamilton at 16:28 for Victoria's only goal of the first period in a disappointing start which left the 1217 fans in a surly mood throughout the match.

NO MOOD FOR MIRACLE

After their disappointing start, Rocks came back a bit in the second period to enter the final stanza down 5-12. They were not in the mood for a miracle this time.

Chippy play was their theme and by the time the game was over, Bill Spotswood, Dennis Somner and Mike Beaulac had left through misconducts and Frank Alexander had waited out a 10-minute misconduct penalty.

There were also three fights bringing the penalty totals to 41 minutes for Vancouver and 105 minutes for Victoria.

POOR SHOOTING

Hamilton, who held the Victorians to the lowest total of the season in Tuesday's 11-3 triumph in Vancouver, made several good stops Wednesday but was helped considerably by Shamrocks who continually ignored the corners for his body.

Tom Somner was the only other Rock to beat Hamilton in the first half of the game as Burrards rolled to an 11-2 lead.

He, Al MacLean and Nirmal Dillon, who took over the team points lead from his brother by scoring a goal and two assists, were the steadiest Victorians.

WIRTANEN CALLED

Dave Wirtanen, called in to action as a replacement for Doug Thompson after the ninth Vancouver goal, performed well in the Shamrock net.

Art Dickinson and Gord Frederickson enjoyed the slack Victoria defence the most each scoring three goals.

Stampeders Explode After Dismal Start

CALGARY — Calgary Stampeders, after a dismal first half, exploded in the second Wednesday to whip Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 34-10, in the opening Western Football Conference league game for both clubs.

Trailing 1-10 at the half, Stampeders didn't get their first down until four minutes into the third quarter and it came on a penalty. But from there on, they demolished the Bomber defence.

It appeared that Winnipeg would run away with the contest as they picked up 10 first downs in the opening half but they managed only 10 points and when quarterback Jerry Keeling got hot, Calgary charged into the lead and poured it on.

Keeling completed three touchdown passes, two to flanker Gerry Shaw and one to Herm Harrison. Harrison also caught a touchdown pitch from rookie quarterback Larry Lawrence, who replaced Keeling late in the fourth quarter.

OTHER SCORERS

Hugh McKinnis got the other Calgary touchdown and Rudy Linterman, replacing place kicker Larry Robinson, was good on three of five convert attempts and booted a 75-yard single on the opening kickoff.

Robinson missed the contest after 200 consecutive league and playoff games because of strained knee ligaments.

Quarterback Wally Gabler scored Winnipeg's only touchdown on a 15-yard run and Gene Lakusiak kicked a 23 yard field goal and converted Gabler's touchdown.

HELTON STARS

One of the best players on defence for the Stampeders was left-tackle John Helton from Arizona who caught Gabler a number of times for crucial losses.

Helton nailed Gabler for a 21-yard loss in the third quarter which put the Bombers on their own two. After Ed Ulmer punted the ball from deep in his own end zone, the Stampeders came right back when Keeling and Shaw combined for a touchdown on a 59-yard pass-and-run play.

FIRST HEAD

The successful pass appeared to dampen the Bombers' enthusiasm, as the Stampeders took the lead for the first time in the game, 14-10.

From there on it was no contest.

The Bombers, who haven't defeated the Stampeders at McMahon Stadium since the 1965 playoffs, lost all-star Phil Minnick, a defensive linebacker, in the third quarter.

Minnick appeared to hurt his right knee.

TWO INTERCEPTED

Keeling completed 13 of 23 passes for 252 yards. He had two passes intercepted, both by safety Paul Brule. Lawrence was good on one of three attempts for 12 yards. Peter Francis intercepted one of Lawrence's passes.

Gabler completed six of 20 passes for 72 yards and rookie Ron Johnson from Oklahoma State University was successful on four of eight attempts for 32 yards.

Ticats Edge Riders Despite Fumbles

OTTAWA (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats lost the ball four times on fumbles in the final quarter but still managed a 17-15 win over Ottawa Rough Riders Wednesday night in the Eastern Football Conference 1970 opener.

Riders, under rookie quarterback Gary Wood, failed to take advantage of numerous breaks resulting from Hamilton's miscues and opportunities given them by their own strong defence.

COFFEY SCORES 11

End Tommy Joe Coffey caught an 11-yard pass from quarterback Joe Zugar for a touchdown and also kicked a field goal, a single and a convert for the Tiger-Cats.

Willie Bethea got the other Hamilton touchdown on a third-down run from the Ottawa three-yard line.

Fullback Jim Mankins banged over from one yard out for Ottawa's only touchdown.

Ivan MacMillan was good on two of four field-goal attempts and also kicked two singles and a convert.

A crowd of 23,094 watched Tiger-Cats dominate the game both in rushing and passing. But they committed a total of five fumbles and also had three passes intercepted.

The game was played in a near-80-degree temperature.

CAUGHT SIX PASSES

Bill Starr, a tight end Hamilton acquired from Montreal Alouettes, caught six Zuger throws for 118 yards. Coffey caught four for 65.

End Billy Cooper was a favorite target for Wood, catching five throws for 99 yards. Halfback Dave Fleming was the game's best rusher, with 60 yards on 13 carries for Hamilton. Mankins was Ottawa's best on the ground with 48 yards on 10 carries.

Bob Swanson outdueled Brian Pearce Wednesday night as Lake Cowichan consolidated its hold on third place in the Victoria Major Men's Softball League with a 1-0 win over Denford Electric at Central Park.

Swanson, in winning his 13th game, scattered four singles, struck out seven and did not walk a batter while Pearce struck out four and issued two bases on balls, and allowed three hits.

Two of the three singles off Pearce came in the first inning when Pat Shepherd hit safely, took second on a wild pitch and reached third base on an error. Ralph Branting's single drove in the only run of the game.

Pete Isaacson had two of the four hits off Swanson.

Anderson, Smith Capture Features

A pair of Rays captured the main events in figure eight stock car and foreign stock races at Western Speedway Wednesday night before a sparse crowd of 639, kept down because of the threat of rain.

Ray Anderson took the figure eight feature despite spinning out in the 15th lap of the 20-lap race. Wally Allison, who finished second to Anderson, charged to the front after the mishap and led until the 19th lap when he spun out to give the lead back to Anderson, who won by a car length over Allison.

Rollovers by Tony Burrows and Dallan Schultz in the main race caused restarts. Neither driver was injured seriously.

In the foreign stock 20-lap main event, Ray Smith withstood two challenges to win by a half a car length over Roy Passmore.

Ross McIntyre, who knocked down the track record for foreign stocks to 16.24 seconds for the approximate one-fifth mile, an improvement of .04 seconds on his own record of a week ago, made the first charge at Smith, giving the winner a race from the 10th lap until the 15th when McIntyre's engine blew. Then Passmore made a run for the lead but Smith hung on for the victory.

Stamps Deadly Once They Got Going

It took Calgary Stampeders a long time to get going last night against Winnipeg Blue Bombers but once they did, they were deadly. The Calgary defence lacked lustre in the first half but they took control and dumped Bomber ball-carriers with authority such as Frank Andruski used to belt an unidentified Winnipeg player. Bonds, Weatherman Check Mets' Drive to First Place

Bobby Bonds found time between the rain to spark San Francisco Giants to a 4-2, comeback victory Tuesday over New York Mets.

Bonds drilled four consecutive hits including a pair of homers as Giants prevented the New Yorkers from moving into a first-place tie with Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

His first home run cut New York's lead to 2-1 in the fourth inning and Giants received a reprieve when a thunderstorm, which struck while Mets were at bat in the fifth inning, subsided and play resumed after a delay of an hour and 42 minutes.

TWO-RUN BLOW

Bonds then connected in the sixth inning for his 17th home run, a two-run blow which touched off a three-run inning off relief pitcher Rich Folkers.

Donn Clendenon had given Mets their lead with a run-scoring grounder in the first inning and his 13th home run in the third.

Cincinnati Reds, runaway Western Division leaders, helped the Mets by stopping the Pirates, 4-3, on Pete Rose's two-run single in the sixth inning.

Gary Nolan picked up his 14th victory against four losses with relief help from Clay Carroll and Wayne Granger.

Chicago Cubs closed to within four games of Pirates when Billy Williams, John Callison and Randy Hundley hit home runs in a six-run first inning that carried the club to a 9-2 victory over Houston Astros.

Cubs stole six bases in the game, a league high this season.

Hank Aaron helped Montreal Expos break a last-place deadlock with St. Louis, driving in five runs with his 27th and 28th homers in Atlanta Braves' 9-7 comeback win over the Cardinals.

Rusty Staub's 17th homer gave Expos a 4-3 victory over San Diego Padres. It was the first hit in 13 trips to the plate for the outfielder, who robbed Ollie Brown of a home run with a spectacular catch in the sixth inning and caught Al Ferrara off first base for a double play.

Carl Morton, 14-6, set an Expo record with his fifth straight win — a four-hitter.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers scored six unearned runs in the fifth inning with the help of two miscues on fly balls to romp to a 10-3 victory over Kansas City Royals.

Victoria Blanks Surrey

BURNABY — Right-hander Glen Wallis allowed only one hit and smashed his second home run in two days as Victoria All-Stars blanked North Surrey, 5-0, in the Zone II Colt League baseball tournament Wednesday.

Victoria now meets undefeated Vancouver Fraserview-Collingwood and must beat them twice to qualify for the B.C. championship which starts on Aug. 7 in Port Coquitlam. The teams play tonight and, if necessary, Friday, starting at 6:30.

Wallis struck out 10 batters and allowed two bases on balls. Derek Fuller scored two of the All-Stars' runs.

And It's Not Deductible

What Price Fame? Why $15,000!

OTTAWA (CP) — Help keep Bobby Orr in Canada. Don't write to him for an autographed picture.

The Commons' finance committee was informed this week that the young National Hockey League defenceman for Boston Bruins, spends more than $15,000 a year sending autographed pictures to his fans.

The point being made by Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, was that Orr cannot deduct his autographing costs from his income tax — one of several regulations under Canadian tax law that the Toronto lawyer said may send NHL players skating to the United States in search of a larger net income.

The committee is hearing briefs on the government's white paper proposals on tax change.

Eagleson estimated that more than $3,000,000 is earned annually in the United States by hockey players who make their permanent home in Canada.

Because of the inability of these players to write off expenses such as autographed pictures, gift tickets and personal appearances, many players might move to the U.S. where expense allowance are easier, he said.

Cougar Directors Accept Purchase Offer

Pending approval of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, a group headed by Eric Bishop of Calgary will take over ownership of Victoria Cougas on Sept. 1.

Sale of the club was announced at a Wednesday press conference attended by president Bill Ferguson and of the Cougars and Harvey Ghitter, lawyers representing the purchasers.

Terms of the sale were not disclosed but it is believed that the offer accepted was for $50,000 in cash.

Sports editor of the Calgary Albertan and a well-known Western Canada football announcer, Bishop started tentative negotiations for the Victoria club after he had been stymied in his bid for Kelowna Buckaroos.

That happened at the annual meeting of the BCJHL, held in Kamloops in June. Bishop arrived at the meeting believing he was about to become the new owner of the Buckaroos and attended the first meeting in that capacity. However, it was learned later that control of the Kelowna club had been obtained by Jim Piggott of Saskatoon.

Bishop took up an offhand suggestion by Ferguson that he purchase the Victoria club and negotiations which followed were culminated Tuesday night when shareholders voted to accept the bid made by Bishop.

Acceptance of the bid had seemed in doubt. Reid had been actively opposed and Ferguson announced at the meeting that the club directorate had been reluctant to recommend the acceptance of the bid.

However, he said, the pressures at the administrative level, increasing since the club was assured of eventual entry into the Western Canada League, made up too big a load under the present setup, and at the end directors were unanimous in recommending the sale.

Only one shareholder, holding 100 of the 6,250 shares, voted against the motion to sell.

Bishop attended the Tuesday meeting to make his pitch in person but had to hurry back to Calgary to broadcast tonight's Western Conference football game and was unable to be present at the press conference. Ghitter said that Bishop intends to take up permanent residence in Victoria.

Bishop will likely assist in the managerial department but the contract of manager-coach Ron Maxwell, hired a month ago by Cougars, will be honored and he will continue his duties.

Training camp is scheduled to start Sept. 8 with between 65-75 players in attendance.

RED SMITH

It will win no medals for originality to observe that although figures don't lie, liars can figure. Not that anybody around here is going to suggest it was a liar who drafted the chart of proposed pension benefits which owners of National Football League clubs sent out to their players the other day. Not even Allen Miller, the players' attorney, made that charge. He only said the figures were "misleading."

No doubt it was in perfectly good faith that the owners said they were setting up a pension plan which would pay a retired linebacker $59,940 a year in his serene Septembers.

What they meant was that if a 21-year-old bachelor of arts made the Washington Redskins this fall, kept his sideburns short and his health long enough to play through 1985, and then sat still until 2014 A.D., he would then begin collecting $4,995 a month provided that in the intervening 44 years there had been no change in the economy of the world, the business of professional football, or the climate of the north temperate zone.

If the rookie were to reach the age of 65 and discover there wasn't quite as much sugar in the pantry as he'd been promised back in 1970 — well, his employer and their actuaries and Pete Rozelle would all be dead by that time and there wouldn't be anybody around to blame.

Meanwhile, we can only speculate about the owner' motives in releasing those fascinating figures to the press on the eve of a negotiation meeting with the Players' Association and Federal mediators. Surely it couldn't be a bid for public sympathy in the sports world's latest capital-labor dispute.

It is inconceivable that sportsmen like Wellington Mara, Art Modell, and George Halas would try to put their players in an unfavorable light by asking the fans: "What do you think about the greedy creep who isn't satisfied to make thirty, forty grand a year from the day he gets out of school and then spend his retirement cruising the Greek Islands on his yacht?" Almost inconceivable, anyway.

To be sure, there are owners in the league who haven't been over the course often enough to establish their form as Mara, Modell, and Halas have established theirs. How can we guess, for example, which way Leonard Tose will jump in any given situation? Indeed, there has been recent courtroom testimony that Leonard's best friends and partners haven't got a book on him.

Leonard Tose is the Philadelphia trucking tycoon who moved in as proprietor of the Eagles after the previous owner, Jerry Wolman, tapped out. When he offered $16,000,000 and change for the team, he did nothing to correct the impression that he was using his own money. He didn't even set the NFL straight, even though the league demands that a prospective purchaser submit the names of al his backers for approval.

Taking charge last year, Tose hired Pete Retzlaff as general manager, got a new coach, and was running things to suit himself when three friends hit him with a lawsuit, saying they had put $1,842,000 into the club. They wanted an accounting and they wanted a partner's voice in the operation.

Leonard said shucks, he didn't know they wanted to be partners he thought they had come up with that bread just because they liked him. It turned out that one of his backers didn't even like football.

★ ★ ★

That one is John F. Connelly, president of Crown Cork and Seal, who staked Leonard for $1,500,000. John J. Luviano, executive vice-president of Crown Cork, put up a quarter-million, and the third plaintiff is Connelly's son-in-law, Thomas A. Riley.

Connelly testified that Tose promised to consult him on "significant matters" but never gave his backers the time of day. In fact, Connelly said, their investment didn't even entitle them to sit in the rain and watch their team lose. It seems there was another loan of $8,000,000 from the First Pennsylvania Company, and until that was paid off the backers would have to buy tickets like anybody else.

Connelly said that was okay with him because he wasn't interested in football and didn't want to watch the lousy games anyhow.

★ ★ ★

So it goes in Pete Rozelle's one big happy monopoly these days. Win some, lose some, and sometimes you're rained out.

Lions Welcome Whisler, Study Battered Lineup

VANCOUVER — The arrival in town of veteran defence end Bill Whisler was about the only welcome news for British Columbia Lions Wednesday as they surveyed their list of injuries.

Whisler wasted no time in reaching Vancouver after being cut by Toronto Argonauts to whom he had been traded by Winnipeg Blue Bombers on the weekend. And he was welcomed with open arms.

He is expected to suit up for the Lions next engagement — against the Bombers in Winnipeg on Tuesday.

So is Jim Evenson, the outstanding running back who missed the game against Saskatchewan.

MEDICAL DISPUTE

Evenson was suspended Tuesday in a dispute over whether he was medically fit to play.

Club doctors, the Lions said, declared him sufficiently recovered from a July 3 appendectomy to play but Evenson's doctor said he should rest for one more game.

Under the new CFL player contract, a medical mediator will be called in at Evenson's expense to settle the argument. The dispute should be resolved by Tuesday.

The suspension actually helped Lions reach the 32-player limit by Tuesday's deadline. Greenard Poles and Mack Lamb were cut earlier in the day.

SIX INJURED

Coach Jackie Parker, with quarterback Vidal Carlin, defence tackle Garrett Hunsperger and flanker Tom Cassese all on the 30-day injured list and Dave Easley out with a knee problem, had more worries after the game.

Six players were helped from the game and three of the injuries caused concern.

Halfback Charlie Brown suffered a hyperextended knee and will probably miss several games while Gerry Herron, with a torn knee cartilage, and defence back Ward Smith, with a sprained ankle, may be sidelined.

Tackle Max Huber suffered a knee injury and backs Lovell Coleman and A. D. Whitfield were both "knocked crazy", according to Parker but aren't expected to miss any games.

CONTINUE EFFORTS

Lions officials continued efforts Wednesday to convince former-Ottawa Rough Rider star Vic Washington to join the club to play out his option year.

Suspended by the Riders, Washington was transferred to B.C. on Tuesday . . . but hopes of him joining the club appear dim.

Washington signed a two-year contract with Ottawa at the start of the 1968 season. Under league rules he must play a third, or option year of his contract unsigned in order to become a free agent.

He has made it clear that he wants to play for San Francisco 49ers of the NFL and wants no part of Canada but Lions' general manager Denny Veitch said Wednesday, "We'll sign him or we'll suspend him. It's that simple."

But that won't help the Lions where they need help the most — on the field.

CRTC Cable Restrictions Do Not Include Victoria

An application to the B.C. Lions is all that Victoria Cablevision Ltd. needs to do to obtain closed-circuit coverage of the Lions' remaining seven home games for its customers.

Clarification of the problem which has long been a vexing one to football fans among cable television subscribers started Wednesday with a telephone call from Leslie Millin, a regional representative for the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

Temporarily based in Ottawa, Millin, a former Victoria newspaperman, called The Daily Colonist to inform that the CRTC had no objection to cable television coverage of the Lions' home games in Victoria.

"The matter," Millin said, "is strictly one between Victoria Cablevision and the Western Football Conference. Our blackout cablevision restrictions do not include Victoria."

Denny Veitch, general manager of the B.C. Lions, confirmed in a following telephone conversation that home games played by his club are now available for Victoria Cablevision.

Veitch informed that there was some uncertainty until the CRTC ruling on cable television came out about 10 days ago.

It specified that there could be no cable coverage within 75 miles of a city which had a television blackout of its home games. However, Veitch said, this had been anticipated by his club and other WFC clubs agreed to make a special provision for Victoria, which is approximately 40 miles from Vancouver.

"They agreed to accommodate the unique situation as regards Victoria and the games are available. All that is needed is for Victoria Cablevision to apply to us. We would then make the necessary arrangements with the rights-holder, which in this case is CHAN-TV (Channel 8)."

Veitch said coats were "up slightly" over last year, which was a blackout year for Victoria Cablevision subscribers although the games were available.

Les Curran, president and general manager of Victoria Cablevision, was reported out of town and unavailable for comment.

Rain Delays Tournament

LAKE COWICHAN — Rain Wednesday forced postponement of the B.C. Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 15-year-olds.

The games will be played today, weather permitting, with Kelowna and New Westminster scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. and the two undefeated teams in the seven-team, double-knockout tournament, Saanich Evening Optimists and Nanaimo, scheduled to get under way at 6:00.

Defending-champion Vicettes assured themselves of no worse than a share of first place in the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League on Wednesday by defeating Cablevision, 6-1.

It was the second victory in two days over Cablevision, moving Vicettes into a share of the lead with the losers, who completed their schedule with the game.

Vicettes need no more than a tie tonight in the final league game against Tudor House at Central Park (6:30) to claim the title.

Rosemary Fuller scattered eight hits for the victory.

Greaves Movers clinched third place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League on Wednesday, scoring the only run of the game in the top of the seventh inning to defeat second-place Transport Workers.

The win moved Greaves four-and-a-half games ahead of last-place Imperial Esso, who have only three games remaining.

Les Brice, who had two of the eight Greaves' hits, picked up the victory in a pitching duel with Bob Mabee when Bob Moysey singled, advanced to second on an error to Mabee, moved to third on a groundout and scored on Dave Rivers' single.

St. Hilaire

Driver-President Reshapes Speedway Group

By LORI WELLS

Last June, a major change was effected in the local racing fraternity, as the two clubs racing at Western Speedway amalgamated to form one unit known under the name of the larger club, Vancouver Island Track Racing Association (VITRA).

With the uniting of the two clubs, an election of officers was held. The results came as a surprise to many when Harvey St. Hilaire, a stock-car driver and a member of the smaller club, was elected first president of the unified club.

At the time of the amalgamation, Harvey, along with many others, felt that there were some areas of racing that were due for a change. It was for this reason, when a group of fellow club members asked him to run as their candidate for the office, he consented.

In the election, he found himself pitted against two veteran racers, who were also former VITRA presidents, John Biggs and Fred Best — tough opposition in any race. But after the final votes were tallied, it was Harvey who stepped to the podium, as leader of the club that now consisted of more than 450 members.

LATE STARTER

Harvey had always had an interest in racing, but it was not until he served as crew member on a car owned and driven by his brother-in-law, Basil Wells, that he decided to drive. At the age of 28, he climbed behind the wheel of a race car for the first time.

A healthy competition spurred the two on for the balance of the first season and into the second, and it was Harvey who emerged victor in the family battle, when he earned the No. 9 position in the stock-car division last season — three places ahead of Wells.

Early in 1969, Harvey's work as a construction superintendant took him to Vancouver. All of last season, he commuted each weekend to compete at Western Speedway. Last March, he took a position in Victoria, moving his wife Donna, and seven-year-old daughter Tina here, to enable him to become more active in local racing.

So far this season, he has proved most competitive, twice scoring main-event victories in the stock-car division, but during his last race, disappointment struck the crew of the No. 9 car. Harvey was fourth in point standings to that point, and it was championship racing — which meant that all points in the main event would be doubled. In the trophy dash, the engine blew.

BUSY REBUILDING

Chief mechanic and builder of the car, Ron Barker, along with the crew of Rob Kennedy, Ron Drewery and Bob Simpson plan to rebuild for this weekend of racing, but the loss of points means that they are faced with a real challenge to get "their car" back in a position/ot be a contender for the No. 1 spot.

Despite the problems he is experiencing at the moment with his own car, it has not effected his official duties. Harvey has been busy making plans to revise the club constitution, along with changing many of the former methods of keeping records. He is also encouraging each racer to take an active interest in club and track problems, and welcoming their suggestions for improvements.

On the track, Harvey St. Hilaire may display his talents as the challenging and flamboyant driver of the No. 9 stock car, but many hours of his day are spent as a hard-working club representative — one who holds sportsmanship and fair-play as his ideals — and won't settle for less, in his wonderful world of racing!

At Western Saturday

Late-Model Stocks Return

Late-model stock cars will return to Western Speedway Saturday after a four-week rest. They will be competing in a 35-lap main event for the July Cup. The trophy was won last year by Gary Kershaw.

Points-leader Ross Surgenor will be out to increase his commanding lead over Larry Walker and Rick O'Dell, who are currently in second and third spot.

Stock cars (jalopies) will also be on hand to compete in a second 35-lap race for the Roy White Memorial Trophy, which was won last year by the now-retired Mel Marshall.

Earl Pollard holds a four-point lead over Jim Gicas. Third spot is held by Gary Madden, winner of the mid-season championships, just nine points behind Pollard.

It will also be "Kids Night" — with all children under 12 being admitted free.

Times trials start at 7 p.m. racing at 8.

Cubs Acquire Joe Pepitone

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Pepitone, who has been under suspension by Houston Astros for the last week for failing to make a road trip with the club, was picked up on waivers by Chicago Cubs Wednesday to fortify their pennant drive in the National League East.

Pepitone, 29, a former New York Yankee Golden Glove Award winner at first base, had been squabbling with the Houston management most of the season over an assortment of issues.

Student Agencies Pressed in Finding Jobs

School of Hard Knocks

By BROCK KETCHAM

Two employment services for Victoria-area high school students are having difficulty tracking down enough summer jobs and a third service has given up trying.

Student Ken Reeve, spokesman for Mount Douglas Community Services at Mount Douglas high school in Saanich, said girls are lagging behind the boys in finding work.

"It's too bad," Reeve said. "There doesn't seem to be much call for housecleaning and things like that in our area."

Reeve said about 50 students initially left their names with the organization when the high school service first began in June.

★ ★ ★

He said most of the 50 for whom jobs were found were boys and most have had at least one job since the summer first began.

Reeve said the 30 students who are still looking for work are mostly girls looking for jobs such as housecleaning, sewing, ironing and babysitting.

But, he said, "Most boys who really wanted work were able to find it through our organization."

"Any boy in Victoria, even university level, will be able to find work in Victoria if he wants it badly enough," he said.

★ ★ ★

Reeve said many of the boys for whom the organization has found work are working in restaurants, on tugboats and with the forestry department.

"I have painted houses, rooms in houses, plumbing, gardening and moving furniture so far this summer," Reeve said. He said he also works part-time at a Saanich restaurant.

Reeve said the students charge $1.50 an hour for most work and 75 cents an hour for babysitting. "However, if we have to bring our own equipment, such as lawnmowers, we charge $2 an hour," he said.

Meanwhile, the Oak Bay junior high youth employment services has found full-time and part-time summer work for 50 students since its inception June 20.

Terry Morton, spokesman for the Oak Bay youth employment services, said about 50 more students are still looking for work — any kind of work.

Mount Douglas students Lori Coupar, Bev Dale work in garden.

Morton said students in his school have done such jobs as gardening, babysitting, log-cutting, watering, housecleaning, and moving garbage to a dump.

Oak Bay students advertised on radio and in newspapers to little avail, Morton said. He said the appearance on television of some of the students earlier in July helped for several days.

Then, the students put posters in stores and on telephone poles. The Oak Bay police made them remove the posters from the telephone poles and public response was discouraging.

He said telephone calls finally trickled in after mimeographed posters were delivered door-to-door.

Morton said Oak Bay's student employment service generally gets about two calls a day, although a week has occasionally passed by without a call.

"Even if you only have one or two calls a day, its worth waiting for," Morton said.

He said students at his schoold charge $1.50 an hour and 50 cents hourly for babysitting.

Student Ken Hamer of Lansdowne junior high said the Lansdowne youth employment services is defunct now.

"There were only 20 jobs throughout the summer for 100 people who signed up and these were only small part-time jobs," Hamer said.

He said the organizers became discouraged with the employment situation in the area and closed Lansdowne's employment services about two weeks ago.

Hamer said the only jobs students in his school could find were housecleaning and babysitting. Rates charged by students depended on the job they were given, he said.

Mount Douglas students available for summer jobs can be reached at 477-8112 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekdays or at 477-5745 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on weekends.

The Oak Bay youth employment services can be reached 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays at 592-1207 and from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays and throughout the weekend at 592-6608.

Looper Checked Naturally

Defoliating caterpillars that were seriously threatening about 18,000 acres of timber in the Quatsino Sound area have been limited by natural controls, a spokesman for the federal Forest Research Laboratory in Victoria said Wednesday. Quatsino Sound is near the northern tip of the Island.

The insect, known as the green-striped forest looper, was noticed in large numbers during last year's survey of the area and there were fears that chemical controls might be necessary to prevent heavy damage from occurring this year.

Recent inspections, however, indicate the degree of infestation is decreasing.

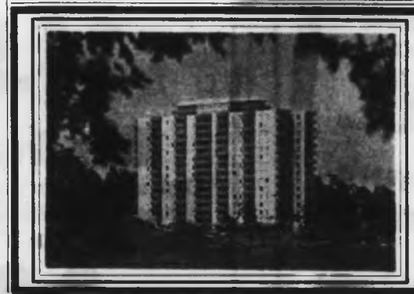

"The population has gone down quite a bit in all areas except for less than 1,700 acres," said Alex Molnar, head of the insect and disease survey section.

He said there would be approximately 35 per cent mortality in the 1,700 acres, but losses would be slight as the area was one of mature and over-mature timber that had already been scheduled for logging soon.

The trees affected are western hemlock and are used for pulp.

Natural conditions brought the looper under control, Molnar said. He explained that while the insect was in the cocoon stage, it was susceptible to attack from parasites and predators such as mice.

Mystery Victim Flown South

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The mysterious shooting death of a civilian American scientist on an ice floe in the Arctic Ocean was handed to the U.S. justice department Wednesday for possible prosecution.

Pentagon officials said an investigation team flown by helicopter to the island Tuesday had wrapped up its probe and was on its way back to the United States with the body of Bennie Lightsy, a Negro Environmental Science Services Administration researcher.

Lightsy was killed July 16 at Ice Station "T-3," about 325 miles from the North Pole, where he was acting commander of a 19-man team performing Arctic weather studies for the navy.

Details of the shooting remained a mystery.

"The communications problem is quite difficult here," said U.S. Attorney Bryan Gettings of Alexandria, Va., who was assigned to the case.

"We will not know until these people are in the continental limits of the United States, and more specifically on the ground, what the status is. Nobody here in the U.S. knows what was uncovered up there."

An air force C-130 transport plane bearing Lightsy's body and the investigating team — two navy officers and an assistant U.S. attorney — was scheduled to arrive at Washington's Dulles Airport at 4 p.m. today. Dulles was selected because jurisdiction in the case was assigned to the U.S. attorney's office in northern Virginia.

Also aboard the aircraft was the lone witness to the shooting.

Winnipeg Drug Raids Involve 65

Rock Lead Sings for Mounties

WINNIPEG (CP) — A series of RCMP raids Monday and Tuesday, described by an RCMP spokesman as "the biggest in this city," has led to the arrest of 43 persons on drug trafficking charges.

The raids are the result of an undercover operation in which an RCMP officer performed as lead singer for a local rock group for 10 months.

★ ★ ★

A total of 88 charges of trafficking in marijuana, hashish and hallucinative drugs, involving about 65 persons, has been laid, and the spokesman said more charges are expected as a result of new information gained during raids.

The 43 arrested were to appear in provincial magistrate's court today.

An RCMP spokesman said the raid was significant because all the charges were for trafficking, not just possession.

The undercover agent, said the spokesman, sang with a rock group known as The Prodigal Son.

Third Day of Tax-Reform Hearings

We're Not God—MP

By BILL THOMAS

With the third day of hearings into the impact of the Benson white paper on tax reform concluded here Wednesday, the emphasis from British Columbia industry was on the curtailment of capital which might result if the proposals were implemented.

Gordon Draeseke, president and chief executive officer of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C. opened the day's hearings with a lengthy brief.

Draeseke said the CFI "cannot support the capital gains tax proposals in their present form as they would severly impair the amount of capital funds generated within Canada and deter the very necessary inflow of foreign capital."

He later touched on the problem of the lack of federal-provincial co-operation in establishing tax levels. "A prerequisite of many of the proposals in the paper) is provincial co-operation."

The Burden

"The excessive burden imposed upon the forest imdustries by the income tax payable under the B.C. Logging Tax Act without proper offset is an example of the lack of federal-provincial co-operation already in existence."

Under questioning by John Burton (NDP — Regina East) as to why Canadian productivity was 25 per cent less than that in the lumber industry in Washington and Oregon, Draeseke told the committee that while there were many factors involved, the high cost of logging equipment in Canada was a contributing factor. It had to be imported and tariffs had to be paid, he said.

Speaking for B.C. Forest Products Ltd., president Ian Barclay said the white paper proposals "were more than just a suggested reform, but a whole fiscal policy."

Major Worry

While he agreed that possibly a capital gains tax might be necessary he added, "The major concern is economic growth and to expand our exports. While we recognize a change is needed, the first priority must be to further stimulate the economy. We need to encourage capital flow and productivity."

BCFP financial vice-president K. P. Benson detailed the complications in federal and privincial assessments of logging tax.

Barclay was reluctant to into great detail as his company has a case before the Supreme Court of Canada involving federal tax assessments.

The sharpest rebukes of the day were directed at Allan Dunlop, vice-president of B.C. Sugar Refining Co. Ltd. Page 21 of his company's brief opened its conclusions, saying, "We would like to suggest that the white paper, along with the Carter Report, be referred back to a new committee or commission for further study.

Social Basis

"Both of these reports contain many excellent suggestions. The major criticism that can be levelled is that they represent proposals which are the basis of a reformation of the entire social system, whereas the terms of reference called for suggestions regarding tax reform.

"Further consideration should be given to the economic consequences."

The entire committee, which has been sitting as long as eight hours a day during its information odyssey across western Canada, had obviously been riled by the submission and when committee chairman Alastair Gillespie (L—Etobicoke) opened the question period and recognized Ross Whicher (L—Bruce), the committee member fired his retaliation.

Under Study

"With reference to your comment at the back of your brief, let me tell you that taxes have been under study since the end of the war. Individuals and corporations have been bitching about tax levels, saying that it was high time something was done.

"We're not God, but we're not sure we're dealing with a bunch of angels. We're not here for the disintegration of business. We hope that after a great deal of study we will put in a sensible report that is good for business and for the ordinary people of Canada. So I cannot agree with you."

In addition to dealing with capital cost allowance rates, the taxing of closely-held corporations and capital gain, the brief also touched on the sale of home, property held for personal use or enjoyment, and the possible effects on farming in western Canada of implementation of the white paper proposals.

—Bill Thomas

Committeeman Whicher

On the Brief

At the conclusion of the question period on the brief, chairman Gillespie said it had "tended to be provocative rather than illuminating." He added that the committee members were a group who were "pretty serious minded and not involved in this for the hell of it."

A detailed brief came from University of British Columbia professors R. M. Clark, D. B. Fields and A. M. Moore.

Clark presented a short brief on behalf of UBC president Walter Gage, telling the committee it did not represent the views necessarily of the faculty or the students, but rather those of the UBC administration.

Scholars Aid

The brief touched on the proposal in the white paper to tax financial aid to scholars, saying it did not object in principle to the inclusion of such aid in computing personal income. The brief also said it did not object to the removal of the two years of income tax freedom visiting professors to Canadian universities now enjoy.

Later under questioning, Clark and his colleagues said it was the general feeling among faculty members the reciprocal tax holiday enjoyed by visiting professors between the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States should be discontinued.

The UBC administration brief was also concerned with the investment of pension fund assets outside Canada because the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association, a non-profit insurance company registered in the state of New York, has been handling pension funds for people at UBC for 45 years.

Trio's View

Some of the most controversial and provocative discussion of the day came during the question period on the private brief submitted by the three professors.

Clark and Moore are both distinguished economists and Fields is a professor of commerce.

Moore, who has been a UBC economist for the past 11 years, spent two years as an economist for the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association in Montreal, and six years as research associate to the Canadian Tax Foundation in Toronto.

Moore told the committee the "crucial issue before you is the determination of the tax base. And any departure from the cardinal rule of the equal treatment of equals must find a compelling justification."

His bombshell of the day came when he said "whenever anyone asserts that the opening up of the unexploited regions of any of our provinces substantially depends on the continuation of the existing preferential tax treatment, ask him to state his evidence. I assure you, there is none."

After two days of priming from special interest groups in the forestry and mining industries, the committee was more than eager to question Moore.

In response to queries from Whicher, Perrault, and Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) Moore expanded on his view that market conditions would generate business and encourage business to expand.

Whicher reminded Moore the mining interests seemed to be "sincere and honest men" who had said huge projects were being held up because uncertainty surrounding the white paper proposal.

Moore stuck to his contention that expansion would go ahead wherever the market warranted it, and that marketability, rather than subsidy, was preferable.

Dry Cleaning

Whicher then put it to Moore that if a small community needed a dry cleaning plant it would be in the public interest to encourage such a small business to start with government assistance.

Moore countered that if there was a market for dry cleaning business the ordinary incentives of profit would bring about the establishment of such a business.

The committee will hold its final day of hearings today at 9:30 a.m. in the Empress Hotel when briefs will be heard from B.C. Hotels Association, League of Concerned Canadians, Rayonier of Canada B.C. Ltd., the Greater Vancouver Apartment Owners Association and J. S. McVicar.

Park Trails Planned

Trails should be acquired from Elk-Beaver Lake Park to Mount Douglas Park and from Thetis Lake Park to Craigflower Creek, the Capital Regional Board was told Wednesday.

The two trails should be given priority in the parks program, it was decided, after the board was told the provincial government will give grants for trail acquisition as part of the regional parks program.

The board had asked the government for clarification of its position as there was uncertainty whether trails would be eligible for regional parks grants.

New Regulations Set On Bankruptcy Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — New regulations on bankruptcy sales were announced Tuesday by the corporate affairs department.

Raymond Landry, superintendent of bankruptcy for the department, said in a news release that trustees selling assets by public tender will have to open tenders at a special public meeting.

Everyone who has tendered on the assets may attend the meeting.

Landry said there have been few cases of tampering with tenders in recent years.

The department is also scrutinizing more carefully expenditures of trustees in administering a bankrupt's estate.

The department has argued in bankruptcy courts against excessive charges by lawyers and these have often been reduced, the release said.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — A visiting Canadian boy called police to the hideout of two of New Zealand's most wanted criminals. One criminal was captured but the other escaped.

The boy, Rick Rathbone, who is touring New Zealand with Vancouver's 60-man Maple Ridge High School symphonic and glee choir, telephoned police after seeing a deserted holiday house near Thames, 72 miles southeast of Auckland.

Rathbone was with a New Zealand girl, Sally Noakes, whose parents in Thames are the hosts of the 17-year-old Canadian visitor.

Rathbone said he and Sally went a few miles out of Thames to pick daffodils and saw a car hidden behind some treed branches at the holiday house.

"We returned to the Noakes house and telephoned police."

Police who rushed the house arrested Trevor Nash, 40, a notorious burglar, but missed George Wilder, New Zealand's most motorious prison escapist.

□

CHICAGO — The U.S. Court of Appeals has granted hippied leader Abbie Hoffman permission to visit Cuba next month to obtain material for a series of magazine articles on Cuban youth culture. Hoffman is free of $25,000 bail pending his appeal against conviction for crossing state lines to incite rioting during the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago.

□

BRIDGEWATER, N.S. — Nova Scotia-born industrialist Cyrus Eaton says he has reached the "painful conclusion" that U.S. President Nixon does not want to end the war in Southeast Asia. Eaton said in an interview that Nixon was continuing the war under "different alibis" and it will not end until the U.S. Congress refuses to allocate the money needed to continue the fighting.

Pay Day Interrupts Postal Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The postal strike lost its bite Wednesday as workers in all but four post offices came to work to pick up their pay cheques.

Only 275 employees were on strike in the Ontario centres of St. Catharines, Islington and Etobicoke. The Toronto airport office was without staff until mid-morning, when workers came in to take advantage of pay day.

By agreement with management, another 250 workers in Montreal took the day off when temperatures in the main post office topped 100 degrees. Windows in the building have been sealed in preparation for a new air-conditioning system but the system has not been installed yet.

The post office closed facilities in seven Newfoundland centres in reaction to a Tuesday strike at St. John's.

When the post office closes its own doors only the members of the Letter Carriers Union and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers go without work — and without pay.

A post office spokesman said Wednesday other employees, such as postmasters and stenographers, stay on the job.

Negotiators for the 27,000 members of the letter carriers' and postal workers' unions meet today with government representatives in a resumption of the contract talks.

But both sides agree there is no sign of an imminent settlement.

Italy Forming New Regime

ROME (Reuters) — The tension surrounding Italy's latest political crisis eased slightly Monday as Emilion Colombo, the second premier-designate in three weeks, began trying to form the country's 32nd government since Fascist times.

HOW SERIOUS IS WESTERN CANADA SEPARATISM?

How serious is the movement called Western separatism, the hope of founding a new nation by uniting Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia? It can be argued that the four Western provinces own more raw resources than any state in Europe and therefore could build a potentially richer state.

The dean of Canadian journalism, Bruce Hutchison, dissects the cause and consequences of the current uneasiness in Western Canada in an important article in the August issue of Reader's Digest. It is recommended reading for Canadians from coast to coast. Pick up your copy of August Reader's Digest today.

Wings for Firebird

Aircar of Fiction Now Nearing Fact

By KEARNEY BOTHWELL

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — A Pontiac Firebird may be winging over the San Fernando Valley before the end of this year while it's assembly line brothers crawl along the clogged freeways.

The advanced Vehicle Engineers Co., based here, announced Tuesday plans for a "flying automobile" which would utilize an airplane frame and engine that could be attached to a modified standard automobile.

It plans to make a test flight with the Pontiac Firebird before the end of the year.

★ ★ ★

Henry Smolinski, engineer-president of the firm, said all Detroit would have to do is modify the dash board slightly to allow for air instruments and make some minor adjustments in the roof so the airframe could be attached.

"The plan is to make it possible for anyone to convert his automobile into a flying car by merely backing into the air frame and snap the pieces together.

"When the car is backed into the airframe, according to Smolinski, "four pins are inserted to lock the two and at the same time convert the car's standard steering wheel into an aircraft control. Rudder pedals snap into position beneath the driver-pilot side of the vehicle.

★ ★ ★

"Then, with the insertion of two more pins holding struts from the wing to either side of the car, the aircar will be ready to fly."

Although a flying automobile has been expounded in science fiction as well as scientific circles for ages, Smolinski said most designs have "emphasized the airborne portion and neglected the car with vehicles that were unsuitable for road use."

The airframe will consist of the wings, the rear pusher engine mount, the twin tail booms and the control surfaces of a Cessna Skymaster, fitted on the standard automobile.

The car would take the place of the Skymaster's cabin and forward propeller-driven engine. The aft engine would be replaced with a more powerful one, possibly a turboprop, capable of cruising at 130 miles per hour for 500 miles.

King Fisherman

Coho, Big Chinooks Provide Double Fun

Sooke waters are producing big coho and big spring (chinooks) and Comox waters are providing the best action for years for coho on surface trolled bucktail flies.

Fred Fedun, best known as catcher of heavyweight chinooks, has stepped into the King Fisherman Contest coho lead with a 12.4-pound coho from Beechey Head on anchovy. He takes the lead from Allen Dubynski who had a 12.3-pounder from Porlier Pass.

With coho and chinooks intermingling at this time, anglers and weigh-in stations are reminded that identification by a fisheries official will be required of any unusually big coho.

Evidence the big ones are still of Secretary Island was provided Tuesday by Evelyn Collins of Sassenos, who weighed in a 38.4-pounder at the newly-renovated Sunny Shores Marina in Sooke Basin. She caught her big fish while fishing with Bob Planes, and they also got a 25-pounder Monday.

Set with Normal Screen

Colour, excitement . . . literally jumping out of your Viking 25" Colour Television. We're delighted to offer you this advanced set with its revolutionary breakthrough. That breakthrough? The Black Matrix screen that outcolours, outbrightens, and outdetails most previous sets. Technically, the Black Matrix separates the colour dots so they don't blur together. Blues stay blue, reds stay red, and the resulting chromatic tone is brilliantly fresh and clear. Come in to Eaton's and see it today. Of course, you'll get all the features you'd expect on a big 25" Viking: rapid-on picture; automatic tuning that "locks in" the best colour with no adjustment necessary for channel switching; top-front mounted chassis with precision-crafted VHF and solid state UHF tuners, able to maintain a strong, sparkling picture even in weaker signal areas; plus many other high quality components, carefully selected for their accuracy and reliability. Even the console cabinet is a joy, with its rich walnut veneers and hardwoods ready to add distinction to any room. It measures about 29" high, 33" wide.

WARRANTY:
Viking colour televisions carry a warranty for one year (two years on the picture tube) from the date of purchase against defective workmanship and material. After one year, a charge will be made for labour at the prevailing rates. In addition, if the picture tube fails after the two-year warranty has expired, the original customer will be entitled to a replacement picture tube at a pro-rate price based on months of use, up to six years from the purchase date.

Lots Issue

Play Or Park

A group of 72 petitioners in the Kings Road-Quadra Street area trying to stop Victoria from building a playground are not considering the interests of children, parks administrator Herb Warren said Wednesday.

The city's proposal would develop three lots totalling 1,500 square feet at the corner of Kings and Wark. The playground will replace a similar one in the 700-block Kings which is being phased out.

The proposed playground is across from Blanshard elementary school and the nearby Rose-Blanshard urban renewal development.

★ ★ ★

Development of the playground will make it necessary for 350 Blanshard Court children to cross Blanshard to use the playground.

The petitioners, led by Gary Menzel, 31, of 2544 Wark, say the playground is unnecessary because Blanshard Court already has about seven play areas with equipment.

But Warren told the Colonist those areas are not adequate.

Menzel said there are also eight acres of land behind the new Blanshard school bordering on the Blanshard area that children could use for a playground.

★ ★ ★

The petitioners are going to request the city create an ornamental park without playground facilities. They will present their case against the playground before city council's parks committee Tuesday.

Menzel said Wednesday the lots in question backs on to three apartment buildings which have no children. Many of the people living in them are elderly or working couples, some of whom work at night, he said.

"We're not against children," Menzel said.

"We would like to point out that this is an unwise move — the children have been adequately planned for," he said.

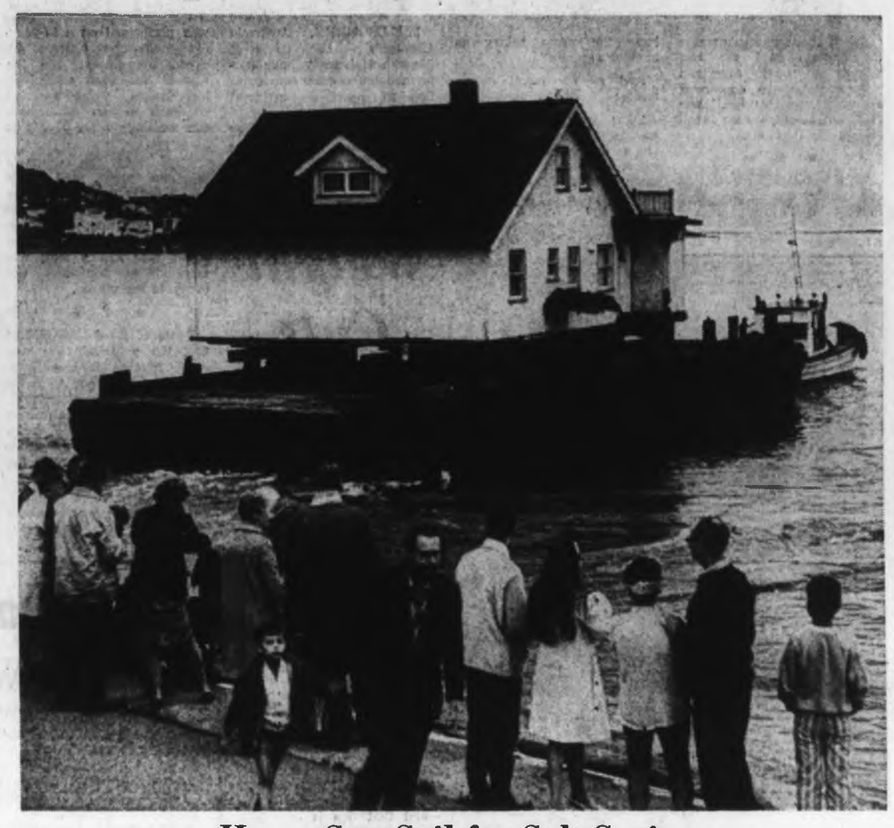

★ ★ ★

"Instead of developing additional land for playgrounds, why not utilize what is already there?" Menzel asked. He was referring to the grounds around Blanshard elementary school.

Menzel said none of the residents of the area were consulted when the city drew up plans for the area.

Warren suggested the city may not have to go ahead with the new playground if a compromise could be made with the school board.

"If the school board is willing to relinquish a part of the area (the eight acres around Blanshard elementary school) we might install playground facilities. However, I have an idea their space is limited too," Warren said.

House Sets Sail for Salt Spring

Looking like world's biggest houseboat, two-storey home sails off to Salt Spring Island on barge behind tug. Unusual launching took place Wednesday evening at Ross Bay as house was moved by truck from 678 Dallas Road to shore, then driven onto barge in two-hour operation. Final destination for 57-ton house is subdivision lot near Ganges. Home's owner is Bob Hele, 3864 Gordon Head, Saanich. — (William A. Boucher.)

Arcadia Bringing Boom To City Tourist Trade

The big white and buff colored cruise ship Arcadia will land 1,064 passengers at Ogden Point docks early today.

It will be the largest group of passengers to come ashore from a cruise ship this year," said Sam Lane, vice-president of the Victoria Visitors Bureau.

The 30,000-ton P and O liner will dock at 7 a.m. and depart at 6 p.m. for San Francisco. It is returning to California from an Alaskan cruise.

"This will be a terrific boost for the economy of the city," said tourist commissioner Mike Heppell.

Lane agreed, and added that in addition to the passengers visiting the downtown stores many of the crew also come ashore for the day. The ship carries a crew of 650 officers and men.

He said that so far this year the visiting cruise ships have brought 6,000 visitors to Victoria.

"The passengers normally shop in a variety of places but seem to be most interested in our clothing stores, china shops, and the department stores," he said.

The Arcadia, built in 1954, will be welcomed this morning by a water barrage from Island Tug and Barge's fire tug as it enters harbor.

It will be piped into dock by Victoria piper Heather Zink, and passengers will be entertained by the Victoria Chinatown Lions Drum and Bugle Corps and a baton group. Flower girls will give women passengers each a rose.

Lane said there was nothing definite so far about next year's schedule of visiting cruise ships but he hoped that more ships would have Victoria as a port of call.

He said the welcomes the visiting ships get on arrival in the city are without rival at any port from California to Alaska.

"Victoria should be impressed with such public-spirited citizens," he emphasized.

When the ship slips its mooring lines at 6 p.m. it will be played out of harbor by a band under the direction of Howard Denike. Pat Wicks will sing the traditional songs for the departing ship.

Cheques Caught In Mail Muddle

Mail service returned to normal in Victoria Wednesday after another one-day stoppage Tuesday in the continuing national dispute, but a bit of a mystery had cropped up by the end of the day.

★ ★ ★

A great many of the old-age pension cheques that were to be delivered didn't show up and neither postal union nor post office officials were able to say why they didn't.

The cheques were reported to have been sorted Monday night in advance of Tuesday's shutdown.

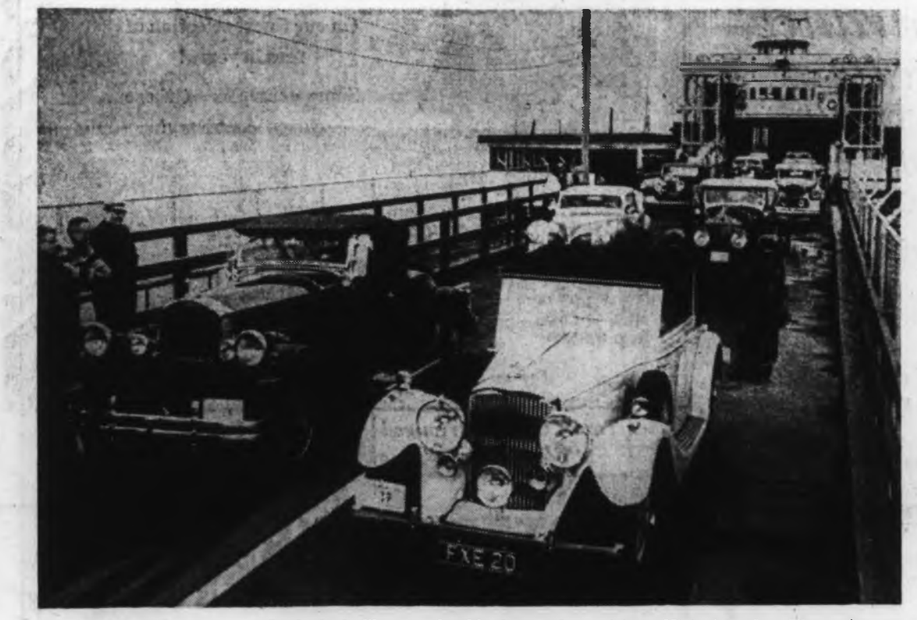

Many old-age pensioners reported receiving their cheques on schedule, but post office information officer Ken Stofer said there were "quite a few" phone calls from others who didn't get them.

Centennial Tangle

Region Freezes Arena Project

Lack of action by the Capital Regional Board Wednesday could block the building of an ice rink in Colwood as a B.C. centennial project.

"This is not a delaying tactic," commented chairman Hugh Curtis as the board tabled for 30 days a request for approval in principle of financing of the project.

"Are not their priorities getting a little out of order out there?" asked Curtis. "They have no sewers yet, but they want more recreational facilities."

★ ★ ★

The Juan de Fuca Centennial 71 commitee, made up of the centennial committees from Langford, Colwood and Metchosin, had picked an ice arena as a centennial project.

"We have been delayed on this all along," said chairman Howard Drummond after the meeting. "I'm sorry they've tabled it now — we shall probably miss getting a referendum to the people by December because of this. We won't be able to make it a centennial project."

The committee first approached the regional board in April, asking for permission to finance the arena through the regional board, although only local residents would be required to meet the cost.

★ ★ ★

The letter was referred to the provincial government which turned down the proposal on grounds it wouldn't allow money to be borrowed for non-essentials.

According to Drummond the government later relaxed its attitude and allowed the committee to seek other financing.

A bank loan is being negotiated for $500,000, said Drummond, but regional endorsation in principle is needed before loan approval is given.

★ ★ ★

"We would still need approval to go to referendum and then voter approval to go ahead with building," said Drummond.

"Now we have to wait another 30 days before we can go to the bank with a firm proposal and then there are other formal steps that have to be taken," he said.

"I imagine we shall have to follow the same procedure as we did for the pool, and come up with working drawings, which means a wait for architectural plans.

★ ★ ★

"I can't see us getting this rushed through in time for a December referendum — it will be more like February before we're ready."

Drummond said he was fairly certain the $650,000 proposal could win taxpayer approval.

"Our centennial committees were elected at general meetings, which endorsed the ice arena plan at that time," he said.

"We also have the success of the swimming pool, and the fact that when the pool was built it was designed, and sold to the voters, as the start of a complex."

Drummond saw no problems in priorities.

★ ★ ★

"If sewers are needed, the board has only to present facts and figures as we shall present facts and figures on the arena, and it will pass out here. Our people understand solid facts," he said.

"I'm not too surprised by this move by the board," said Drummond. "We had the same holdup at the board level when we wanted to spend our own money on a swimming pool — I guess this is much the same thing."

At the meeting, Esquimalt representative Art Young said he was afraid that once the people found themselves paying for recreational facilities, they would be unwilling to add the cost of sewers to their taxes.

Petition Stands

Plazas Aid Tree Savers

Victoria's Save-the-Trees campaigners have been granted permission by three Victoria area shopping plazas to set up a stand in the centres to collect signatures for a campaign to save Begbie Street trees from being felled in a street-widening program.

Richard Morris, spokesman for the Save-the-Trees campaign, said campaigners will set up a small table with signs at the Mayfair shopping centre and the Town and Country shopping centre Thursday and Friday evening.

He said representatives would be posted at each of the tables to collect signatures for a petition against city's plans to fell the Begbie Street trees.

Morris said the Hillside shopping plaza has offered to let campaigners set up a booth Aug. 10.

He said about 300 residents in the Begbie Street area, the Heywood Street area and on Finlayson Street had signed the petition by late Wednesday afternoon.

Representatives of the Save-the-Trees campaign went door to-door to collect the signatures, Morris said.

Oak Bay Pupils Among Highest

Seven students from Oak Bay high school earned some of the highest marks in Grade 12 provincial scholarship exams, Education Minister Donald Brothers announced Thursday.

Among them is William Allan Squires, 4065 Lockehaven Drive, whose marks averaged 98.5 per cent.

He was one of four students who had identical marks, second highest in B.C. Another, Daniel Wing Wong of Duncan, won the Governor-General's bronze medal after he was judged the most eligible.

★ ★ ★

The highest marks of any Grade 12 student in B.C. — a record that brings him the Governor-General's silver medal — were earned by Chris Patrick Archibald of Trail. He had an average of 99 per cent.

Brothers explained scholarship standings are determined by averaging the two best marks achieved on examinations written in June.

Students with high marks have part of their post-secondary tuition fees paid by the government.

Other Vancouver Island students with high marks:

David Joseph Newberry and Bruce Edward Turkington, both of Oak Bay high and both with 98 per cent; Peter Gerald Ludemann, Lake Cowichan high, 96 per cent; Andrew Penn, Shawnigan Lake school, 96 per cent; David Anthony Todd, Oak Bay high, 96 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Patrick Michael Campbell, Oak Bay high, 95.5 per cent; Manfred John Maier, Mount Douglas high, 95.5 per cent; Margaret Karen Roe and Annette Mary Walker, both of Oak Bay high, 95 per cent.

Among those writing Grade 13 government examinations, Martin Beerens of Port Alberni achieved an average of 82.6 per cent.

Religion Evident Contributor To South Africa Apartheid

Organized religion in South Africa is one of the factors maintaining apartheid, a South African social anthropologist said here Wednesday.

Calling churches one of "the props that keep the system of segregation going," Dr. Peter Carstens, who now teaches at the University of Toronto, described the effects of religion on particular reserves as indicative of the general situation.

★ ★ ★

"The power of religion can be very strong, especially when it is linked with the authority of the elite," he said. "Religious systems have provided the moral consensus for maintaining segregation."

Carstens noted that the Anglican Church has a reputation for being "extremely liberal" and some of its clergy have criticized the policy of apartheid, but the church has always worked within the system.

"It didn't do anything to change the system," he said. "So even though a church on the exterior has a reputation of liberalism, the fact that it has two separate church buildings does in fact reinforce the status quo."

★ ★ ★

The anthropologist said that in some cases, a single minister serves both white and non-white members of the congregation in separate buildings, and in others each group has its own minister. In the latter case, the ministers for each group are identified by their titles and are not allowed to serve the other group.

"A minister who served pigmented (non-white) population would be ritually contaminated," he said.

Appropriate biblical quotations are used to reinforce strict segregation, Carstens said.

Religions, he said, are an important part of the social engineering system designed to keep the races separate.

"The techniques of domination are coercion, divide and rule, separate education and the subtle pressures provided by churches. The power group's coercion by police needs to have the support of the less obvious pressures."

★ ★ ★

Carstens said that because the society was so well engineered and took into account all the factors he mentioned, he could foresee "no change in the status quo."

During a question period following his lecture, the anthropoligist said there are a great many similarities between the Canadian system of reserves for Indians and the South African system of reserves for non-whites.

"It is to the advantage of the ruling elite to maintain this image of developing their own culture (by remaining separate on reserves)."

★ ★ ★

He also noted that just as the South African reserves form labor pools, the Canadian Indian population is rising faster than other segments of the population and it has been suggested that Indian reserves could serve the same function.

Carstens is currently a visiting professor on the University of Victoria summer staff.

Woman in Charge of Soviet Ship

Captain Keeps Hair Neat

By HELEN MORRIS

The captain of the Russian freigher Anton Chekhov steps out on deck to have pictures taken. The photographer asks the captain, attired in a neat grey uniform, to step out against the rail into the late sunlight.

The captain — hands flying upward — doesn't budge. "No. No. My hair!"

Capt. A. I. Shchetinina is a capable woman, but very much a woman.

In her cabin she discusses her profession, her war experiences, and the role of women in the Soviet Union. The decor includes white-and-blue lace curtains, a foot-high Japanese doll and Brezhnev's portrait smiles over the captain's right shoulder.

★ ★ ★

The 10,000-ton Anton Chekhov docked in Victoria Monday night from Japan. Tuesday she discharged $400,000 worth of Japanese equipment for the B.C. Hydro project at Jordan River, and left later for New Westminster.

A widow with one grown child, Capt. Shchetinina said she acquired her love of the sea from her birthplace, Vladivostok.

"It's a big city and a marine city with many navy and merchant marine ships," she said in accented English.

★ ★ ★

"In our family there were no seaman, but so many friends and neighbors were seamen. That is where I learned the sea."

In 1925 she began a four-year seamanship course at a marine school in Vladivostok. When she graduated in 1929 she sailed on various ships as a plain sailor, later as a mate, and in 1935 she was promoted to captain. (She knows of three other female captains in the Soviet Union.)

★ ★ ★

Capt. Shchetinina has been Marine Institute since 1960 "but every year I go to sea because I like the job. When a (male) captain takes a vacation, they ask if I agree to go, and I agree."

Capt. Shchetinina — who teaching at the Vladivostok says she finds the North Pacific as rough as the reputedly rugged North Atlantic — was skippering a ship in the Baltic Sea during the Second World War.

★ ★ ★

"I had many troubles in war time," she said. "In 1941 I sailed in the Baltic Sea. We were bombed once and had to put in to Leningrad. Many of the crew were lost or killed.

"But since the war," she shrugged, "no troubles."

"But every voyage is interesting to me. This one was very foggy."

Asked about women's rights the captain said she had talked to many American women. "All are concerned about the equal wage," she said, but Soviet women faced no equality problem.

★ ★ ★

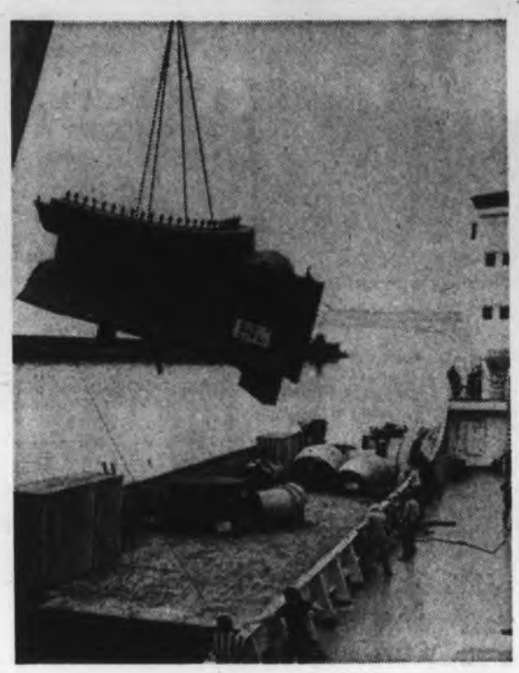

"It's wonderful for us. In our country it's all the same thing — if I'm a captain I have the same salary as another captain."

And as for equal opportunity:

"Our women may select any profession. Except ones like underground (mining) work, hard on health. But not many women desire to go to sea. If it's a big desire they can do it."

Artificial Tube Inserted

Fallopian First

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters) — Doctors at Monash University have performed the world's first operation to insert an artificial fallopian tube.

Carl Wood, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the university, announced Tuesday night the operation was performed on a 27-year-old Melbourne woman six weeks ago. Wood said the woman had been artificially inseminated — her husband as donor — and the doctors are waiting to see if she is pregnant.

Wood said the woman's fallopian tubes, the ducts which carry unfertilized eggs from the ovary to the uterus during ovulation, were removed June 12. A plastic tube about four inches long was inserted to reconnect one ovary to the uterus.

Doctors had established that the artificial tube was open, making it technically possible for an egg to reach the uterus and await fertilization, Wood said. If the woman becomes pregnant, the operation will mean that thousands of infertile women around the world could become mothers.

The patient, who was not identified, was married about four years and had been pregnant once. But that pregnancy was ectopic. The fertilized egg implanted itself within the fallopian tube where it could not survive.

Weight Cuts Wrong

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee of the National Research Council reported Wednesday that the current medical practice of restricting pregnant women to a weight gain of 10 to 14 pounds may be contributing to the high infant mortality rate in the United States.

The U.S. ranks 13th in that category among 40 countries surveyed in 1966.

The group recommended an average weight gain of 24 pounds.

★ ★ ★

In the same report, the NRC's committee on maternal nutrition said girls who become pregnant before they are 17 run great risks for both themselves and their babies —and that this is especially true for non-white girls from a low-income families.

The committee said many of the biological risks involved for the young mother are connected with nutrition depletion and it further explained:

● Because they are growing, most girls under 17 have greater nutritional requirements in relation to body size than do adult women—and, therefore, the additional nutrient demands of pregnancy may compromise their growth potential and increase their risk in pregnancy.

★ ★ ★

In connection with its criticism of current obstetric practices of restricting what it termed "normal weight gain" for pregnant women in general, the committee also said:

● Routine supplementation of diets of pregnant women with vitamin and mineral preparations is of doubtful value, with the exception of iron and folic acid.

● Weight reduction programs and severe caloric restrictions should not be undertaken during pregnancy, even for obese women, because of the possibility of adverse effects on the weight of the unborn child and on his or her neurological development.

Newfoundland Project 50 Years Old

Health Nursed by Knitting

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Fifty years ago, Lady Harris, wife of the then governor of Newfoundland, and a small number of leading citizens decided something should be done to bring nursing and medical care to tens of thousands of Newfoundlanders living in isolated and scattered settlements.

A scheme was worked out with the government whereby women in the outports earned money by knitting and weaving in their homes to help defray the cost of hiring trained nurses from England.

The 50th anniversary of the Newfoundland Outport Nursing Industrial Association (NONIA) will be marked this summer with an exhibition of the handicrafts of the organization in the Toronto Gallery of the Canadian Guild of Crafts. The exhibition includes knitted and woven goods, Newfoundland food, travel posters and scenic slides.

Canadian National will help the celebration by sponsoring a party on board its freight and passenger coastal ship Nonia, named after the organization.

In 1900 Lady Harris received assurance from the Newfoundland government that trained nurses from England would be sent to the island if the communities agreed to raise one-half of each nurse's salary.

★ ★ ★

A committee of six, appointed by the government, became the Outport Nursing Committee. Several nurses were engaged in England and took up their work on the island.

In 1923 Lady Allardyce, the new governor's wife, arrived in St. John's and undertook reorganization of the committee.

A central committee in the capital agreed to cover one-quarter of the nurses' salaries and the local committees another quarter. The remainder was to come from a government grant.

Garments from the British Isles were purchased for patterns and weaving lessons were given by a trained weaver from the Grenfell Mission in St. Anthony, Nfld.

At a public meeting in January, 1924, the Newfoundland Outport Nursing Industrial Association was officially formed.

Materials and instructions were sent out from the St. John's depot to various local committees. Drugs and medical advice were also dispatched to the nurses when required.

In 1933, when government by commission came to Newfoundland, the department of health and welfare assumed control of all nursing services on the island, including those provided by 17 field nurses. Thus ended the primary purpose of Nonia.

However, the association did not disband because the outport women now realized their potential to earn extra money at home. With the help of gifts from friends and supporters, Nonia opened up a retail shop in St. John's.

The prosperity of Nonia increased and in 1956 the group entered the wholesale field. Handmade goods from the outports soon found a ready market on the mainland, and Nonia developed into one of the most durable organizations on the island, which joined Confederation with Canada in 1949.

★ ★ ★

Last year about 350 Newfoundland women earned extra income through knitting and weaving for Nonia. Sales totalled over $100,000, of which the women received $32,000. The organization has 21 outlets — five in Newfoundland, five in the Maritimes, three in Quebec and eight in Ontario.

Sex Revolution Just Beginning

By JURATE KAZICKAS

NEW YORK (AP) — You can bet Dad's old raccoon coat that when he and Mom were in college:

● They didn't live next door to each other in a co-ed dorm.

● The school doctor didn't give her a box of pills every month.

● The girls didn't pass the hat in the cafeteria to help pay for a classmate's legal abortion.

● No one tacked a sign in the dorm proclaiming "Make love, not war" or "Make love, not babies."

They do now, all over North America. So there's a sexual revolution on campus and elsewhere among the young, right?

Yes.

And no.

No, because the real revolution may only be beginning.

Those whose business it is to study youth and morality say that what's happened so far is only the steady evolution of a trend launched in the 1920s; those roaring '20s when today's parents and grandparents began burying Victorianism and when figures indicating the rate of pre-marital sex for women more than doubled.

And while talk and attitude have liberalized dramatically, an AP survey suggests behavior has yet to match the provocative words. There may be lots who sing of free love, but many more think twice before they really change their tune.

For instance:

● The pill, psychiatrists say, doctors and co-eds themselves, is not the liberating incentive for virgins to lose their status. Most agree that the girls who ask for contraceptives are already sexually experienced, and there seems to be little evidence that the pill causes promiscuity.

Abortion Rates Increasing

● Abortion rates have increased significantly for unmarried girls. But the liberalization of abortion laws has shown that married women, rather than the single ones, are coming in larger numbers for hospital abortions.

● For as many girls that live with their boyfriends, there are still those who wonder if it's all right to kiss on the first date. For as many boys that still keep score, there are those who want to wait before getting that sexually involved.

Statistics indicate premarital intercourse, cited by one expert as a most overrated indicator of morality, has varied by only a few percentage points since Kinsey's survey of the American female in the '50s.

"The proportion of young people that are copulating is the same as it was 50 years ago," says Dr. Ira Reiss of the University of Minnesota, a leading U.S. authority on premarital sex. It's just about half."

Kinsey found that 27 per cent of college females by age 21 had had pre-marital sex relations. Dr. William Simon and Dr. John Gagnon, who will soon publish a survey of 1,200 college students taken in 1967, report that approximately one-third of college girls were nor longer virgins by their senior year.

"It is a measurable increase, but not a dramatic one, and certainly not as high as it could be," says Simon.

Simon believes most girls still lose their virginity only after falling in love with someone.

The double standard, albeit wounded and weakened, isn't dead. One survey said 70 per cent of the boys interviewed said they would be "some or seriously troubled" to find out their fiancee had had sexual experience.

Young Today Often Critical

The young today are nevertheless often critical of those who have overt, indiscriminate sex, but they see it as a sickness, rather than "immoral" behavior.

At several universities, men criticezed what they called the Playboy exploitation of woman as sex object rather than respecting her as a loved person.

There are varieties of co-ed living arrangements on more than 200 campuses today. There are alternating co-ed suites, as at Stanford and the University of Buffalo; separate wings or separate floors with common lounges as found at the University of Minnesota. And even co-ed trailers at the University of Maryland.

Though no college officially sanctions two sexes sharing the same room, there are of course some students that take advantage of liberal visitation permission — 24-hour open houses under only nominal supervision.

More and more doctors feel that any college with co-ed dorms and 24-hour visitation would be remiss in not providing its students with birth-control counselling. In 1966, an American College Health Association survey reported that more than 150 universities provided contraceptives at their health clinics.

At one co-ed campus, there are sporadic collections at lunchtime in the cafeteria to help finance a girl's abortion. Some go as far as London or Japan for a hospital operation.

Rev. Howard Moody, who has worked with New York's Greenwich Village youth for 13 years asks: "Are we any better because we waited for our sex? These kids are indignantly moral. Go past their rhetoric. . .

"They're asking very real questions about our own morality."

For some, sex and morality aren't even related.

"Why is everybody so worried about our sex lives?" asks one Buffalo student. "Why are all those silent majority people out there so concerned about how we love each other and yet so blind to the immorality of bigotry, hunger, poverty and an obscene war?"

But another question that's starting to preoccupy observers is just what can be expected of morality and a sexual behavior in the '70s?

Experts predict:

● There'll be a sharp rise in the rate of pre-marital intercourse.

● Many religious leaders may be forced to become more permissive about premarital love to bring the young back to religion.

● The threat of pregnancy will be reduced by new pills, and abortions by injection of drugs may be on the scene.

● Sex with affection will become the college ethic.

The sexual revolution may be just beginning.

'Cuppa Tea' Less Popular

LONDON (CP) — Latest statistics show that tea consumption in Britain, while still ahead of coffee drinking, has been slipping in recent years. Per-capita consumption of Britain's traditional drink was 8.8 pounds in 1968 compared with 9.1 pounds the year before and 9.9 pounds in 1958. Drinking rate for coffee was 1.7 pounds in 1958 but this reached 3.1 in each of 1967 and 1968.

Mail Does Go Through —Eventually

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto woman has found that Canada's mail gets through despite the current series of strikes and lockouts.

Mrs. Stanley Gallagher wishes, however, that the service was a little quicker.

She said Tuesday that some mail she sent her cousin, Mrs. Walter Radford, of St. Sauveur des Monts, Que., finally reached its destination July 16.

The mail involved was a Christmas card sent from Toronto Dec. 21, 1968.

LONDON (UPI) — A band of London stockbrokers declared guerrilla war on lengthening hemlines Wednesday and threatened to snip the skirts of any woman under 30 who donned a dress falling lower than eight inches above her knees.

ERMA BOMBECK on Writing:

Buy Playpen, Climb In...

My mail is comprised of four groups:

● Readers who read me first after the obituaries.

● Women who are compiling cookbooks for the church and want my favorite recipe. (The 15-cent hamburger)

● Women who request I do not send an autographed picture.

● Women who want to write a humor column from their bedroom on the trials and tribulations of writing a humor column from their bedroom.

I make it a point to answer the last category first probably because I can appreciate the frustration of going through motherhood and not being able to put away a dime for my old age. (Assuming you reach old age).

★ ★ ★

First, I advise aspiring columnists to buy a playpen. Even if you don't have children, buy a playpen. Climb into it with your typewriter and don't come out until you are finished. Children will try to trick you by turning on the gas and flooding the bathroom, but they are just trying to get your attention.

Next, keep notes of all the cute things your children say. When you have a stack of them, send them to your mother. She'll love them. Other women can't stand cute sayings from children unless the children are their own.

Don't expect your husband to break out in a rash over your material. At best, all you can get is, "Is that what people are laughing at these days? Did you pick up my shirts?"

This brings us to another area. How to walk a tightrope between part-time-at-home-job and housework. Every day at 5:30, I stop what I am doing and throw an onion into a 350 degree oven. I don't care what Helen Gurley Brown says, it does more for a husband's disposition than the deodorant I put on the lightbulb.

If you're aiming at free lance, be sure you're familiar with the publication you're writing for. Like sending the baby's picture to Reader's Digest, or a note to Good Housekeeping saying, "I read your seal three times and loved it!"

Be on the lookout for humorous home situations like when daddy caught german measles from the little jerk in the cub scout car pool and nearly died, or how your youngest told his class, "My mommy stays in her bedroom all day learning how to be a Communist."

Learn to laugh at yourself. It will either assure you a berth as a syndicated columnist or a bed by a fenced-in window. There is little difference.

Either way, it beats vacuuming popcorn out of armchairs and picking up GI Joe's underwear. So hang in there. Remember, all you've got to lose is your place in line at the laundromat.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Help wake up parents who don't understand the importance of providing decent dental care for their children. Too many people have the idea that if a tooth gives a kid trouble you might as well yank it out as monkey around with it. Another false notion is that it doesn't pay to fill a tooth unless it's a permanent one.

●

I get sick when I see parents buying wigs for their teenage daughters, expensive guns for their young sons, cameras, ski equipment, memberships in expensive clubs, but when it comes to dental work they can think of a million excuses to let it go — or they take the cheapest way out.

Dentists are a hard-working lot. Varicose veins and heart trouble are occupational hazards. And so many people expect the dentist to carry them on his books for months, even though he has already borrowed to go to school and done some moonlighting to get him through the non-income years.

It's a well known fact that a person with a toothache will pay anything to get relief, but when the toothache is gone he puts the dentists' bill at the bottom of the pile.

Please print this, Ann. In all the years I've been reading your column I don't think I have ever read a letter in support of the dental profession. — Shreveport.

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced two years ago. I'm now 36 years old, have an executive position but am terribly lonely. My older brother (42 and unmarried) informed me that a beautiful apartment will be available in his building next month. He confessed that he, too, is lonely.

We had a long talk and decided if we pooled our resources we could live extremely well for less money and enjoy each other's company.

Last night when I mentioned our plan to friends they behaved in a strange manner — as if there was something immoral about the arrangement. One of the women said, "Get ready for some unpleasant gossip."

Am I naive, stupid, blind, insensitive, crazy or what? Please give me your frank opinion. — 2c Plain.

Dear Plain: Most brothers and sisters grow up under the same roof, don't they? So what's wrong with living together in later years? After you get settled in your new apartment, look for new friends.

How Jenny Berridge keeps camp-fire pots shiny with J CLOTH* Towels

"Cleaning the outside of my pots was a job for steel wool. Now I simply wipe off the soot.
"The secret? Before you cook, rub a well-soaped J CLOTH Towel over the outside of the pot. After cooking, simply take a moist J CLOTH Towel and clean off the soot.
"I've tried using rags and paper towels, but nothing does the job as well as a J CLOTH Towel. It's tough, absorbent, doesn't smear, and rinses out in a flash.
"I always take J CLOTH Towels camping. They've got dozens of uses."

Supreme Court Ruling Final

Apartment Sewage Leak Feared

A 38-suite apartment on top of a rockpile will be spewing sewage into Portgage Inlet as a result of a court ruling, says View Royal Capital Regional Board representative Al Beasley.

In a recent ruling in B.C. Supreme Court the board was ordered to issue a building permit to Bruce Cooke Building Construction Co. Ltd. for a condominium in View Royal.

The board had held up the permit because of a bylaw under consideration, and subsequently passed, which banned all apartment building in View Royal.

The Supreme Court judgment held that building plans had proceeded so far before the bylaw was contemplated that it was wrong to subvert the plans.

Beasley pointed out that the building plans include septic tanks, which have already received Metropolitan Health Board approval.

"These suites are all going to be sold," he said. "Then who is going to be responsible for the septic tanks — they won't be sold to anyone.

"We already have a 12-suite building going up without anyway of handling the effluent which is going to end up in Portgage Inlet.

"Now this will be 38 suites on top of a rockpile — one and two bedroom suites — and that is going to end up in Portgage Inlet," said Beasley.

"There's nothing we can do — we have the court's ruling," commented North Saanich director Jim Cumming. "It's no good crying."

Chairman Hugh Curtis said the problem was one which would not occur again. "This happened during a time of change-over," he said.

Civil Servants

Glendale Board Temporary

Mayor James Cumming of North Saanich, deputy chairman of the Capital Region's hospital board, said Wednesday he expects the civil servant-dominated board of Glendale Hospital will only be a temporary arrangement.

He said it is traditional that hospitals, built and run with public funds, have reprsentatives from the community at large on their boards of management.

(The Colonist discovered earlier this week that at least four of the five persons on Glendale's board are provincial civil servants and that its registered office is an ofifce of the provincial mental health services branch.)

"I would assume they (the provincial government) will attempt to find a more representative board at a later date," said Cumming.

He added that the federal health department, which pays half the operating costs of such centres, likely will require community representatives on the board of directors.

The directors of the 300-bed hospital for the retarded that is being built in Saanich will hold office until the annual meeting of the Glendale Lodge Society in November, according to incorporation documents.

East Sooke Waterfront

Park-to-Be 'Real Mess'

A provincial park-to-be in East Sooke has been temporarily ruined by logging, according to Sooke's regional representative Howard Elder.

The land, one of several lots being considered for acquisition as a regional park, has been logged during the last year or so, Elder told the Capital Regional Board Wednesday.

"It will be a beautiful park in 10 to 20 years' time," said Elder, "but in the interim it is a real mess. It was a messy job of logging and it has just destroyed the land for recreational use now."

Elder wanted assurances that other crown land which the regional board wants for parks won't meet the same fate.

The provincial park under discussion is about two years old and on the waterfront, stretching from Beechey Head to Iron Mine Bay and around toward Whiffen Spit.

The board was discussing a letter from the provincial government offering to reserve various crown lands and to consider issuing a crown grant when the region was ready to start development.

Elder pointed out there are "merchandisable things" on the various parcels of land, including timber and minerals.

"We can see what happens to provincial parkland when it is not acquired in time," said Elder.

A delegation is to meet with Resources Minister Ray Williston to discuss the issue.

Port Renfrew Sends Three Splashers

Heavy rain Wednesday morning meant dry-land sessions for Colonist free swimming classes at Hamsterley Beach on Elk Lake. For three Matkin children, it was chance to polish up on stroke technique. Sylvia, 8, Tommy, 7, and Bobby, 10, are children of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Matkin of Port Renfrew and they find swim classes valuable enough for 140-mile round trip in family car each Wednesday from their home. Classes, under direction of Margie Naysmith are attended by 430 children — (Ellis Shipman).

Tickets Involved

Disturber Fined $50

A campaign of harassment by one Victoria man against another, which apparently started over some tickets, wound up Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court with a fine — after the prosecution demanded a jail term.

Peter Paul Platson, 60, of 711 Pandora, pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance by using obscene language Tuesday and prosecutor John Macintyre said Platson was "harassing" the owner of a newsstand at 644 Yates by swearing at him.

An official of the newsstand testified Platson, who owns a shoeshine store around the corner from the newsstand, had been bothering his firm for three or four weeks.

Platson told Judge J. A. Byers he buys "all my magazines and newspapers from them" and also bought many books of tickets but, in the matter of tickets, which were not identified, the newsstand man "won't reciprocate, if you know what that means."

Macintyre said Platson was fined $25 July 17 after he pleaded guilty to a similar charge involving the same man and place.

He said that fine had no effect and urged a jail term for Platson, "which is unusual in this type of case, but this disgraceful behavior has got to be stopped . . . he should be sent to jail for the purpose of getting it through his head that this man must be left alone."

The judge decided on a sentence of a $50 fine or five days in jail and refused Platson's request for time to pay the fine.

Coffee Gaining

Fire Safety, Not Money at Stake

"We're not interested in getting money from you," Judge J. A. Byers told a Victoria man Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court. "We're interested in getting a potenital fire danger cleared up."

Paul Johal, 1251 Balmoral, pleaded guilty July 22 to a Langford fire protection district charge of failing to comply with an order. He had been told June 25 to put topsoil over a sizeable cleared area on Finney Road, but had no done so 13 days later.

The judge remanded the case one week to give Johal time to finish the job, but Langford Fire Chief Alan LeQuesne told court Wednesday the work done in the past week was not satisfactory and part of the sawdust and wood chips in the cleared area still had no covering at all.

Johal spoke of various troubles and the judge remanded the case to Aug. 12 for sentence, instructing Johal to eliminate the fire danger by then. The judge said a week before the penalty ranged from a minimum fine of $10 to a maximum of $100.

□

An unofficial condition was added to a bond ordered by the judge for Dianne Vanessa Armstrong, 21, of 305 Quebec, who pleaded guilty July 21 to a charge of false pretence involving more than $50.

She was given a suspended six-month jail term and ordered to enter into a bond which would stipulate that she would attend a power-sewing course in Burnaby, continue medical treatment and make restitution at a rate of $25 a month starting Aug. 1, 1971.

She had admitted July 21 that she obtained $319 worth of goods from Simpsons-Sears by using someone else's charge plate and the judge Friday added this unofficial condition: "Keep your hands off other people's property."

□

Keith David Thomson, 19, of 617 Gorge, wa remanded to Aug. 6 for a pre-sentence report and sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted suicide. Court was told he held a six-inch hunting knife to his stomach for 20 minutes early Wednesday in a Victoria cafe until police persuaded him to put it away. There was mention of difficulties over a girl and loss of money.

□

Raymond Fenwich, 40, no fixed address, who pleaded guilty Tuesday to a charge of vagrancy that day in Victoria, was given a six-month suspended jail term. He was instructed to enter into a bond on the condition he take treatment at the Victoria Salvation Army unit for alcoholics.

□

In the court section of Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, a $500 fine and two-year driving ban were given to Douglas Wiesmiller, 1007 Tillicum, who pleaded guilty Tuesday to a charge of criminal negligence.

Court was told then that he caused an accident July 17 on Esquimalt Road which involved three cars. Six persons were hurt, one suffering a fracture, and two of the cars wer destroyed as total damage was estimated at $3,700.

Read how super absorbent CAREFREE Tampons can let a girl stay out longer.

CAREFREE* Tampons protect up to 3 hours longer.
Johnson & Johnson introduces CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. It is, in fact, so absorbent that women have told us that it can be worn up to 3 hours longer than ordinary tampons. Comes in Regular and Super absorbencies.

Available in Regular and Super absorbencies.
Here's why you get longer protection with CAREFREE: a traditional tampon expands lengthwise—becomes long and thin. CAREFREE is different. CAREFREE expands in width.
It expands into a full, round, natural shape that adjusts itself to the body contours, moulding faithfully.
So CAREFREE protects better and longer.
CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon you can buy. It's smaller than a lipstick. That's because you don't need an applicator with CAREFREE. There's only the tampon—compact, smooth and firm enough to be used without an applicator.
And because there's no cumbersome applicator to get rid of, CAREFREE is a truly disposable tampon.
Try the CAREFREE Tampon—a new concept in sanitary protection. It's the mini-tampon with the super absorbency.

Politician and mermaid in puppet show

Unique Puppets

...And No Strings Attached

Coad Canada Puppets will present their new production Hans, the Mermaid's Son at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday at the Newcombe auditorium.

Sixteen puppets have been designed and created by Luman Coad, 28, and his wife, Arlyn, of North Vancouver.

The puppets for the show are almost two feet tall and will be operated by four puppeteers. All facets of professional theatre are included in the production — script, players, voices, scenery, props, lighting and music.

The original script by David Jones of San Francisco unfolds a story based on a traditional Danish folk-tale about a lad with incredible strength and an appetite to match. Four puppeteers will represent the 16 personalities in the play.

★ ★ ★

Coad said Coad Canada Puppets is so named to identify the work as purely Canadian.

"In the past, Canada has not been represented in world puppetry to any great extent," he said.

Coad said he began working professionally in puppetry when taking a four-year course in children's theatre at San Francisco State College 10 years ago.

Born in Idaho, Coad moved to Canada in 1965 and became a Canadian citizen. The same year, he married Arlyn, who was born in England and studied art in London before moving to Canada.

★ ★ ★

"Puppetry was a hobby for both of us but demands took more and more time and we went into it full time," Coad said.

He said Coad Canada Puppets has been in show business for four years, performing around the Vancouver area. Coad hopes to eventually branch out across Canada.

Coad said the puppets used are called rod puppets and are an old form of puppetry, redeveloped in Russia about 55 years ago and now commonly used in Eastern Europe.

"The puppeteer has more control over rod puppets than he would over string puppets such as the Salzburg Marionettes," Coad said.

With one hand, the puppeteer below the stage controls two rods attached to the hands of the puppet. With the other hand, the puppetter works a wooden mechanism inside the body of the puppet which controls its head movements, Coad said.

Tickets may be reserved at the Bastion Theatre, 30 Bastion Square or by telephoning 382-4112.

Crops Grown On Roof

FOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — Coy and Worlie Fountain will harvest their corn crop in a few days, but they'll have to get up on the roof of their store to do it. The Fountain brothers have been growing crops on the top of their store in this small community about 25 miles north of Wilmington since 1960. They also have 50 watermelons and a 40-foot row of potatoes growing on the roof.

School Resegregation Bid

Negroes Woo Segregationists

By KENNETH REICH
Colonist-Los Angeles Times News Service

MOBILE, Ala. — The black-dominated Congress of Racial Equality is appealing to segregationist whites here to back a plan to resegregate the Mobile schools by dividing the present county district into one predominatly black and another predominantly white.

National CORE leaders came here this week to invite the whites to join in an automobile caravan to the state capitol at Montgomery to ask Governor Albert Brewer to call a special session of the Alabama legislature to pass an enabling bill.

★ ★ ★

Mobile, integrated partially this past spring, faces a court order for sharply increased integration this fall. The community, long one of the most resistant in the South to desegregation, is tense.

Associate CORE director Victor Solomon said Mobile had been selected as a "logical area" for first putting his organizations re-segregation plan into effect.

★ ★ ★

"We see Mobile as a model which could be duplicated, we feel, in any urban area," Solomon said. "It is an excellent example of an area where you have a sizable, compact black community with schools staffed and attended by blacks, but run by whites. The blacks have no access to the source of control — the school board.

"The natural solution is to bring about two districts following natural community lines. The blacks would have real access to control."

★ ★ ★

Solomon said Roy Innis, the national head of CORE, had toured six Southern states last winter before settling on this city as the test case, in part because a small number of local blacks was willing to campaign for the plan, in part because he saw a distinct possibility of white segregationist help in advancing it.

Putting the plan before the whites here Tuesday night was William Powell, a black businessman who heads the local CORE affiliate called STEP (Step Towards Educational Progress).

★ ★ ★

Powell was cheered in the stifling auditorium where the almost all-white rally was held when he called for creation of two school districts "along natural community boundaries."

"We need special legislation," he told the white crowd. "With your help, it could be forthcoming."

Powell said the proposed black district would contain 21,000 black and 5,000 white pupils, while the white district would have 31,000 whites and 9,000 blacks.

Solomon explained later an arrangement would be made between the two districts to allow the white students in the black district to transfer into the white one and the blacks in the white district to transfer into the black one.

"All that the Supreme Court has ever said is that within a given district, it is illegal to separate by race," he said.

In Powell's speech, he placed emphasis on what he said were the differing cultures of the white and black communities here, while referring only gingerly to the black power aspects of the CORE plan.

Visitors Given Time Guard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To protect them from possible attack, the state department programs listing the movements of official visitors to the United States will no longer contain specific times.

State department officials cited the attempt on the life of Chinese Defence Minister Chiang Chiang Ching-Kuo in New York earlier this year in explaining the change.

MORE MADNESS: A U.S. government survey shows that more than 80 per cent of the 164 movies shown on the three U.S. networks in the last half of 1969 were cut by two minutes or more. Few cuts were made for "taste" reasons while almost all were because of lack of time. After all, if there were no commercials, there would be no TV and no movies.

The forthcoming TV disappearance of cigarette sponsors recently caused CBS to slash its staff. Now, NBC has done the same, despite the fact that its place in RCA gives it a more solid financial base . . . TV's recession means very few series pilots are being made. A New York report says $100,000,000 was spent on unsold pilots during the 1960s . . . Nancy Dickerson has quit NBC News in a pay dispute and will (surprise!) write a book.

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's answer, again not so useless, involved the three mayors in southern Vancouver Island outside the heavily-settled area, to wit, Archie Galbraith of Central Saanich, Jim Cumming of North Saanich and Stanley Dear of Sidney. And I thank Nancy Brown for the information.

Today's question — How good is your memory. I wonder? What we're after today are the names of the mayors of Victoria, Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay before the present mayors took over. And who won the Miss Victoria title this year? Answers Friday.

"Sounds like CANNED laughter to me."

Thursday Highlights

NOTE: Today's hydroplane biggies are at 5:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 7, 11:30 p.m. on Channel 5. Ah well, the movies are so poor this vroom-vroom vapidity is almost worth watching.

6:00 p.m. — A new folk music series—9.

C-8:00 — I know Happy Days isn't much, but Duke Ellington always is — 7.

C-10:00 — Civilisation is always the best of its day. Today's era involves Beethoven, Turner, Byron and Rodin. A good group — 2, 6.

Thursday Movies

9:00 a.m. — Escape in the Desert (1945 nothing). Warners turned Petrified Forest into a wartime Nazis-in-Arizona loser. Having enlightened you to that extent, may I add you should forget it? — 4.

C-12:45 noon — Racing Blood (1954 boy and his colt). Jimmy Boyd, who eventually got what he wanted for Christmas — 6, 8.

5:30 p.m. — Thieves' Highway (silly 1949 hijackers). Richard Conte, Lee Cobb. Hear about the Pole who hijacked a bus on the way to the airport?—12.

6:00 — Spaceways (ancient 1953 sci-fi), Howard Duff. May be changed, but to what nobody knows, or cares — 13.

C-7:00 — Damn the Defiant (fairish 1962 warship-command drama). Guinness, Bogarde, Anthony Quayle. With them, it should be better, but it's still the best of the day — 12.

C-9:00 — Law and Jake Wade (fairly good 1959 western), Robert Taylor, Richard Widmark and an actor I admire, Henry Silva — 7.

11:00 — Let's Rock (1958 let's not), Julius La Rosa, Della Reese, Paul Anka. They're not going to improve — 11

11:30 — Lady Godiva (1956 horse-laugh), Maureen O'Hara. Don't bother: she wears a body stocking — 7.

11:45 — Beyond the Curtain (sub-par 1961 espionage), Richard Greene, Eva Bartock and Victoria's own Marius Goring — 2.

11:55 — Missile to the Moon (1959 miss) — 6.

12:00 — No title available. May be changed — 13.

1:05 a.m. — Battle Stations (routine 1956 action), Richard Boone, another good actor, but one who has made a lot of lemons, like this — 5.

Thursday Radio

7:00 p.m. — A report on Lunenberg, N.S.—CBU (690).

8:05 — Gala Performance features Beethoven's third concerto, by Gary Garaffman — CFMS (98.5).

11:00 — A Winnipeg proms concert: mainly Mussorgsky's Pictures at An Exhibition — CBU-FM (105.7).

C — Color.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

It was Izaak Walton, author of "The Compleat Angler," who first employed the phrase, "Virtue is its own reward," but there is little doubt that Izaak's proposition holds equally good when applied to bridge.

Consider this deal which occurred during a World Championship match between Britain and North America. Terence Reese, famous British star, made the small slam in fine style by end playing his opponent, but he gained nothing really tangible from the deal because at the other table South landed the same contract simply by taking a finesse.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣	3◇	3♡
4◇	6♣	All Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ◇

The American declarer won the diamond opening in dummy and speedily put matters to the test by taking a finesse in trumps. When this was successful he was more or less home and he subsequently lost one trick in spades to make six-odd.

In Room 2 the British declarer followed an entirely different tack. Instead of winning the diamond opening with the ace, he played low in dummy and ruffed in his own hand. Then he laid down the A-K of trumps, hoping to drop the queen.

When the queen failed to fall, he switched to the A-K of hearts. Then he led the eight of hearts, which East covered with the nine. Declarer ruffed this and exited with a trump, forcing East to return either a spade or a diamond.

By this method of play the declarer compelled East to provide him with an extra entry to dummy, which he employed to ruff another heart, so establishing two long heart tricks. Declarer was thus able to discard two spades on the hearts and another on the ace of diamonds, in that way avoiding the cost of a spade trick.

In the actual case declarer gained no match points by this method of play but at least he had the satisfaction of knowing that he played the hand perfectly.

LIVE IN A GARDEN
Have you ever wanted a home that made you feel like you were living in your own "BUTCHART GARDEN." We have such a home, with so many distinctive features, words will not describe them. Among these are such things as tall evergren trees, closing out the outside world — expensive, semi-tropical shrubs, fishpool, secluded patio, year-round beauty in bright flowers from roses to heather. The home itself is custom built and finished with plaster and natural woods — and choice decorating.
When you come home from a long day of work this haven of rest will truly make you feel like King of TROPICAL ISLE.

253 COUNTRY HOMES AND PROPERTIES

MANY YEARS AGO, on what was then the main road to SIDNEY, a farming family built a four-square home of California Redwood. It was, and is, a gracious home of wide halls, spacious rooms, (LR 16x27) with panoramic views of the sea. Through the years the kitchen has been renovated, a conservatory added to the family room, automatic heating and carports installed, and the land cut down to 1 acre, with numerous fruit trees, shrubs, garden area, and as a bonus a gigantic Nevada Coulter Pine treed probably the only one on the island. A delightful home for those who enjoy country living with city conveniences. Offered at $37,500 with 9¼ per cent financing. Call STAN MITCHELL at 656-3924 or 386-2111. Nanaimo Firm in View

Cost-Sharing Wanted On Play Facilities

NANAIMO — Nanaimo city council will not pay for additional recreation facilities unless outside areas, or the regional board, contributes.

That was the view put forward Wednesday by Mayor Frank Ney and Ald. Ken Medland, chairman of the city's pollution control committee.

They were discussing objections by conservationists and Nanaimo branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control to a proposed marina development at the mouth of the Millstone River.

★ ★ ★

A Vancouver developer has received tentative approval from city council to build a marina for 500 boats. However, SPEC officials are urging that the land should be preserved as a park area. They suggest that the marina should be located in Newcastle Channel where there are existing marinas.

The officials expressed a fear that a marina development at the Millstone would cause oil, sewage and gas pollution, ruining swimming in the area.

"I can appreciate how SPEC feels," said Ney Wednesday. "Idealistically, it would be nice to have this area in park. But we're talking of $250,000, which would give the people of Nanaimo a lot of other benefits.

"When you consider that we have 15,000 people living in our city and 2,000 are on welfare, we have to watch our tax dollars.

"It's the same old story," he said. "Nanaimo people are being asked to pay for another facility for the whole area."

Ney also noted that "many people who are opposed to the marina development do not live in the city and, therefore, would not be involved in any tax increase that would result if the area were developed as a park."

SPEC president Wayne Harling contends: "We are concerned with the possible aesthetic pollution in what is potentially one of the most beautiful areas in Nanaimo harbor. If the present marinas are any indication of what can be expected in this area, it might be wiser to develop the area using public funds or else leave it alone."

Medland said his committee would look into the SPEC request, but promised nothing definite.

Ney

"There are legal aspects now involved," he said. "This land was zoned for the purpose specified by the marina developer. Council feels this could be good for Nanaimo."

Medland backed Ney's statement on a moratorium on further recreation development, without outside help. "If anyone it will have to be the regional district," he said.

'I Paid for Repairs'

★ ★ ★

Accident Statement Issued

★ ★ ★

COURTENAY — Suspended city administrator William Moore said Wednesday his recent accident in a city-owned car "did not involve any other person, vehicle or alcohol."

Moore, suspended by Mayor George Hobson 15 days ago, said that "due to the unprecedented amount of publicity emanating from the mayor's press release concerning my recent accident with a city-owned vehicle and my subsequent suspension I feel a statement of clarification is overdue."

"I want to make it abundantly clear," Moore said in the prepared statement, "that the incident was an accident and did not involve any other person, vehicle or alcohol.

"The nature of my business at Bates Beach was not of an official city classification. Cost of repairs to said vehicle were paid by myself."

Moore added that he was alone in the city car at the time of the accident.

In the mayor's statement, the reason given for the suspension was "extremely bad judgement in the misuse of a city vehicle which subsequently became heavily damaged."

It is understood that no accident reports were filed, indicating the damage to be under $200, the maximum amount that can be caused without an accident form being filed with police.

The statement of the city Labor Relations Committee is expected to be made to council this week. No information has been given out by the committee following a meeting with Moore last week.

Priory-Title Claim Triggers Silence

The Capital Region's hospital board Wednesday received without comment a copy of a letter from Mother Cecilia Mary that claims she has the title to St. Mary's Priory, the extended-care hospital in Colwood.

Now the operator of the Good Shepherd animal shelter at Mill Bay, she wrote Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, saying the sisters working at the priory do not have the authority to sell the hospital.

(There recently has been discussion of the possibility of the priory's buildings and lands being purchased by the regional hospital board.)

Mother Cecilia Mary wrote Loffmark:

★ ★ ★

"Somewhere, about four or five years ago, without the knowledge of the majority of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, who own the property, a new society was formed with four of our sisters and two others who do not legally belong to the society.

"This new Society of the Love of Jesus is not the society that owns the property."

A letter to Loffmark from lawyers representing the society says there is only one Society of the Love of Jesus, it is properly incorporated and is the registered owner of the land and buildings that constitute the priory.

Drivers Fined

CHEMAINUS — Wilbert Montgomery, 62, of Nanaimo pleaded guilty Monday to impaired driving and was fined $300. His licence was suspended for three months.

A similar fine was given to Randolph Peter James of Kuper Island, who also pleaded guilty to impaired driving. His right to obtain a driver's licence was suspended for three months.

Campbell River Incident

'Lost' Boy Slept Through Search

CAMPBELL RIVER — While a full-scale search party including two boats and a helicopter scoured channels north of Campbell River for a 16-year-old boater, he was sleeping peacefully at a friend's house.

Martin Regan of Campbell River was reported missing Tuesday night after he failed to return from a trip to Stuart Island, about 40 miles north of Campbell River, in a 16-foot outboard motor boat.

The search party was organized by the boy's father, Dan Regan, about 11:30 p.m. and combed the area throughout the night.

★ ★ ★

There was no sign of the youth or his boat.

Then early Wednesday as a worried Dan Regan cruised along the northern coast of Quadra Island, about 30 miles north of Campbell River, he saw his son's boat tied up at a Poulton Bay dock.

Inside a nearby house he found his son, alive and well.

The boy had spent the night with friends after his boat ran out of gas near Poulton Bay.

Glad Advice

In writing about the culture of the gladiolus, I could, of course, simply say "do this" and "do that" without any explanation, but it seems to me that the present-day hobby gardener expects something more than cold-turkey instructions; he wants to understand the why's and wherefore's too. With this in mind, I think we might take a look at the rather unusual root system of the gladiolus, for this has a decided bearing on the treatment this flower should have.

At planting time, if you take a good close look at the bottom of a glad bulb, you will see a circle of little white swellings or pustules around the edge of the root scar. These are the embryo roots, and very soon after planting your bulbs, these roots will be pushing out into the surrounding soil.

Actually, the function of this first set of roots is more of anchorage than of providing food for the topgrowth, for at this stage the plant is living upon the nutrients stored in the bulb and doesn't need very much from the soil except moisture.

Later in the summer, just before the flower spike can be felt within the sheath of leaves, a new and quite different set of roots starts to form. This time they come, not from the bottom of the bulb you planted, but from its top, just at the base of the new plant.

While the first set of roots was rather thin and fibrous, these new roots are thicker and more fleshy. They grow at a very rapid rate, and they are hungry brutes, foraging widely for food and plunging deeply for moisture.

These thick second roots perform several different functions. First, they take over the job of supplying food to the plant, for all the nutrients stored in the old bulb are now exhausted and the old bulb itself is beginning to shrink and wither. This is why it is important to incorporate plenty of good stuff in the gladiolus plot at planting time.

Another function of the new roots is to provide additional anchorage at a time when it is badly needed. At this stage the topgrowth is growing tall and the flower spike is shooting away up, and without a really good grip on the soil, your plants will become top-heavy and fall or be blown over.

This is why the manure or compost used in preparing the gladiolus site should be thoroughly and intimately mixed into the soil, to encourage these fleshy roots to spread widely and plunge deeply for their fare — we don't want them pausing to exploit any lumps or concentrations of goodness encountered in the soil.

By the same token, any water you give your glads should be enough to penetrate away down deep. Glads use a lot of water at this stage of their growth, but you don't want these important anchor roots hanging around just under the surface waiting for their daily handout. This is why I grow my glads in shallow trenches — so they can be flooded with the hose.

Still another function of the second roots is to feed and plump up the new bulb for next year's flowers. The roots work in close co-operation with the leaves on this job, so it is important when cutting the flower spike to leave as much foliage on the plant as possible. Don't neglect your plants after the flowers have been cut; keep up the care and watering, for the longer you can keep those leaves green and functioning, the bigger and better bulbs you will dig up this fall.

ART BUCHWALD

Banks Give to Get

WASHINGTON — U.S. saving banks have gone into the free gift business in a big way. In order to attract depositors, the banks are giving away everything from color TV sets to lawn mowers, and the competition to give away gifts is getting fierce.

I went into a bank the other day to break a $20 bill, and as I arrived at the window the cashier handed me a pressure cooker.

★ ★ ★

"No," I said, "I don't want a pressure cooker, I just want to . . ."

She leaned down and came up with a box. "How about a steam iron with 21 steam vents?"

"Thank you very much, but I would like to . . ."

"All right. We'll give you a clock radio that lights up in the dark."

"Miss, I don't want to be ungrateful, but all I need is change for a $20 bill."

The cashier pressed a button and suddenly two bank guards were standing on each side on me. "Come this way please and don't make a fuss."

They escorted me to the desk of a vice-president and stood on each side of me, their hands on their revolvers.

"Doesn't want the pressure cooker, the steam iron or the clock radio," one of the guards said.

"A real troublemaker," the other guard added.

The vice-president said, "I'm sure we can work something out."

"Good," I said, handing him the $20 bill.

★ ★ ★

"Put your money away," he said angrily. Then he took out a catalogue. "Would you settle for a three-piece bedroom set?"

I shook my head.

"All right. We'll put in a new kitchen for you, but you'll have to keep the $20 in for a full year."

"I don't want to deposit the $20. I just want change for it."

The vice-president looked at me quizzically.

"Keep an eye on him" he said to the guards. Then he disappeared into an inner office. He returned 15 minutes later with anther man who introduced himself as a senior vice-president. "I see Collins here has been offering you a lot of junk. It's obvious you're a man of taste and elegance."

★ ★ ★

"Thank you," I said. I held up the $20 bill.

"Come this way," the senior vice-president said, taking my $20 bill.

He ushered me into his office which was covered with paintings.

"Now we can either give you this original El Greco, or the Van Gogh, privided you don't withdraw the $20 in the bank for two years."

"They're very nice, but I need the money."

"You are difficult, aren't you? Would you consider a quarter interest in the Pan Am building? For that you would have to leave the $20 in for five years."

★ ★ ★

I was getting angry. "Look," I said, "I do not wish to open an account in your bank. If you don't want to change my $20 bill, I'll go across the street."

"All right, if you're going to be tough, we'll get tough," he said. "We'll give you a private plane, a Rolls Royce, and Bebe Rebozo's home in Key Biscayne, Florida. That's our final offer."

I took the $20 back in disgust and went across the street to the other bank. But I was blocked at the door by four FBI agents.

"What's going on?" I asked.

"There's been a holdup," one of the FBI men said. "The robbers got away with three phonographs, a garbage disposal unit and an electric blanket."

Camus Modern Job

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

The Paris newspapers bore a one-word headline: "Absurd!"

The story is now familiar. Nobel Prize winner Albert Camus, intended to take a train to Paris. The chance comment of a friend led him to drive.

Within a few hours, Camus' mangled body was sprawled on the back seat of the car which had attempted a curve at over 90 miles an hour.

The brightest light in French literature was extinguished in a second. "Absurd" was the only word for it — a word which the novelist himself had made famous.

Albert Camus had developed the theme that at the centre of man, dominating the great moments of his life, is an essential absurdity. All of life adds up to grave question-marks and to serious and inexplicable doubts.

★ ★ ★

Life is riddled with incongruities, and fails to measure up to our best expectations. It does not make sense. It seems to be devoid of any profound reason for living, and for loving.

In many ways Camus was the modern Job. Job was not able to accept the apparent meaninglessness of life. He kept asking questions for which there seemed to be no answers. His patience was tried and his hope was shattered.

Yet the whole message of Job is one that has vital significance and which sheds light on the questions which Camus had raised.

Job's friends did not comfort him. In the end, however, it was Job who found comfort himself — but not with any of his answers, only with his own questions.

One who has never been radically bewildered, who has never looked upon life and his own existence as a phenomenon which requires answers and yet, paradoxically, for which the only answers are new questions, can hardly understand the meaning of life.

And yet this is precisely the way in which the religious person is taught to view life — to live with the mystery of unanswered questions.

Ultimately, at the close of his life, Job is able to do just that, and this is what gave his life meaning and power.

His ability to transcend meaninglessness was the greatest meaning he had discovered. How did he do it?

He was able to live with the questions even in the absence of answers. He lived with the mystery of life's ineffable wonders and sorrows which defy final and full comprehension. He could affirm life even though he could not fully understand it.

Spare Girls These

Says HAL BOYLE

Remarks a bachelor girl gets tired of hearing:

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. He's still got all his own teeth."

"If you're simply waiting for the perfect man to come along, you'd better give up. He doesn't exist."

"Sorry, Miss, no offence intended, but as a matter of policy we never serve unescorted ladies at the bar."

"How many — just one? This is our rush hour. I'm afraid there will be a half-hour wait for singles."

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. A real intellectual. He once taught swimming at Harvard, and now he owns three pools of his own."

"How about baby-sitting for us tonight, Beulah? I know you rarely do anything on Fridays except wash your hair, and you can do that over here."

"Well, if you don't want to see mine, why don't we go to your apartment instead and look at your etchings?"

"No we haven't met, but your friend Jim told me to phone you the next time I was in town. What do you mean you don't have a friend named Jim? Every girl has a friend named Jim."

"We can always fill up the table by asking Beulah at the last moment. She's usually glad to get a good square meal — if somebody else cooks it."

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. He can even do card tricks."

"If you're still hungry, kiddo, order another hamburger. When you go with Harry, you go first class."

"Well, I guess you still haven't given up hope, have you, Beulah? If you had you'd have probably bought yourself a cat or a parakeet."

"Maybe she's got a secret goal — such as trying to stop the human population explosion all by herself."

"Charlie and I have had another terrible fight over how much I spent over our budget, Beulah. Mind if I trot over and sleep on your sofa tonight? He should calm down by tomorrow, particularly if he has to fix his own breakfast."

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. I almost married him myself once."

"You may be having a lot of fun playing the field now, Beulah, but who'll you have around the house to listen to you when you're old and grey?"

"I'd propose to you myself, Beulah, but you know how narrow-minded my wife is."

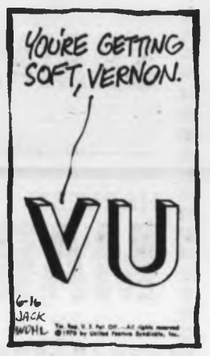

"She and the kids left yesterday to spend two weeks with her folks, so I just thought I'd call you up and see if—."

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. He just got his final divorce papers."

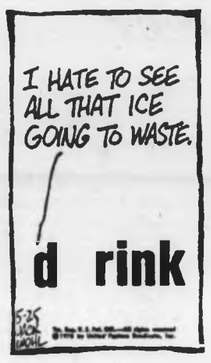

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. He belongs to the same lodge as my husband."

"You'll love this guy, Beulah. He's the man who has everything — everything but you."

B.C.-Yukon Trip Starts Sunday

Trudeau to Ride River

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to the Yukon and British Columbia next week will feature a boat ride down a northern river and many informal meetings with local residents.

The prime minister is scheduled to begin the visit at Watson Lake in the Yukon on Sunday and wind up Saturday in Prince Rupert.

After arriving in Watson Lake, Trudeau will leave immediately for Virginia Falls to board a boat for the ride down the Nahanni River to Nahanni Butte.

He will fly back to Watson Lake Monday in time for a meeting with local people at the community centre, then on to Whitehorse Tuesday for a community picnic, a meeting with young people and a reception given by the Yukon Liberal Association. He will leave Whitehorse late Tuesday for Dawson Creek where he will attend a civic luncheon at the town fire hall and meet the public in a park. He will go to Prince George late Wednesday to hold a news conference and attend a meeting in the town hall. Thursday he visits Barkerville, Quesnel and Williams Lake.

Friday morning he visits Bella Coola where he will meet with indians at the fairgrounds and ride a helicopter to nearby logging operations, then Friday afternoon will fly to Prince Rupert.

VD Worries Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Health department officials are concerned about the rising incidence of veneral disease.

The matter is serious enough that it is likely to be on the agenda of a federal-provincial conference of health officials in October.

Latest health department statistics show there were 13,056 reported cases of gonorrhea to the end of June this year compared to 11,487 cases in the same period last year.

There were 1,154 reported cases of syphilis to the end of June, exactly the same as in the same period last year.

Dr. Stan Acres, medical consultant in epidemiology in the health department, says no conclusions can be draw from the syphilis figures as the incidence of syphilis fluctuates annually.

But the upward swing in gonorrhea "seems to be continuing," he said.

Contract Confirmed

Peace Comes To Vineyards

DELANO, Calif. — Labor peace came to the vineyards here Wednesday when growers and Caesar Chavz shook hands over a contract giving workers a pay raise and freeing most of California table grapes from worldwide boycott.

A grower spokesman said the contract also means "grapes will cost a little more."

Chavez, the leader of the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, told a news conference. "This is the beginning of a new day."

"We too are happy and I suppose overjoyed at the peace that will come to this valley," said John Giumarra Jr., whose family owns the biggest table grape vineyard in the world.

Chavez and Giumarra and 16 other growers announced the settlement in the white-painted room at union headquarters that will serve as a hiring hall under the new contract.

Some 400 workers packed the room, singing, laughing, cheering, applauding in a good-natured celebration of a victory that followed a five-year fight that began when Chavez launched the boycott.

★ ★ ★

It was a historic moment in labor relations history, the biggest victory so far of Chavez' union's attempts to organize farm workers.

Black-eagle strike banners were carried by several of the workers. And, underscoring the Catholic religious background of the Mexican-American workers in the union, a picture of the Virgin Mary and a statue of Christ on the cross were on the walls.

Chavez said the agreement was between the union and 26 growers in the Delano area. They produce half of California's table grape crop. Some 25 per cent of growers in other areas had previously signed and about 25 to 30 per cent of the growers are still holding out.

★ ★ ★

Chavez said the three-year contract will bring to the workers a $1.80 hourly wage plus fringe benefits, going up to $1.95 an hour next year and $2.05 an hour in 1972. In addition, workers will get 20 cents per box of grapes during harvest time.

Even in his moment of triumph, Chavez was sending his troops into another area for another fight.

Fruit Men Disclaim Low Wage

KELOWNA (CP) — Wages of 16 cents a box paid to fruit pickers in the Okanagan are "very respectable" when the low incomes of the growers themselves are considered, the president of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association said Wednesday.

Allan Claridge of Oyama made the comment in denying charges that orchard owners are paying pickers the same wage paid 15 years ago. Picker spokesman Dave Couch of Oliver said when he picked fruit in the middle 1950s, he was paid 12 to 15 cents a box.

He warned that if there weren't improvements in wages and working conditions, many pickers would go on welfare rather than work.

Claridge said the 16 cents a bushel box is almost double the rate paid then in the Okanagan, accommodation for pickers has been upgraded, and unemployment insurance has been extended to cover steady pickers.

Fires Blamed on Two

Faulty Discs Replaced By Canadian Airlines

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada has begun replacing a faulty component in engines of some of its jet aircraft following reports the part may have caused fires in two planes belonging to another airline, a spokesman said.

The component is a compressor disc found in Conway jet engines. Its replacement was recommended by Rolls-Royce following the crash of a BOAC Boeing 707 at Heathrow Airport in 1968. The same component was blamed for a fire in the engine of another BOAC Boeing 707 last month.

Maurice Ouellete, an Air Canada public relations officer, said replacement parts were being sent by Rolls-Royce at the rate of three a month and that 57 engines would have the discs replaced by mid-1971. About one-third of the airline's fleet of some 65 jet aircraft have Rolls-Royce Conway engines.

The engines are found in aircraft used by CP Air, Lufthansa, Alitalia, East African Airways, Air India, Vargin, British United Airways and BOAC as well.

(In Toronto, CP Air public relations director Ronald Keith said CPA had modified 17 of the 27 Conway engines it uses since Rolls-Royce suggested the modification last year, adding that "if there was even the slightest danger," the federal department of transport would ground the unmodified planes or CP Air itself would take them out of service.)

Secret Kept For Career

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — A brother of the late actress Inger Stevens testified Monday that she kept secret her marriage to Isaac (Ike) Jones because she feared her career would be jeopardized by acknowledging a Negro husband.

The testimony was given by Carl Stensland, 34, operator of a restaurant in Harwich Port, Mass., who appeared in court in support of the petition presented by Jones, 40, one-time University of California at Los Angeles football player, for the right to administer and inherit her $171,000 estate.

Miss Stevens, 35, died April 30 at her home here from an overdose of sedatives. She left no will.

Over Jones' objections, a court last May 12 put her estate temporarily in charge of Los Angeles county public administrator Baldo Kristovich. Both he and Jones have each petitioned for appointment as permanent administrator, with Kristovich contending that no valid marriage ceremony was ever performed for Jones and the actress.

MP Suggests Businessmen 'Frightened'

Where Are Critics of B.C.?

By BILL THOMAS

B.C. businessmen are frightened of criticizing provincial government tax policies, a member of the Commons committee hearing briefs on the Benson taxation white paper charged Wednesday.

The issue was raised by Robert Kaplan (L-Don Valley) after he had heard comments on a B.C. Forest Products brief presented by company president Ian Barclay.

● "We're not God," MP tells executive. Page 22.

After listening to Barclay complain that the B.C. Forest industry faces a tax rate of 56 per cent which puts it at a competitive disadvantage with other countries, the Toronto member told the 11-member committee, "This is a peculiar phenomenon in B.C. that hasn't happened elsewhere. There has been no reluctance to criticize the federal tax system by pulp and paper or mining witnesses, but they (B.C. businessmen) have been unwilling to comment on provincial taxes.

"It makes one wonder what kind of a democratic society exists here in B.C. Businessmen here are afraid to comment and I haven't found this in other provinces."

Neither Barclay or K. P. Benson, financial vice-president of the company, commented.

In an aside, Ray Perrault (L.-Burnaby-Seymour) said, "As a British Columbian I hope that at some point in the near future the taxation and finance committee of the provincial legislature will be empowered to hold hearings in all parts of our province with respect to provincial taxation and the need for reform.

"I feel sure that many British Columbians, including many businessmen, would be pleased to suggest the kinds of tax changes needed at the provincial level."

In another exchange, when the Council of B.C. Forest

By DON COLLINS

Robert Bonner, former B.C. attorney-general and now one of the top men in the forest industry, is reported to have taken action Wednesday to remove the threat of an immediate industry lockout throughout the sprawling Coast region.

There was no official confirmation of this. But sources said Bonner was brought into the picture to "cool" a dangerous situation that could have ended special hearings into the industry's major labor dispute.

In a separate action later in the day, the International Woodworkers of America removed one of the obstacles blocking the way to possible settlement. The union said its members at Tahsis on Vancouver Island had agreed to return to work, putting an end to a walkout that began 10 days ago.

★ ★ ★

Walter Allen, president of the IWA's Port Alberni local, said the Tahsis Co. sawmill would not be able to return to full operation immediately but that the company had promised to take back striking employees without delay.

The developments came as Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz continued hearings aimed at finding settlement for 30,000 Coast region forest workers and 114 companies represented by Forest Industrial Relations.

Nemetz, appointed by the province, said he hopes to begin writing a report by the middle or end of next week. He has the power to bring down recommendations for a new contract.

★ ★ ★

The last contract for the Coast region expired June 15 and the IWA and FIR have traded strike and lockout notices. It had been understood that no major action would be taken while the hearings were being conducted.

However, Nemetz had to

Severe Quake In Iran

TEHRAN (UPI) — A major earthquake struck northeastern Iran early today near the Iran-Soviet border, a Red Cross spokesman said. He said officials feared a heavy loss of life.

★ ★ ★

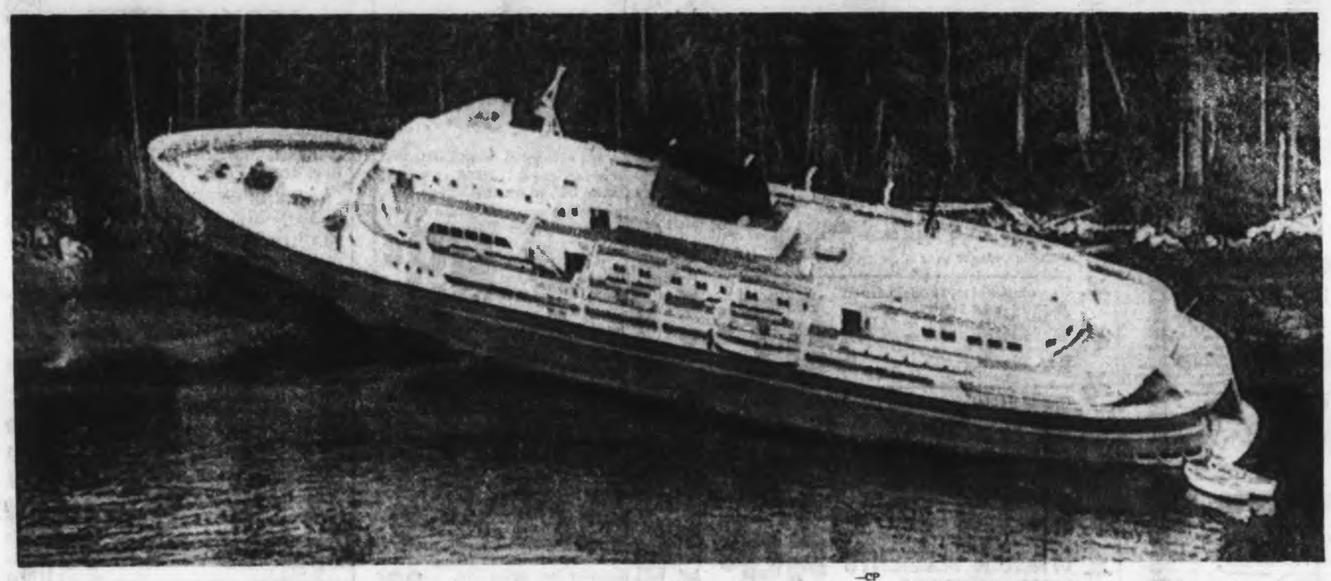

Reports reaching Tehran were sketchy but the tremor appeared centred near the village of Sharabad, 430 miles northeast of the capital.

"We expect a heavy loss of life because most of the villagers live in adobe and stone houses," the spokesman said.

The national earthquake information centre in Rickville, Md., near Washington, D.C., recorded the shock.

★ ★ ★

The shock registered a magnitude of 6.9 on the Richter scale of measurement. Scientists at the centre said it was of nearly comparable magnitude to an earthquake in Iran Aug. 31, 1968, that killed 11,000 persons. The quake registered 7.3 on the Richter scale.

Taku on rocks, nose among trees

Try Today to Free Ferry

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An attempt was scheduled early today to pull the Alaska ferry Taku from the rocky foreshore of West Kinahan Island where she piled up Wednesday with 342 persons aboard.

partment of transport and other officials were studying means of dealing with the problem of cleaning up hundreds of gallons of oil spilling from the 352-foot vessel's ruptured tanks and threatening to pollute the harbor of this northern British Columbia deep-sea port of 16,000 persons.

★ ★ ★

Disaster struck the Taku almost at the end of a southbound run to Prince Rupert from Juneau, Alaska. Steaming at a brisk 17 knots, she apparently missed the turn into the harbor and slammed into West Kinahan, one of a group of four islands near the harbor entrance and about eight miles west of the city. The midnight watch was taking over from the night watch at the time.

She hit with "an awful jar" and ended "right up in the trees," one member of the crew recounted.

No one was seriously injured. Within minutes an oil tanker, a pilot boat and fishing boats were on the scene. Passengers were taken off the stricken ferry by lifeboat to the waiting boats, then on to Prince Rupert where emergency quarters were set up in the Moose Hall.

★ ★ ★

Throughout Wednesday the Taku remained high and dry on the beach, almost half her length tightly jammed on rock and her bow nudging the trees covering the island.

An oil slick more than three miles wide spread slowly outward from the stranded vessel. A spokesman for the harbor master's office said the slick appeared to be moving seaward and posed no immediate threat to the harbor.

The Taku had taken on fuel at Ketchikan, Alaska, less than 100 miles northwest of Prince Rupert only hours before. With her tanks carrying a near capacity 137,096 gallons of oil, port officials feared they might be facing a major oil pollution problem.

But Wednesday afternoon, the huge oil slick was observed to move away from the vessel, indicating that probably only one tank containing some 19,000-gallons of medium-weight bunker fuel

Iraqis in Jordan Back Guerrillas

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Iraq placed its estimated 10,000 troops in Jordan Wednesday under the over-all command of the central committee of the Palestinian guerrilla organizations, Baghdad radio reported.

An announcer, describing what he termed "a massive" protest demonstration in the Iraqui capital, said the move was designed to help guerrillas cope with the situation arising from the acceptance by Jordan and Egypt of the United States proposals for an Arab-Israeli peaceful settlement.

Smog Nearing Hudson's Bay

● New York smog emergency deepens. Page 3.

From UPI

The air pollution and smog affecting cities the world around in this July heat wave reaches northward into Eastern Canada, over miles of forest wilderness, almost to the shores of Hudson's Bay.

In Montreal, a pollution investigator quarrelled sharply with the city's official stand that there was no unusual air pollution Wednesday, calling the city's method of measuring it "absolute nonsense," and "a con game."

In Toronto, the pollution problem eased a bit Wednesday after a rainfall.

"The nearest place with clear air is up at Moosonee on Hudson's Bay," said a forecaster at the weather office in Ottawa Wednesday. "The low visibility starts just south of there."

Legal Aid Not for 'Guilty'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A magistrate has criticized lawyers who recommend free legal aid for indigent persons when some are "obviously guilty" of the charges against them.

Magistrate Mike Baryluk said in an interview that "free legal aid should be provided only for person who have a reasonable defence . . . who can profit honestly by a lawyer's advice."

Baryluk made the remarks Tuesday after he denied bail to a man charged with possession of stolen credit cards and false pretences, and placed another man on one year's probation and gave him a $50 fine for false pretences. Both men had been advised by their lawyer to plead not guilty and ask for a court-appointed lawyer to handle their case. Bail had also been asked in both cases.

After questioning the first man to determine if he qualified for release until his trial, the magistrate concluded he was guilty and criticized the lawyer's decision.

"The lawyer's duty is not to ask for free legal aid when the accused is obviously guilty." He said the only purpose the procedure serves is "to stall the case for a month" and provide added revenue for lawyers.

"In too many cases it just wastes time and the taxpayers' money," he said.

Nanaimo Firm in View

Cost-Sharing Wanted For Play Facilities

NANAIMO — Nanaimo city council will not pay for additional recreation facilities unless outside areas, or the regional board, contributes.

That was the view put forward Wednesday by Mayor Frank Ney and Ald. Ken Medland, chairman of the city's pollution control committee.

They were discussing objections by conservationists and Nanaimo branch of the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control to a proposed marina development at the mouth of the Millstone River.

★ ★ ★

A Vancouver developer has received tentative approval from city council to build a marina for 500 boats. However, SPEC officials are urging that the land should be preserved as a park area. They suggest that the marina should be located in Newcastle Channel where there are existing marinas.

The officials expressed a fear that a marina development at the Millstone would cause oil, sewage and gas pollution, ruining swimming in the area.

"I can appreciate how SPEC feels," said Ney Wednesday. "Idealistically, it would be nice to have this area in park. But we're talking of $250,000, which would give the people of Nanaimo a lot of other benefits.

"When you consider that we have 13,000 people living in our city and 2,000 are on welfare, we have to watch our tax dollars.

"It's the same old story," he said. "Nanaimo people are being asked to pay for another facility for the whole area."

Ney also noted that "many people who are opposed to the marina development do not live in the city and, therefore, would not be involved in any tax increase that would result if the area were developed as a park."

SPEC president Wayne Harling contends: "We are concerned with the possible aesthetic pollution in what is potentially one of the most beautiful areas in Nanaimo harbor. If the present marinas are any indication of what can be expected in this area, it might be wiser to develop the area using public funds or else leave it alone."

★ ★ ★

Medland said his committee would look into the SPEC request, but promised nothing definite.

"There are legal aspects now involved," he said. "This land was zoned for the purpose specified by the marina developer. Council feels this could be good for Nanaimo."

Medland backed Ney's statement on a moratorium on further recreation development, without outside help. "If anyone it will have to be the regional district," he said.

Car, trailer rest in ditch

Serious Blaze Feared After Trailer Jacknifes

DUNCAN — North Cowichan firefighters rushed to the scene of an accident involving a car and trailer Wednesday when two propane tanks from the trailer ruptured under the car.

There was no fire in the accident, however, and no injuries for the driver, Mrs. Lucille Reynolds of 741 Daffodil, Victoria, or her passerger.

The accident occurred when the trailer jacknifed. Mrs. Reynolds was northbound on the trans-Canada highway when the car went out of control at Norcross Road and ended up in a ditch.

There was $2,000 damage to the trailer and $75 to the car, police here estimated.

New Furnace Just Loves Garbage

Area Out of Dumps As Incinerator Starts

NORTH COWICHAN — Hottest and largest furnace and greatest pollution fighter in North Cowichan is the municipality's incinerator which gobbles up garbage at the rate of three tons an hour, leaving very little residue.

The $35,000 unit at the old Herd Road dump began operating July 15. Total cost of the installation, including the concrete loading aprons and approaches, was $75,000.

The incinerator not only enabled the municipal council to close all the dumps but it also proved to be a clean burning unit.

★ ★ ★

In charge of the operation is C. W. Disposal which has a contract with the municipality. David Woods the firm's president and manager, said the incinerator was designed to burn 12 hours, with a 12-hour cooling off period, after which the burning chamber is emptied.

It works at a temperature of about 1,800 degrees fahrenheit. Total capacity would be about 37 tons of garbage during a one 12-hour burning period but so far only about 10 tons a day are burned.

★ ★ ★

Woods explained that his firm served about 3,000 households and 149 businesses in North Cowichan including Maple Bay, the southend, Chemainus, Westholme and Crofton. It also serves at least 1,000 households and 50 businesses in the unorganized areas of Eagle Heights, Cowichan Bay, Cobble Hill, Koksilah, Mill Bay and Saltair.

The firm pays a rate to the municipality for each household it serves outside the municipality.

Four trucks haul rubbish to the incinerator and one vehicle is used to take the residue to a nearby site where it is used as fill.

As the garbage is dumped on the loading apron, it is pushed through a slot by a caterpillar tractor.

Woods said that before the incinerator went into operation rats were cleared from the dumps to prevent them from spreading into other areas of the municipality.

North Cowichan engineer John Sansom said the Plibrico incinerator was the first in western Canada. He said that several Island municipalities had already shown interest in it.

Next week a Campbell River delegation will study the unit at work.

Woods said it had also been seen by Cowichan Valley regional chairman who was very impressed by its efficiency.

Man Held By Police

NANAIMO — Nanaimo RCMP are holding a man in custody in connection with a holdup at a corner store at about 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Police said a man entered a Super-ette store at the corner of Milton and Albert, wearing a stocking over his head and using a revolver. About $300 was stolen.

Accident Statement Issued

COURTENAY — Suspended city administrator William Moore said Wednesday his recent accident in a city-owned car "did not involve any other person, vehicle or alcohol."

Moore, suspended by Mayor George Hobson 15 days ago, said that "due to the unprecedented amount of publicity emanating from the mayor's press release concerning my recent accident with a city-owned vehicle and my subsequent suspension I feel a statement of clarification is overdue."

"I want to make it abundantly clear," Moore said in the prepared statement, "that the incident was an accident and did not involve any other person, vehicle or alcohol.

"The nature of my business at Bates Beach was not of an official city classification. Cost of repairs to said vehicle were paid by myself."

Moore added that he was alone in the city car at the time of the accident.

In the mayor's statement, the reason given for the suspension was "extremely bad judgement in the misuse of a city vehicle which subsequently became heavily damaged."

It is understood that no accident reports were filed, indicating the damage to be under $200, the maximum amount that can be caused without an accident form being filed with police.

The statement of the city Labor Relations Committee is expected to be made to council this week. No information has been given out by the committee following a meeting with Moore last week.

Campbell River Incident

'Lost' Boy Slept Through Search

CAMPBELL RIVER — While a full-scale search party including two boats and a helicopter scoured channels north of Campbell River for a 16-year-old boater, he was sleeping peacefully at a friend's house.

Martin Regan of Campbell River was reported missing Tuesday night after he failed to return from a trip to Stuart Island, about 40 miles north of Campbell River, in a 16-foot outboard motor boat.

The search party was organized by the boy's father, Dan Regan, about 11:30 p.m. and combed the area throughout the night.

★ ★ ★

There was no sign of the youth or his boat.

Then early Wednesday as a worried Dan Regan cruised along the northern coast of Quadra Island, about 30 miles north of Campbell River, he saw his son's boat tied up at a Poulton Bay dock.

Inside a nearby house he found his son, alive and well.

The boy had spent the night with friends after his boat ran out of gas near Poulton Bay.

High Examination Results

Duncan Pupil Wins Medal

Daniel Wing Wong, a graduate of Cowichan high school, Duncan, has won the Governor-General's bronze medal for an average achievement of 98.5 per cent on government examinations.

Wong, of 81 Trunk Road, Duncan, was near the top of the list in the scholarship results announced Wednesday by Education Minister Donald Brothers.

★ ★ ★

Highest marks in B.C. were achieved by Chris Patrick Archibald of Trail, who graduated from Grade 12 with an average mark of 99 per cent. He wins the Governor-General's silver medal.

The announcement pointed out that three other students earned averages of 98.5 per cent — the achievment of the Duncan student.

However, the provincial board of examiners chose Wong as the most eligible. Included in the three who will not get a bronze medal was William Allan Squires, 4065 Lockehaven Drive, Victoria, a student at Oak Bay high.

Brothers explained that scholarship standings are determined by averaging the two best marks achieved on examinations written in June.

★ ★ ★

Students with high marks have part of their post-secondary tuition fees paid by the government.

Other Vancouver Island students with high marks:

David Joseph Newberry and Bruce Edward Turkington, both of Oak Bay high and both with 98 per cent; Peter Gerald Ludemann, Lake Cowichan high, 96 per cent; Andrew Penn, Shawnigan Lake school, 96 per cent; David Anthony Todd, Oak Bay high, 96 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Patrick Michael Campbell, Oak Bay high, 95.5 per cent; Manfred John Maier, Mount Douglas high, 95.5 per cent; Margaret Karen Roe, Oak Bay high, 95 per cent; Annette Mary Walker, Oak Bay high, 95 per cent.

Among those writing Grade 13 government examinations, Martin Beerns of Port Alberni achieved an average of 82.6 per cent.

Drivers Fined

CHEMAINUS — Wilbert Montgomery, 62, of Nanaimo pleaded guilty Monday to impaired driving and was fined $300. His licence was suspended for three months.

A similar fine was given to Randolph Peter James of Kuper Island, who also pleaded guilty to impaired driving. His right to obtain a driver's licence was suspended for three months.

Eight Groups To Study Area Planning

NANAIMO — Nanaimo regional district will set up eight commissions to advise on planning in communities throughout a large part of the Island's coast.

Regional district chairman Don Beaton asked board members Tuesday for names of nominees to the commissions so that appointments could be made soon.

Areas to be represented are Cedar, Cassidy, Chase River, Gabriola Island, South Wellington and Extension — all south of Nanaimo — plus Parksville, Nanoose, Qualicum, Coombs, Hilliers and Errington.

About 60 people will be asked to serve on the commissions to oversee planning and area development.

Sign Plan Snagged at City Hall

City Manager, Tree Savers Tangle

Tree-lovers, who have mounted a campaign to save Begbie Street trees from being felled in a street-widening program, feel their cause is an urgent one.

Victoria City Manager Dennis Young doesn't.

And so the campaigners were told Tuesday a city hall decision on their application for a permit to erect signs Thursday in downtown Victoria would have to await the next meeting of city council Aug. 13.

Save-the-Trees campaign spokesman Richard Morris said a representative was sent to city hall to get a permit to post two A-frame signs at Yates and Douglas Thursday to advertise the campaign.

Morris said one or two people were to have stood between the signs to collect signatures for a petition against city plans to fell trees on Begbie Street as part of an extension and widening in the area.

Morris said the campaign's representative first went to the city clerk to apply for the permit.

"The impression she had from the city clerk was that it would be all right but to be sure, he referred her to a building inspector who in turn referred her to the city engineers' department where she had to speak to two different people," Morris said. "Finally, after all this playing around, she was referred to the city manager."

He said city manager Dennis Young refused permission to grant the permit, and said permission would have to be granted by city council.

The city notified residents Thursday that workmen may be on their properties within one month, removing trees and other obstructions.

"From that, there can be no doubt our issue is urgent and they know it at city hall. This matter is urgent enough for Young to grant us permission to erect signs downtown," Morris said.

He said a city bylaw stated, "The city manager, in urgent circumstances, or circumstances that can be construed to be so or if the construction is of a minor nature or if it is unlikely to appear more than 72 hours, may exercise the council's powers, with regard to permits for the kind of signs requested.

Morris said interference with pedestrian traffic by the signs would have been of a minor nature. He said they would have been posted on Yates and Douglas for 10 hours Thursday.

"We don't really think it's the city manager's job to turn us down," he said.

Young told the Colonist: "They want a booth on the sidewalk blocking the flow of pedestrians. The bylaw says such a booth can't be set up without approval of the city council," Young said.

He said in extreme emergencies he could issue permits to various organizations for up to 72 hours independently of city council.

"I don't consider a bunch of people trying to save trees an extreme emergency," he said.

Young said the organizers against the city's road-widening plans are faced with taking their petition to city council and are unwilling to do so as stipulated by city bylaw.

Morris said the petition against Victoria's road-widening program, which he said had about 250 signatures by Tuesday night, demanded that the whole matter be referred to a public inquiry before any more action is taken in the Begbie Street area.

Case Solved

Reno Beagle Happy Again

The case of the baffling beagle has been solved.

Thanks to a story in The Daily Colonist, the dog was happily reunited with its owner Monday night.

Mrs. Ruth Sharpe, 485 Nelson in Esquimalt, told the Colonist July 20 she had found the dog near her home three days before. The baffling part of the case was the fact that the dog carried a tag with a number from an animal hospital in Reno, Nevada — and how did it get from there to here?

The story described the dog in detail, but at first, no one claimed it. So Mrs. Sharpe gave the beagle to a woman resident of the Ten-Mile Point area who pledged to give it a good home.

But the owner, a woman who came to this area from Reno some months ago, turned up Monday. Mrs. Sharpe called the woman at Ten-Mile Point and there was "a very happy reunion."

Mrs. Sharpe said the Nevada woman came here some weeks before she had her dog delivered to this area by jet after treatment at the Reno hospital. A male acquaintance of the American woman saw the story and passed the word on at the first opportunity.

Essential Repairs

Library Wants More Cash

The Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee will be asked to come up with $57,600 to supplement this year's budget for the Greater Victoria Public Library.

The additional funds will be used for repairs, new projects and to correct earlier budgeting errors.

Major expenditure will be $28,000 for the first phase of a three-year program of essential repairs and renovations to the main library building.

Members of the Greater Victoria Library Board were told Tuesday that a minimum of $44,810 worth of repairs was required to maintain the building.

"We don't feel we've been extravagant or asked for anything not essential to make this library complex efficient and acceptable to the public," said Col. A. O. Hood, who made the report to the board.

"In the past, the maintenance of this building has been completely ignored. Had we had a progressive maintenance program over a cycle, we wouldn't be faced with this now."

Hood said that unless some work was done on the outside of the building, it is "going to fall to pieces."

The board decided the work would be done in annual phases of $28,000, $9,310 and $7,400.

Another $13,000 of the hoped-for intermunicipal grant will go to Woods Gordon, the management consultants' firm which produced a report on operating the library earlier this year. The additional payment is for further services requested by the board.

★ ★ ★

Improper budgeting accounts for another $12,500 of the request. Board member Peter Pollen, who explained the supplementary budget, said the original budget had been based on a staff of the size recommended by the Woods Gordon report and had not taken into account that it would be some time before this figure was reached.

The final $4,000 will be used to cover expenses of hiring a director of library services and his salary for one or two months. The position is a new one the board decided to create last month.

Malahat Death Crash Suit

Judgment $100,000

Damages totalling $100,000 were awarded by Mr. Justice J. A. Macdonald in Vancouver Tuesday to an Oak Bay family left fatherless as a result of a traffic accident in 1968 on the Malahat Highway.

The action by Brenda Brittain, 2446 Bowker, against the estate of Coleen Dougan, who also lost her life in the mishap, was heard in Victoria but judgment was handed down in B.C. Supreme Court in Vancouver.

George Arthur Brittain, then vice-principal of Nanaimo vocational school, was killed Dec. 16, 1968 when the car he was driving was in a head-on collision with a car driven by Miss Dougan.

The Supreme Court judge held that Miss Dougan was responsible for the mishap.

Macdonald, in assessing damages, took into account Brittain's age at the time of his death — 38 — and the amount of income he might reasonably have brought into his family until his normal retirement.

Macdonald awarded Mrs. Brittain $66,000 and the balance to the four Brittain children, aged eight to 17.

MP Suggests Businessmen 'Frightened'

Where Are Critics of B.C.?

By BILL THOMAS

● "We're not God," MP tells executive. Page 22.

B.C. businessmen are frightened of criticizing provincial government tax policies, a member of the Commons committee hearing briefs on the Benson taxation white paper charged Wednesday.

The issue was raised by Robert Kaplan (L-Don Valley) after he had heard comments on a B.C. Forest Products brief presented by company president Ian Barclay.

After listening to Barclay complain that the B.C. Forest industry faces a tax rate of 56 per cent which puts it at a competitive disadvantage with other countries, the Toronto member told the 11-member committee, "This is a peculiar phenomenon in B.C. that hasn't happened elsewhere. There has been no reluctance to criticize the federal tax system by pulp and paper or mining witnesses, but they (B.C. businessmen) have been unwilling to comment on provincial taxes.

"It makes one wonder what kind of a democratic society exists here in B.C. Businessmen here are afraid to comment and I haven't found this in other provinces."

Neither Barclay or K. P. Benson, financial vice-president of the company, commented.

In an aside, Ray Perrault (L-Burnaby-Seymour) said, "As a British Columbian I hope that at some point in the near future the taxation and finance committee of the provincial legislature will be empowered to hold hearings in all parts of our province with respect to provincial taxation and the need for reform.

"I feel sure that many British Columbians, including many businessmen, would be pleased to suggest the kinds of tax changes needed at the provincial level."

In another exchange, when the Council of B.C. Forest

Bonner 'Cools' Tahsis

By DON COLLINS

Robert Bonner, former B.C. attorney-general and now one of the top men in the forest industry, is reported to have taken action Wednesday to remove the threat of an immediate industry lockout throughout the sprawling Coast region.

There was no official confirmation of this. But sources said Bonner was brought into the picture to "cool" a dangerous situation that could have ended special hearings into the industry's major labor dispute.

In a separate action later in the day, the International Woodworkers of America removed one of the obstacles blocking the way to possible settlement. The union said its members at Tahsis on Vancouver Island had agreed to return to work, putting an end to a walkout that began 10 days ago.

★ ★ ★

Walter Allen, president of the IWA's Port Alberni local, said the Tahsis Co. sawmill would not be able to return to full operation immediately but that the company had promised to take back striking employees without delay.

The developments came as Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz continued hearings aimed at finding settlement for 30,000 Coast region forest workers and 114 companies represented by Forest Industrial Relations.

Nemetz, appointed by the province, said he hopes to begin writing a report by the middle or end of next week. He has the power to bring down recommendations for a new contract.

★ ★ ★

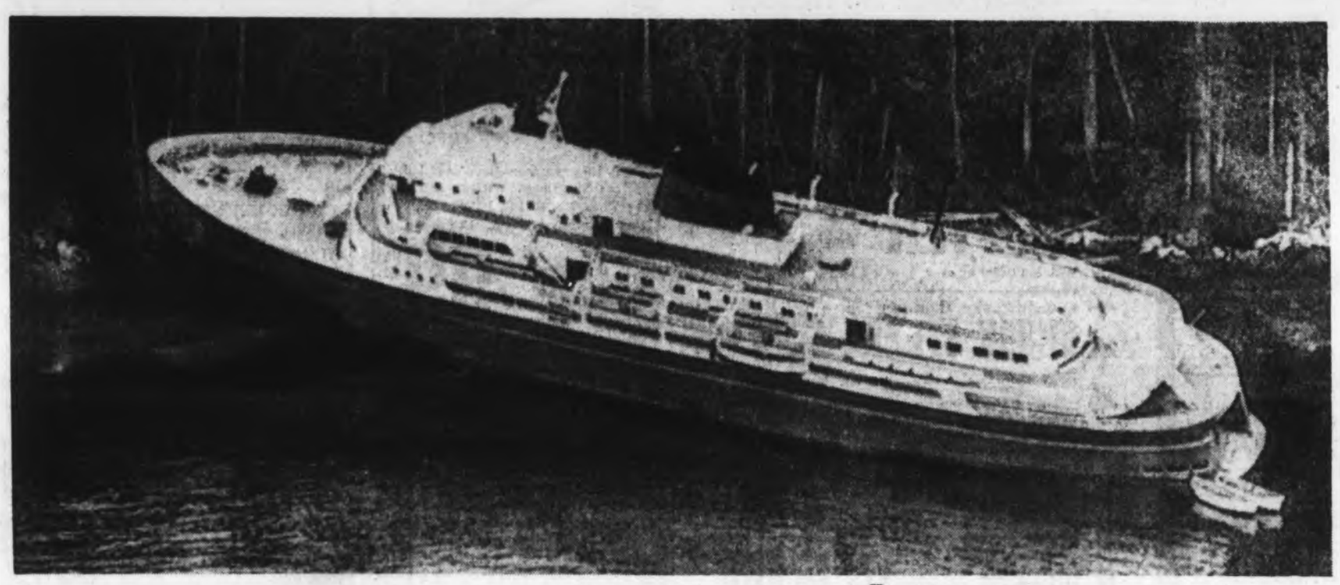

The last contract for the Coast region expired June 15 and the IWA and FIR have traded strike and lockout notices. It had been understood that no major action would be taken while the hearings were being conducted.

However, Nemetz had to

Taku on rocks, nose among trees

From Rocky Isle Off Rupert

Try Today to Free Ferry

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An attempt was scheduled early today to pull the Alaska ferry Taku from the rocky foreshore of West Kinahan Island where she piled up Wednesday with 342 persons aboard.

Meanwhile Canadian department of transport and other officials were studying means of dealing with the problem of cleaning up hundreds of gallons of oil spilling from the 352-foot vessel's ruptured tanks and threatening to pollute the harbor of this northern British Columbia deep-sea port of 16,000 persons.

★ ★ ★

Disaster struck the Taku almost at the end of a southbound run to Prince Rupert from Juneau, Alaska. Steaming at a brisk 17 knots, she apparently missed the turn into the harbor and slammed into West Kinahan, one of a group of four islands near the harbor entrance and about eight miles west of the city. The midnight watch was taking over from the night watch at the time.

She hit with "an awful jar" and ended "right up in the trees," one member of the crew recounted.

No one was seriously injured. Within minutes an oil tanker, a pilot boat and fishing boats were on the scene. Passengers were taken off the stricken ferry by lifeboat to the waiting boats, then on to Prince Rupert where emergency quarters were set up in the Moose Hall.

★ ★ ★

Throughout Wednesday the Taku remained high and dry on the beach, almost half her length tightly jammed on rock and her bow nudging the trees covering the island.

An oil slick more than three miles wide spread slowly outward from the stranded vessel. A spokesman for the harbor master's office said the slick appeared to be moving seaward and posed no immediate threat to the harbor.

The Taku had taken on fuel at Ketchikan, Alaska, less than 100 miles northwest of Prince Rupert only hours before. With her tanks carrying a near capacity 137,096 gallons of oil, port officials feared they might be facing a major oil pollution problem.

But Wednesday afternoon, the huge oil slick was observed to move away from the vessel, indicating that probably only one tank containing some 19,000-gallons of medium-weight bunker fuel

Iraqis in Jordan Back Guerrillas

● Israeli jets strike on two fronts. Page 12.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Iraq placed its estimated 10,000 troops in Jordan Wednesday under the over-all command of the central committee of the Palestinian guerrilla organizations, Baghdad radio reported.

An announcer, describing what he termed "a massive" protest demonstration in the Iraqi capital, said the move was designed to help guerrillas cope with the situation arising from the acceptance by Jordan and Egypt of the United States proposals for an Arab-Israeli peaceful settlement.

Severe Quake In Iran

TEHRAN (UPI) — A major earthquake struck northeastern Iran early today near the Iran-Soviet border, a Red Cross spokesman said. He said officials feared a heavy loss of life.

★ ★ ★

Reports reaching Tehran were sketchy but the tremor appeared centred near the village of Sharabad, 430 miles northeast of the capital.

"We expect a heavy loss of life because most of the villagers live in adobe and stone houses," the spokesman said.

The national earthquake information centre in Rickville, Md., near Washington, D.C., recorded the shock.

★ ★ ★

The shock registered a magnitude of 6.9 on the Richter scale of measurement. Scientists at the centre said it was of nearly comparable magnitude to an earthquake in Iran Aug. 31, 1968, that killed 11,000 persons. The quake registered 7.3 on the Richter scale.

Smog Nearing Hudson's Bay

● New York smog emergency deepens. Page 3.

From UPI

The air pollution and smog affecting cities the world around in this July heat wave reaches northward into Eastern Canada, over miles of forest wilderness, almost to the shores of Hudson's Bay.

In Montreal, a pollution investigator quarrelled sharply with the city's official stand that there was no unusual air pollution Wednesday, calling the city's method of measuring it "absolute nonsense," and "a con game."

In Toronto, the pollution problem eased a bit Wednesday after a rainfall.

"The nearest place with clear air is up at Moosonee on Hudson's Bay," said a forecaster at the weather office in Ottawa Wednesday. "The low visibility starts just south of there."

Legal Aid Not for 'Guilty'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A magistrate has criticized lawyers who recommend free legal aid for indigent persons when some are "obviously guilty" of the charges against them.

Magistrate Mike Baryluk said in an interview that "free legal aid should be provided only for person who have a reasonable defence . . . who can profit honestly by a lawyer's advice."

Baryluk made the remarks Tuesday after he denied bail to a man charged with possession of stolen credit cards and false pretences, and placed another man on one year's probation and gave him a $50 fine for false pretences. Both men had been advised by their lawyer to plead not guilty and ask for a court-appointed lawyer to handle their case. Bail had also been asked in both cases.

After questioning the first man to determine if he qualified for release until his trial, the magistrate concluded he was guilty and criticized the lawyer's decision.

"The lawyer's duty is not to ask for free legal aid when the accused is obviously guilty." He said the only purpose the procedure serves is "to stall the case for a month" and provide added revenue for lawyers.

"In too many cases it just wastes time and the taxpayers' money," he said.

2,000,000 Sign For U.S. Pullout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sponsors of legislation that would require complete U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam in one year said Wednesday they have collected the signatures of 2,178,687 Americans on petitions supporting their move.

Lots Issue

Play Or Park

A group of 72 petitioners in the Kings Road-Quadra Street area trying to stop Victoria from building a playground are not considering the interests of children, parks administrator Herb Warren said Wednesday.

The city's proposal would develop three lots totalling 1,500 square feet at the corner of Kings and Wark. The playground will replace a similar one in the 700-block Kings which is being phased out.

The proposed playground is across from Blanshard elementary school and the nearby Rose-Blanshard urban renewal development.

★ ★ ★

Development of the playground will make it necessary for 350 Blanshard Court children to cross Blanshard to use the playground.

The petitioners, led by Gary Menzel, 31, of 2544 Wark, say the playground is unnecessary because Blanshard Court already has about seven play areas with equipment.

But Warren told the Colonist those areas are not adequate.

Menzel said there are also eight acres of land behind the new Blanshard school bordering on the Blanshard area that children could use for a playground.

★ ★ ★

The petitioners are going to request the city create an ornamental park without playground facilities. They will present their case against the playground before city council's parks committee Tuesday.

Menzel said Wednesday the lot in question backs on to three apartment buildings which have no children. Many of the people living in them are elderly or working couples, some of whom work at night, he said.

"We're not against children," Menzel said.

"We would like to point out that this is an unwise move — the children have been adequately planned for," he said.

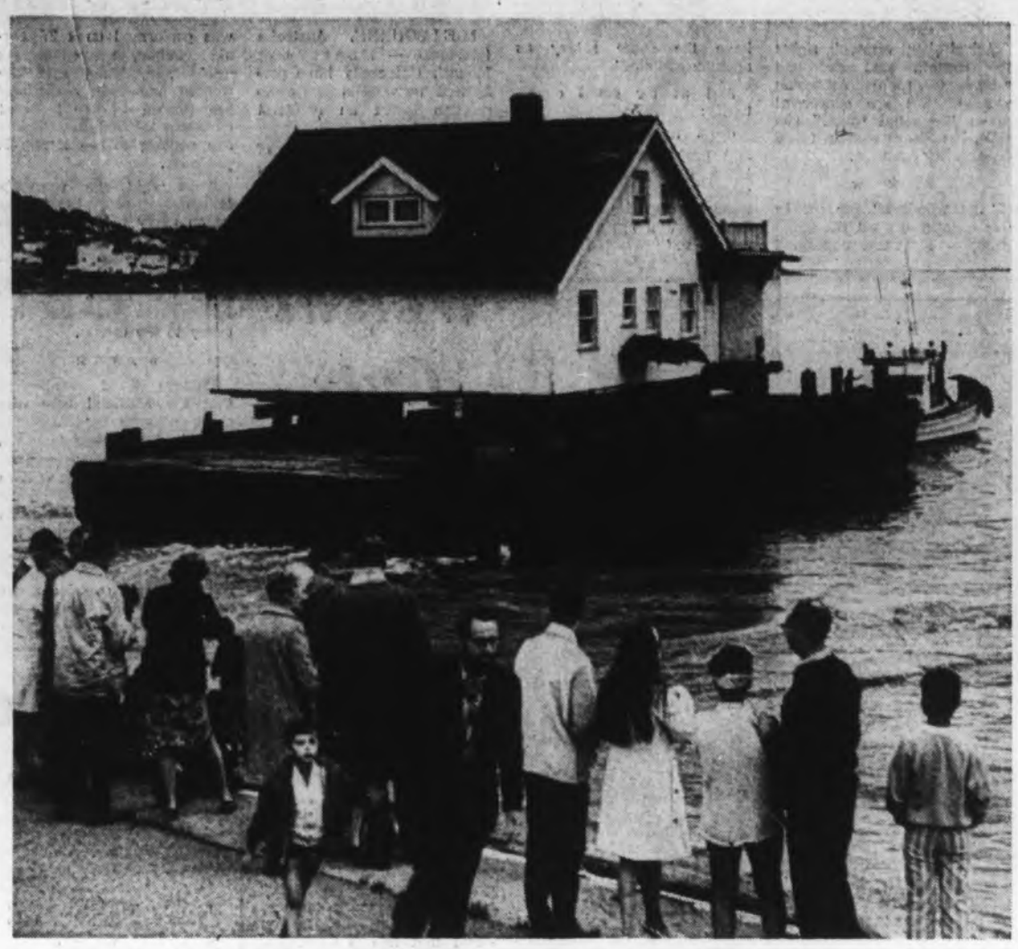

★ ★ ★

"Instead of developing additional land for playgrounds, why not utilize what is already there?" Menzel asked. He was referring to the grounds around Blanshard elementary school.

Menzel said none of the residents of the area were consulted when the city drew up plans for the area.

Warren suggested the city may not have to go ahead with the new playground if a compromise could be made with the school board.

"If the school board is willing to relinquish a part of the area (the eight acres around Blanshard elementary school) we might install playground facilities. However, I have an idea their space is limited too," Warren said.

House Sets Sail for Salt Spring

Looking like world's biggest houseboat, two-storey home sails off to Salt Spring Island on barge behind tug. Unusual launching took place Wednesday evening at Ross Bay as house was moved by truck from 678 Dallas Road to shore, then driven onto barge in two-hour operation. Final destination for 57-ton house is subdivision lot near Ganges. Home's owner is Bob Hele, 3864 Gordon Head, Saanich. — (William A. Boucher.)

Arcadia Bringing Boom To City Tourist Trade

The big white and buff colored cruise ship Arcadia will land 1,064 passengers at Ogden Point docks early today.

It will be the largest group of passengers to come ashore from a cruise ship this year," said Sam Lane, vice-president of the Victoria Visitors Bureau.

The 30,000-ton P and O liner will dock at 7 a.m. and depart at 6 p.m. for San Francisco. It is returning to California from an Alaskan cruise.

"This will be a terrific boost for the economy of the city," said tourist commissioner Mike Heppell.

Lane agreed, and added that in addition to the passengers visiting the downtown stores many of the crew also come ashore for the day. The ship carries a crew of 650 officers and men.

He said that so far this year the visiting cruise ships have brought 6,000 visitors to Victoria.

"The passengers normally shop in a variety of places but seem to be most interested in our clothing stores, china shops, and the department stores," he said.

The Arcadia, built in 1954, will be welcomed this morning by a water barrage from Island Tug and Barge's fire tug as it enters harbor.

It will be piped into dock by Victoria piper Heather Zink, and passengers will be entertained by the Victoria Chinatown Lions Drum and Bugle Corps and a baton group. Flower girls will give women passengers each a rose.

Lane said there was nothing definite so far about next year's schedule of visiting cruise ships but he hoped that more ships would have Victoria as a port of call.

He said the welcomes the visiting ships get on arrival in the city are without rival at any port from California to Alaska.

"Victoria should be impressed with such public-spirited citizens," he emphasized.

When the ship slips its mooring lines at 6 p.m. it will be played out of harbor by a band under the direction of Howard Denike. Pat Wicks will sing the traditional songs for the departing ship.

Cheques Caught In Mail Muddle

Mail service returned to normal in Victoria Wednesday after another one-day stoppage Tuesday in the continuing national dispute, but a bit of a mystery had cropped up by the end of the day.

★ ★ ★

A great many of the old-age pension cheques that were to be delivered didn't show up and neither postal union nor post office officials were able to say why they didn't.

The cheques were reported to have been sorted Monday night in advance of Tuesday's shutdown.

Many old-age pensioners reported receiving their cheques on schedule, but post office information officer Ken Stofer said there were "quite a few" phone calls from others who didn't get them.

Centennial Tangle

Region Freezes Arena Project

Lack of action by the Capital Regional Board Wednesday could block the building of an ice rink in Colwood as a B.C. centennial project.

"This is not a delaying tactic," commented chairman Hugh Curtis as the board tabled for 30 days a request for approval in principle of financing of the project.

"Are not their priorities getting a little out of order out there?" asked Curtis. "They have no sewers yet, but they want more recreational facilities."

★ ★ ★

The Juan de Fuca Centennial 71 commitee, made up of the centennial committees from Langford, Colwood and Metchosin, had picked an ice arena as a centennial project.

"We have been delayed on this all along," said chairman Howard Drummond after the meeting. "I'm sorry they've tabled it now — we shall probably miss getting a referendum to the people by December because of this. We won't be able to make it a centennial project."

The committee first approached the regional board in April, asking for permission to finance the arena through the regional board, although only local residents would be required to meet the cost.

★ ★ ★

The letter was referred to the provincial government which turned down the proposal on grounds it wouldn't allow money to be borrowed for non-essentials.

According to Drummond the government later relaxed its attitude and allowed the committee to seek other financing.

A bank loan is being negotiated for $500,000, said Drummond, but regional endorsation in principle is needed before loan approval is given.

★ ★ ★

"We would still need approval to go to referendum and then voter approval to go ahead with building," said Drummond.

"Now we have to wait another 30 days before we can go to the bank with a firm proposal and then there are other formal steps that have to be taken," he said.

"I imagine we shall have to follow the same procedure as we did for the pool, and come up with working drawings, which means a wait for architectural plans.

★ ★ ★

"I can't see us getting this rushed through in time for a December referendum — it will be more like February before we're ready."

Drummond said he was fairly certain the $650,000 proposal could win taxpayer approval.

"Our centennial committees were elected at general meetings, which endorsed the ice arena plan at that time," he said.

"We also have the success of the swimming pool, and the fact that when the pool was built it was designed, and sold to the voters, as the start of a complex."

Drummond saw no problems in priorities.

★ ★ ★

"If sewers are needed, the board has only to present facts and figures as we shall present facts and figures on the arena, and it will pass out here. Our people understand solid facts," he said.

"I'm not too surprised by this move by the board," said Drummond. "We had the same holdup at the board level when we wanted to spend our own money on a swimming pool — I guess this is much the same thing."

At the meeting, Esquimalt representative Art Young said he was afraid that once the people found themselves paying for recreational facilities, they would be unwilling to add the cost of sewers to their taxes.

Petition Stands

Plazas Aid Tree Savers

Victoria's Save-the-Trees campaigners have been granted permission by three Victoria area shopping plazas to set up a stand in the centres to collect signatures for a campaign to save Begbie Street trees from being felled in a street-widening program.

Richard Morris, spokesman for the Save-the-Trees campaign, said campaigners will set up a small table with signs at the Mayfair shopping centre and the Town and Country shopping centre Thursday and Friday evening.

He said representatives would be posted at each of the tables to collect signatures for a petition against city's plans to fell the Begbie Street trees.

Morris said the Hillside shopping plaza has offered to let campaigners set up a booth Aug. 10.

He said about 300 residents in the Begbie Street area, the Heywood Street area and on Finlayson Street had signed the petition by late Wednesday afternoon.

Representatives of the Save-the-Trees campaign went door to-door to collect the signatures, Morris said.

Oak Bay Pupils Among Highest

Seven students from Oak Bay high school earned some of the highest marks in Grade 12 provincial scholarship exams, Education Minister Donald Brothers announced Thursday.

Among them is William Allan Squires, 4065 Lockehaven Drive, whose marks averaged 98.5 per cent.

He was one of four students who had identical marks, second highest in B.C. Another, Daniel Wing Wong of Duncan, won the Governor-General's bronze medal after he was judged the most eligible.

★ ★ ★

The highest marks of any Grade 12 student in B.C. — a record that brings him the Governor-General's silver medal — were earned by Chris Patrick Archibald of Trail. He had an average of 99 per cent.

Brothers explained scholarship standings are determined by averaging the two best marks achieved on examinations written in June.

Students with high marks have part of their post-secondary tuition fees paid by the government.

Other Vancouver Island students with high marks:

David Joseph Newberry and Bruce Edward Turkington, both of Oak Bay high and both with 98 per cent; Peter Gerald Ludemann, Lake Cowichan high, 96 per cent; Andrew Penn, Shawnigan Lake school, 96 per cent; David Anthony Todd, Oak Bay high, 96 per cent.

★ ★ ★

Patrick Michael Campbell, Oak Bay high, 95.5 per cent; Manfred John Maier, Mount Douglas high, 95.5 per cent; Margaret Karen Roe and Annette Mary Walker, both of Oak Bay high, 95 per cent.

Among those writing Grade 13 government examinations, Martin Beerens of Port Alberni achieved an average of 82.6 per cent.

Religion Evident Contributor To South Africa Apartheid

Organized religion in South Africa is one of the factors maintaining apartheid, a South African social anthropologist said here Wednesday.

Calling churches one of "the props that keep the system of segregation going," Dr. Peter Carstens, who now teaches at the University of Toronto, described the effects of religion on particular reserves as indicative of the general situation.

"The power of religion can be very strong, especially when it is linked with the authority of the elite," he said. "Religious systems have provided the moral consensus for maintaining segregation."

Carstens noted that the Anglican Church has a reputation for being "extremely liberal" and some of its clergy have criticized the policy of apartheid, but the church has always worked within the system.

"It didn't do anyting to change the system," he said. "So even though a church on the exterior has a reputation of liberalism, the fact that it has two separate church buildings does in fact reinforce the status quo."

★ ★ ★

The anthropologist said that in some cases, a single minister serves both white and non-white members of the congregation in separate buildings, and in others each group has its own minister. In the latter case, the ministers for each group are identified by their titles and are not allowed to serve the other group.

"A minister who served pigmented (non-white) population would be ritually contaminated," he said.

Appropriate biblical quotations are used to reinforce strict segregation, Carstens said.

Religions, he said, are an important part of the social engineering system designed to keep the races separate.

"The techniques of domination are coercion, divide and rule, separate education and the subtle pressures provided by churches. The power group's coercion by police needs to have the support of the less obvious pressures."

Carstens said that because the society was so well engineered and took into account all the factors he mentioned, he could foresee "no change in the status quo."

During a question period following his lecture, the anthropoligist said there are a great many similarities between the Canadian system of reserves for Indians and the South African system of reserves for non-whites.

"It is to the advantage of the ruling elite to maintain this image of developing their own culture (by remaining separate on reserves)."

★ ★ ★

He also noted that just as the South African reserves form labor pools, the Canadian Indian population is rising faster than other segments of the population and it has been suggested that Indian reserves could serve the same function.

Carstens is currently a visiting professor on the University of Victoria summer staff.
